During the Superintendence of Dr. Wilson at the Bloomingdale Asylum, this sad result occurred to two patients. Reason has for a time left them, and both died of epilepsy. They were of both sexes, and about twenty years of age.

Who can say that these excesses are not frequently followed by those direful diseases, Insanity and Consumption? The records of the Insane Asylums, and the melancholy deaths of Consumption, bear ample witness to the truth of these assertions. In Lunatic Asylums the most melancholy exhibitions appear. The countenance is actually sodden and quite destitute; neither mirth nor grief ever visits it. Should a sound of the voice occur it is rarely articulate.

"With woful measures wan despair
Low sullen sounds their grief beguile."

While we regret the existence of the above diseases and symptoms, we are prepared to offer an invaluable gift of chemistry for the removal of the consequences.

HELMBOLD'S
Fluid Extract of Buchu.

There is no tonic like it. It is an anchor of hope to the physician and patient. This is the testimony of all who have used or prescribed it.

Beware of counterfeits and those cheap decoctions called Buchu, most of which are prepared by self-styled doctors, from deleterious ingredients, and offered for sale at "less price" and "larger bottles," etc. They are unreliable and frequently injurious. Ask for Helmbold's. Take no other.

Delivered to any address. Describe symptoms in all communications.

Price $1.25 per Bottle, or 6 Bottles for $6.50.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 19, 1871.

A Special Appeal to New England.

GRAND HAVEN, MICH., Oct. 17.—The cities of Holland and Manistee need material sympathy. The former city is entirely destroyed. Three thousand homeless people. Their immediate wants are supplied, but with a long winter in view and business prostrated they must be cared for. Contributions sent to Senator Ferry will safely reach the designated designation. Will all the New England papers copy?

S. H. GRIFFIN,
D. CUTLER,
E. P. FERRY, } Committee.

A Good Commencement.

Governor Baldwin has issued a proclamation calling earnestly for contributions for the sufferers by the fires in Michigan. Committees are appointed at Detroit and Grand Haven to receive the same. Earnest appeals come from the north and northwestern portion of the State, which are responded to liberally. Every train and boat conveys help to the sufferers. In thirty days water communication with the devastated districts ceases, after which supplies must be teamed sixty miles to Manistee and fifty to one hundred miles into St. Clair and Huron counties. Speedy assistance must be rendered. Nearly six thousand persons are needing daily supplies of food.

The contributions in Portland for the Wisconsin and Michigan sufferers amount to $3500. Providence gives nearly $1000, of which Mrs. G. M. Richmond gives $500. Secretary Boutwell has ordered a revenue steamer to carry supplies from Erie to the sufferers.

SUSPENDED.—The following is a list of the insurance companies, outside of Illinois, that have been compelled to suspend business on account of losses by the Chicago:—

Atlantic of Providence, R. I.
American of Providence, R. I.
Astor of New York city.
Ætna of New York city.
Albany City of Albany.
American Central of St. Louis.
Beekman of New York city.
Buffalo City of Buffalo.

Lancaster of Pennsylvania.
Market of New York city.
Manhattan of New York city.
Merchants of Hartford, Conn.
New Amsterdam of New York.
New England F. and M. of Boston.
Norwich, of Norwich, Conn.
Occidental of San Francisco.
Prov. Washington of Providence, R. I.
Putnam of Hartford, Conn.
Roger Williams of Providence, R. I.
Security of New York city.
Western of Buffalo, N. Y.
Washington of New York city.

The Lorillard of New York city has discontinued business.

The Chicago insurance companies make a very bad showing. Their losses are estimated at $25,000,000, while their assets hardly reach $4,000,000.

THE HURRICANE in Nova Scotia destroyed every wharf in Chester. The Star Lobster Packing Company's extensive establishment was entirely destroyed. The loss to the company is large and to the village larger, as they did a brisk business and employed many people. The American schooner E. Crowell of Gloucester, with 300 barrels of mackerel on board, put into the harbor for shelter and was driven ashore. A house on the shore three miles from Chester, occupied by an old man named Dominick, was entirely washed away. Nothing has been seen of the old man. In Margaret's Bay nearly every staging and store near the water's edge were carried away at all the different settlements, together with the results of the poor fishermen's labors during the past summer. Much destitution must result in consequence of these disasters. The loss in Shelburne is estimated at $12,000.

WOODS ON FIRE.—Accounts from northern Kansas say that destructive fires are raging at Deer Creek and Harrison Creek valleys, extending to Jefferson county, Nebraska. Several houses, barns, large quantities of grain, hay and other cropsare destroyed and many miles of fences burned. The loss is estimated at from $30,000 to $50,000.

JUAREZ has been elected president of Mexico by Congress, receiving 108 votes, all that were cast. The opposition abstained from voting. All is quiet in Mexico.

THE KU-KLUX IN HOT WATER.—The department of justice has received no later advices from the scene of the Ku-Klux troubles in South Carolina, but Governor Scott of that State reports the Ku-Klux as badly scared by the President's proclamation, and in evident apprehension of the immediate future. Governor Scott says that the Spartanburg county jail is full, that many prisoners are being sent to Columbia, that the federal cavalry and civil officials are both very active, and that matters are being pushed with a vigor and efficiency heretofore unknown. The order of the Invisible Empire is found to be much more extensive and more universal than had been supposed, and includes practically all the white men in northwestern South Carolina. Even invalids and bed-ridden men who have not left their houses for years have been initiated that they may not by any chance be available as jurors or witnesses against their more active confederates. Among the lately arrested is a son of ex-Governor Gist of South Carolina, and many of the prisoners are persons of local prominence and influence.

As the Ku-Klux did not disband in obedience to the President's proclamation, another proclamation was issued on the 18th. It suspends the writ of habeas corpus within the counties of Spartanburg, York, Marion, Chester, Laurens, Newberry, Fairfield, Lancaster and Chesterfield, in the State of South Carolina.

Judge Bond, who meted out justice so effectually to the Ku-Klux in North Carolina, will open court at Columbia, S. C., on the sixth of November, when the cases which are so rapidly accumulating, and which, by this proclamation, are likely to be still more numerous, will be presented for his action. It is stated that the white population of the upper counties of South Carolina have so generally joined the Klan or left their homes through fear, that Judge Bond will be compelled to get the jurors for his court from the seaboard counties.

New Hampshire Items.

A farmer's State convention will be held at Concord about the middle of December.

The house of Mr. S. W. Cass at Danville was burned on Sunday night. The fire was occasioned by the bursting of a kerosene lamp.

The liquor prosecutions at Concord go for naught. In a test case a witness declined to testify, on the ground that he was not bound to criminate himself. Judge Doe continued the case that it might go to the full bench. The objection of the witness was raised on a point of law which makes the buyer of liquors an accomplice of the seller.

Those important personages, the labor reformers, met in solemn convention at Concord, Wednesday, and went through the farce of passing resolutions favoring a new party, condemning frauds in New York, thanking Gen. Butler and inviting unsophisticated political clams to join them in another raid on the State treasury, for the sole purpose of helping themselves and the Democratic party. It's too thin this time—altogether too thin to be successful.

Political.

Governor Austin of Missouri says that the prospect of a handsome republican majority in that State in November is excellent, and that the efforts of the railroad corporations to defeat his reelection and the republican ticket, in consequence of his vetoes of their corrupt schemes, which they bought through the legislature, will fail.

TAMMANY'S VILLAINY.—The laborers on the public parks and boulevards of New York city are undergoing a course of military drill for any emergency that may arise in the coming election and a parade of 5800 respectable citizens is talked of to wait on Mayor Hall and demand proper safeguards for the purity of the election in November.

MUSIC.—We have received from O. Ditson & Co. the following pieces of music: The Jolly Smiths (song) by J. C. Chamberlain; When the Corn is Waving, Annie Dear, (piano), by E. Mack; Happy as a Clam (comic song), by C. Hatch Smith; Leur Derniere Valse, (piano), by Jaques Blumenthal; Hamlet's Drinking Song, by John Openford.

THE DETAILS of the recent storms and floods in China represent the loss of life and property very great. At least 3000 persons are said to have perished.

NO PERSON is considered of any account in Chicago now unless he lost considerably by the fire.

EIGHT MEN were lost with schooner Charles Excelsior on lake Erie on the 15th.

PERIODS OF HUMAN GROWTH.—A paper by Dr. Cheron on medical art, in relation to military organization, gives some curious details with regard to the period of growth in the human race. The average number of Frenchmen liable to military service, who have attained the age of twenty, is 325,000, but about 61,000 are exempt from various causes, of which deficient height is one of the most frequent. This, Dr. Cheron thinks, is not a sufficient ground for exemption, as the time required to reach the full development of the stature varies considerably in different races. The population of France, being composed of mixed races, presents great differences as regards height, and the duration of growth greatly varies from one region to another, according to the origin of the inhabitants.

The descendants of the aboriginal Gauls occupying the central zone of France, from the Alps to the Atlantic, are remarkable for developing so slowly that they scarcely reach their full height before the age of twenty six. The inhabitants of the south, sprung from Greeks, Romans and Gauls, attain their complete stature at twenty-three years of age. In the northwest of France the descendants of Belgians, Northmen, Flemings and Germans are not fully grown until they reach the age of twenty-six. Dr. Cheron thinks the 19,000 persons exempted yearly for deficient height might well pay their debt to the state, and quotes the opinion of Dr. Larrey, a great authority in such matters, to the effect that a low stature is more often coincident with a strong constitution than a very high one.

—Advices have been received from Algeria, stating that a fresh revolt of the natives has taken place in that province, and that the force sent to quell the outbreak has been unable to do so.

—Fourteen per cent. of the fires in New York are caused by kerosene, and the fire-marshal urges citizens to notify him of the dangerous use of that material.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

Long fever, common cold, catarrhal fever, and nasal discharge of a brownish color in horses, may be checked at once by liberal use of Sheridan's Cavalry Condition Powders.

The season for coughs and colds is rapidly approaching, and every one should be prepared to check the first symptoms, as a cough contracted between now and Christmas frequently lasts all winter. There is no better remedy than "Johnson's Anodyne Liniment." For all diseases of throat and lungs, it should be used internally and externally.

An Anchor to Windward.

It is good seamanship, where there is reason to expect heavy weather, to drop an anchor to windward.

We are in the midst of the season of chills and fever. The sure preventive of this distressing malady is HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS. A course of that wholesome vegetable tonic will render an attack impossible. Take the hint and drop an anchor to windward.

Weak stomachs are most liable to be disordered late in the autumn, when the changes of temperature are marked and frequent. Hostetter's Bitters fortifies the stomach against the effects of these variations. Let dyspeptics make a note of the fact, and drop an anchor to windward.

The liver is most sensitive when the weather is continually alternative between the warmth of summer and the cold of winter than at any other period of the year. This is peculiarly the season of such alterations. Let the bilious remember that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is essentially an anti-bilious medicine, and drop an anchor to windward.

The wisest plan is to forestall evil. The next best thing is to arrest it. For disorders of the stomach, irregularities of the bowels, and all periodical fevers, take, as soon as the complaint developes itself, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters.

THE ILLICIT DISTILLERIES in Brooklyn have again been raided by U. S. troops, 300 barrels of whiskey carried off and 15 illicit whiskey mills broken up.

—The supervising inspectors of steamboats have refused to allow western tugs to carry more steam than the law prescribes for passenger boats.

THE DOMESTIC SEWING MACHINE.—Since the Domestic Sewing Machine was awarded the "First Premium" at the late State Fair at Dover, the rush for them has been even greater than ever; Mr. E. A. Joy, the fortunate Agent, whose rooms are adjoining our office, is unable to set them up as fast as they are called for, notwithstanding he has lately employed an able assistant. Everybody who buys a "Domestic" seems happy. At the State Fair it was found to be the only Machine in the world having self adjusting tensions. It was in operation four days, using all kinds of thread on all sorts of goods, without any change of tensions. If you don't examine it before purchasing any other, you will wish you had.

Say, old boy, where shall we meet?
Why, at Garrety's, on Daniel Street,
He's such a jolly fellow;
His LAGER is always fresh and prime,
It never wants a "head" and is
Refreshing, cool and mellow!
You require, my boy, some filling out,
You're thin, and meagre-looking;
Lager would give you the proper size,
Look at the host, he once was scant,
His BEER has made of flesh no want,
Go thou and drink likewise.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,

SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs,

NO. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity of a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents.

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of greatness and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges. 1871. LYCEUM COURSE. 1872.

IN arranging the programme for a course of Popular Lectures, Readings, &c., to be given in the

for the season of 1871—2, the committee believe this list has the largest number of distinguished names ever offered to the Portsmouth public, and that the Course will present attractions not surpassed in point of interest and variety. They will appear in the order announced:

NOV. 2, Maj. Gen. JUDSON KILPATRICK, Subject: "The American Stump." A new, instructive and amusing lecture.

NOV. 9, Rev. W. H. H. MURRAY. Subject: "Deacons." A new lecture.

NOV. 16, JAMES T. FIELDS. Subject: "A Plea for Cheerfulness."

NOV. 23, GEORGE WILLIAM CURTIS. Subject: "Women in the Old time and the New."

NOV. 30. To be announced.

DEC. 7, Rev. WILLIAM R. NICHOLSON, D. D. Subject: "Civilization and Poverty."

DEC. 14, Rev. E. E. HALE. Subject: "He Did his Level Best," A Story This is an entirely new feature, arranged especially for Lyceums, and has proved to be an exceedingly attractive one.

DEC. 21, Mrs. MARY A. LIVERMORE, Subject: "What shall we do with our Daughters?"

JAN. 4, PROF. MOSES T. BROWN, and DR. J. H. WILLCOX.

Entertainment: Organ Concert. Miscellaneous Readings, by Prof. Brown, from favorite authors, with character sketches.

Organ Recitals by Dr. Willcox performed on the fine new organ recently placed in this church.

JAN. 11, Prof. C. H. HITCHCOCK.

Subject: "Life above the Clouds; or, Mt. Washington in Midwinter," illustrated with noted Stereoscopic Views of frost work, exhibited by the aid of a Stereopticon and Calcium Light.

The organ will be exhibited each evening.

TICKETS for this Course are now ready, at the stores of Messrs. Shores, Preston, Thacher and Hill.

PRICE $1.50 FOR THE COURSE.

No single evening tickets will be issued.

As the number to be sold is limited to the comfortable seating capacity of the church, those desiring to attend should secure their tickets without delay, as a large number are already taken up.

Ushers will be in attendance each evening.

EXHIBITION CONCERT.

MR. MOSES, with his trained class of Young Lady Minstrels, will give a Scenic and Dramatic CONCERT, at the Temple,

Tuesday Evening, Oct. 31st.

His great DROP CURTAIN, seventeen by thirty-two feet, (Oriental subject,) also a new and brilliant sunrise scene on the Sagamore Creek, are completed and will be exhibited for the first time, on this occasion, with other scenery from his brush.

Some selections from his new, unpublished Opera of "WINONA, Queen of the Sagamore," will be introduced. At the rising of the curtain a glowing sunrise view, near the entrance of the beautiful Sagamore, will appear. Winona, in full Indian custume, advances down the creek in a canoe, stopping by the rocks, steps on shore, points to the scene, exclaims: "O, raptured vision!" and sings:—

"Behold the morning,
Effulgent dawning,
The saffron blending,
With rose ascending,
Outspreading, beaming,
It is no dreaming,
Day smiles advancing,
Oh, how entrancing, &c."

Doors open at 6½ o'clock; Concert to commence at 7½ o'clock. Tickets, (for sale at the usual places,) 35 cts.; Reserved Seats, 50 cts.; Children to 12 years, half price. Programmes will give further details. o19

Will return to Boston on Friday, and will probably pass through this city at 4 o'clock, P. M.

The Kittery Sensation.

Miss Staples, accused of arson, not being able to obtain bail, has been taken to Alfred (Me.) jail.

The President's Cigar-Stump

Appears to have scorched the local Democratic organ, judging from its dismal moanings over it. We should fancy that the possessor of so exquisitely sensitive a cuticle would be a little more cautious about trying to scalp less vulnerable people,—but then it's not often that a newspaper squib hurts so, you know.

The Milburns

Didn't have much of an audience, Wednesday evening, and there wasn't much fun—inasmuch as there was not a speck of a Milburn or a faint resemblance of a Milburn in town. Those who wished to see them found the Temple closed and all dark and dreary. But the Milburns promise to come next Tuesday.

"Forty Minutes"

Was all the time Puck wanted in which to "put a girdle round the earth," but Professor Morse's invention beats even that excellent time. The electric telegraph! What a mighty influence it exercises to-day, though a man need not be old to remember the day of its birth! And how wondrously it helps the fast American people to live faster than ever before,—to practically annihilate both time and distance! We sent a telegram from Boston to this office by the Western Union Line on Wednesday at 15 minutes before 6 o'clock. It arrived here at 7.30, and did not appear to be in the least out of breath, either. It probably came on a freight train.

Universalist S. S. Convention.

The Universalist Sunday Schools of this State met in Convention at the Universalist Church in this city on Wednesday. James M. Carr, Esq., presided. Rev. A. P. Folsom of Weare offered prayer, the records of last year were read and approved, and the old officers were re-elected. The committees appointed are as follows:—

On Credentials—Rev. C. O. Ballou, Weare, A. F. Craig, Portsmouth.

On Work—Rev. Geo. W. Bicknell, Portland, Rev. Thos. Borden, Manchester, Rev. S. H. McCollister, Nashua, Rev. A. P. Folsom.

On Sunday Schools—Rev. C. A. Ballou, Rev. Thos. Borden.

Rev. Mr. Ballou spoke in the afternoon on the beneficial effects of Sunday School conferences. In the evening, the audience enjoyed a Sabbath School exhibition, followed by remarks by Joseph Kidder, Esq., of Manchester and others. The session closes to-day.

How's This, Girls?

"There are no smarter or handsomer girls anywhere than in Rochester," says the Courier.

Portsmouth people are a little incredulous on that point.—Journal.

And they may well be, considering the number of really handsome girls in that quaint old city. We've been there. Nillson, too—not a bad authority—says positively the most beautiful girl she has yet seen is a Portsmouth resident. Our pretty girls this way are not always bound to believe what newspaper men say, however.—Pittsfield Times.

A Respected Citizen Deceased.

Another of the landmarks of the business interest of this city, connecting the present with the past, a man full of honor and esteemed of all his associates, whose life has been an eminently useful one, has passed away. James F. Shores, Esq., the veteran cashier of the National Mechanics & Traders' Bank, died very suddenly of heart disease, between the hours of nine and ten o'clock, Wednesday morning, at the Bank where he has spent the greatest part of his active life for 24 years. He had entered the building but a short time previous to his death, and complained of being unwell, stating that he would return home but would sign a few checks before leaving. While attempting to do so he fell backward to the floor, expiring immediately. His life was one of activity. He was interested in good works and his duty led him to take active part in organizations for the benefit of the young. He was for years Superintendent of the Unitarian Sunday School. For eight years previous to his accepting the business position he filled until his death, he was a clerk in the Piscataqua Bank. He was ever prompt and reliable. His counsel was sought for by old and young and was wisely and willingly given. He has passed to his reward at the ripe age of nearly four score years. His loss will be deeply felt.

Communicated.

Management of Fires.

Messrs. Editors:—The late calamity in Chicago very naturally makes us thoughtful of our own situation and what we should do under the circumstances. At the time of the late fire in Bridge Street, the weather was perfectly calm and there was little or no apprehension of its spreading. But it makes one shudder to think of the consequences had a fresh northwest wind been prevailing. It was, with some difficulty that the fire was stopped when it was; if it had crossed Hill Street with such a nest of wooden houses, it could not probably have been stopped till it came to the water, as was the case in our great fire of 1813. It would be wisdom if the citizens would turn their attention to the stopping of any fire in its early progress; a few buckets of water when first discovered would often save a building, and a hand engine if brought promptly to the work, with the tub already filled, would in most cases stop the fire where it commenced. Our steam engines when fairly at work do very efficient service, but so much time is consumed in preparing the apparatus that the fire has assumed formidable progress, and thus makes it so much the more difficult to subdue. This was evidently the case at the fire in Bridge Street, and was so at the fire of Miss Pickering's wood shed, corner of State and Chestnut Streets. Our firemen work with good will and do not spare any exertion to stop the progress of a fire. But there seems to be a want of system. The burthen of managing a fire, especially when it is spreading, is too much for any one man, and some plan ought to be devised for remedying this evil. There needs some quick mode of communication between the engineer and the engines at the reservoirs, either for putting the water on or stopping, as the engineer may find necessary. There are many other suggestions that may be made bearing on this subject. But these hints are thrown out in the hope that others may take up the subject so that the matter may be discussed in all its bearings, for it is of vital consequence that we leave no stone unturned, that may save us from the horrors of a general conflagration.

AN OLD FIRE WARD.

—A set of paper car-wheels, on one of the Pullman cars running to Jersey City, have run over 160,000 miles of track, and worn out entirely one set of steel tires, which have been replaced. The ordinary wheels, it is said, will only run 60,000 miles.

—The Chicago Republican says: "One of the best things cooked in the recent Massachusetts broil was the Worcester Gazette's epitome of Butler's platform: 'No Labor between Meals; Prohibition between Drinks.'"

—Rev. Mr. Thompson, an American clergyman, preached in the Chapel of St. John, in the Tower of London, recently. The chapel has not been used before since the time of the Reformation.

—In consequence of the failure of the nut crop in Wisconsin, the resident gray squirrels are emigrating to Minnesota.

—Horatio Bolster of Washington has been sentenced to two years in the Albany penitentiary for killing James, a gambler, last February.

CHESAPEAKE & OHIOS — FIVE TWENTIES—CENTRAL PACIFICS.
BANKING OFFICE OF
FISK & HATCH,
No. 5 Nassau Street, New York.
September 25th, 1871.
OF THE FIFTEEN MILLION CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO SIX PER CENT. LOAN, but about $4,500,000 remain unsold, and this remainder will be taken up rapidly.
The five years' option having expired on all series of FIVE-TWENTY BONDS, except 1867s and 1868s, they are liable to be called in for payment. The redemption of 100 millions FIVE-TWENTIES in coin, and the purchases by the Government during the ensuing four months, with the premium thereon, will release about 150 millions of invested capital, independently of dividend and interest payments, the greater part of which must seek reinvestment.
The Chesapeake and Ohio Sizes
have absolutely 30 years to run; are especially desirable for steady investments, and can now be bought
17 per cent. less than Ten-forties.
20 per cent. less than Five-twenties,
25 per cent. less than Sixes of 1881,
and are equally sure to be paid principal and interest in gold coin. Their amount is limited by the Trust Deed to $15,000,000. Price (at present) 93 and accrued interest, that is, with coupon attached, payable Nov. 1.
$1000 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $934.16.
$500 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $477.08.
$100 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $95.42.
Only a small amount of the latter denominations remains, and no more can be made. Bonds are in coupon or register form, same as Five-twenties.
This debt is created by the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad Company in order more speedily and effectually to extend and complete the main line of their Road to the Ohio River. This work —the most important internal improvement now progressing in the country— is rapidly approaching completion. It will establish another and superior line of communication between the Ohio and Mississippi valleys and the eastern cities; bringing ten millions of people, mainly producers, nearer to the centres of consumption in the Eastern States, and nearer to the political and commercial capitals of the country. Such is the commanding importance of this Trunk Line that the larger cities of the West are projecting feeders to connect with it, so as to avail themselves of its unequalled facilities as soon as it is completed. Large tracts of valuable coal and iron lands along its route are passing into the hands of practical miners and iron manufacturers; a large city is springing up at the western terminus, the head of reliable navigation on the Ohio, where it intersects 12,000 miles of river transit, and will soon be in connection with 30,000 miles of railroad carriage.
The CENTRAL PACIFIC SIX PER CENT. BONDS are as safe for investment as Government Bonds Their amount fixed by act of Congress at $25,000 per mile, is secured by twenty work for times their value; they can only be bought in the open market, and are becoming scarcer in consequence of their gradual absorption by investors here and in Europe; they have a ready market in all the principal money-centres, and have twenty-four years to run; the earnings of the road are steadily increasing, and will probably reach $10,000,000 for the current year, affording a handsome surplus after payment of expenses and interest. Present price, 101 to 102.
When the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad is completed, in 1872, and the Bonds are dealt in at the Stock Exchanges of the world, we have no doubt they will be equally popular with the Central Pacifics. Both principal and interest of the CENTRAL PACIFIC and CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO BONDS, are specifically payable in gold coin in New York; the interest on the former being paid January and July, and of the latter, May and November, corresponding with the two classes of Five-twenties.
We buy and sell FIVE-TWENTIES, TEN-FORTIES, EIGHTY-ONES, and CENTRAL or WESTERN PACIFICS, or receive them in payment for CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO BONDS at their current market price.
Orders for Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds, accompanied with Drafts or Checks, may be forwarded to us by mail. Bonds or money may be forwarded by any responsible Express Company at our expense, and the Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds, in exchange, will be sent by return Express, charges paid. FISK & HATCH.
P. S.—Accounts of Banks, Bankers and others received, on which we allow Four Per Cent. interest.
Certificates of deposit issued and collections made in all parts of the Union.

AUCTION SALES.

FIRST SEMI-ANNUAL SALE OF CARRIAGES, WAGONS, &c., AT Cames' Repository.
MESSRS. G. B. & S. W. CAME
WILL SELL at Auction, at the Repository, on High Street, Portsmouth, on Saturday, Oct. 21, at 10 1-2 o'clock, A. M.,
A fine assortment of well built Carriages of new and tasteful designs, comprising Extension Top Carriages, Iver's Buggies, Phaetons, Open and Top Buggies of various styles, Concord and Two Seated Wagons, Express Wagons, Goddard's Buggies, &c., together with a lot of second-hand Carriages different styles and in good condition; also several HORSES,
among them a heavy pair of Work Horses, with Harnesses, Harrows, &c. Also one Chaise.
The Messrs. Came, by reason of the demands of their increased business, for space, have adopted this method of closing out their present stock to make room for the Winter business. Some of the vehicles offered received a "Premium" at the late N. H. State Fair in Dover, and were considered to be in point of workmanship superior to anything of the kind ever exhibited in the State.
The Sale offers a favorable opportunity to secure well-built Carriages at home prices. Buyers are requested to remove their purchases with as little delay as possible. Terms, all sales under one hundred dollars, Cash; above that sum a credit of from thirty to ninety days, interest added.

ARE YOU GOING TO PAINT?
—IF SO, USE THE—
AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINT.
It is Cheaper, Handsomer and more durable than the best of other Paints. One Thousand Gallons of it were sold in this City, in the year 1870, and not one complaint has come from those who have used it; but all speak in its favor; it is mixed ready for application, and is much easier put on than any other Paint, producing a smooth, glossy surface for years, that can be cleaned with hot suds without injuring it. It is excellent for walls inside, in the place of paper.
I shall keep this season a large stock of Chemical Paints of all shades on hand, to accommodate customers with any amount, without delay in ordering it. Those who want to use the Chemical Paints and have had them misrepresented by those who deal in Lead and Oil, are invited to call and examine my Paints that have been on Buildings two years, and you will find them as fresh as if laid but one month.
I am prepared to do Painting by Contract, or by the day, using the Chemical Paint, or furnishing good experienced workmen by the day at very low wages. B. NORTON, only Agent for selling the Morning Chronicle.

A Blast in the Hoosac Tunnel.

We copy from a Massachusetts paper the following interesting account of a visit to the "Great Bore" known as the Hoosac Tunnel, written by a clergyman formerly of this city:—

But we have taken our dinner. It does not seem at this moment as though we can ever be hungry again; and now we will explore the tunnel, following the railroad track to the west when it comes to a sudden end. But here is a path leading to the left. Let us follow it. We are on the right track. Do you not see that heavy stone embankment yonder. They are filling that gorge with the stone as they take it from the heart of the mountain, and so cutting their path through, and building their embankment outside, at the same time. There is a train unloading now. Let us make haste and it will carry us in when it goes back for another load. Here we are at the entrance—a little out of breath. Oh, how dark it looks in there! You are not going to back out, are you? The darkness appals you, does it? Then we will provide ourselves with a lantern. Here is a store—the "Hoosac Tunnel Store." They keep lanterns to let to just such adventurers as we are.

But we must not delay; the train is coming. A nondescript engine it is. One might worship it without idolatry, for it is not a likeness of anything in heaven above, or on the earth beneath. But it is strong and sure, and the engineer looks as though he knew his business. Into the car we climb—or rather tumble—and the bell rings and we are off. Into the darkness we go, farther and farther. Ah! no night is equal to this. It is "darkness that may be felt." That bright spot behind grows smaller and smaller. How like a sun, a star it looks? Are then the stars only tunnels through into heaven? Now it is lost to sight. There is nothing to make the darkness visible, but the glimmer of our lamps, and the pale light of the engine.

Now the engine whistles and stops. How weirdly, ghostly it sounds, like the shriek of a demon. If we go any farther we must wait for a mule train, or go on foot. How long will it be before the mule train goes? It may be an hour or more. Then we must foot it, for we cannot wait so long. How far is it to the "heading," as it is called—the farthest point to which the workmen have gone? O, nearly a mile. How far have we come already? A little more than that distance. Well, let us be going, we have no time to spare; you do not say that you are going to back out now? Very, well, then I go alone. Our lantern goes out. We strike a match and light it again, and pursue our lonely way.

At length we see sparks in the distance that flit and glint like fire flies. They grow larger as we approach them. Now there are dark forms moving to and fro beneath them. Are they lost souls who have been banished to this under world of blackness as the penalty of some blacker crime? No, they are men, toiling, hoping and aspiring men, with hearts just like our own, as we learn when we approach them. We lost our light once. Two will be safer than one, so we ask for a candle. Half a dozen hands are extended. We offer pay; they say with one voice, no! We ask information; they give it freely. We press on. Other lights are seen, and other men are passed.

Now we hear a strange sound that is unlike anything we ever heard before. It is neither a mowing machine nor an engine letting off steam, nor a gang of men working on a huge boiler. It sounds something like all these simmered down together, and a buzz-saw and train of cars thrown in besides. We find that it is a drilling machine on a platform, cutting down the roof of our cavern, or rather cutting down the stone that they may increase the height of the roof. We press on until we are at the end. Here the drilling machine, attended by a gang of twenty-three men, is at work. It is driving about ten drills into the solid rock before it, all at the same time. The power used is condensed air, driven into the machine through an iron pipe, that is laid along the side of the tunnel. Hence we get power and ventilation at the same time.

But the drilling is finished now. How fortunate that we arrived in time to see the operation. The machine is drawn by a patient mule to a safe distance. And now the holes—some forty in all—are charged, and a little copper wire, connected with each cartridge, is twisted to the end of a wire that runs back three hundred feet or more to an electric battery. When all things are ready the men retire, and a heavy bulkhead is placed across the entrance. As we follow them in their retreat, we ask where the battery is that is to fire the blast. It is pointed out to us. We take our place beside it. The men pass further on. The electrician comes. We ask him if he has any objection to our standing here. He says no, if our nerves are equal to it. We are willing to risk the nerves.

He manipulates the battery for a moment. Then he touches a key, and—earthquakes, thunder, and all the artillery in the world,—how the mountains groan, and quake, and tremble! It seems as though all the walls about us are tumbling down. Every light is put out in an instant within half a mile, and the very rock beneath us shakes, and the shock reverberates, disappears, and dies.

The electrician asks us what we think of it. We tell him it is too grand for expression. He shouts Bravo! No visitor, and they come from all parts of the world, ever stood at least this far before. And so we were set down as quite a hero, when, really, it seemed to us the least heroic thing that could be well imagined. It is heroic for men to work there, year in and year out, and endure that shock two or three times every day, to provide for their wives and babes. But it was curiosity and not heroism that kept us there. There was nothing to be afraid of. Had not the same thing been done a thousand times!

We went forward to witness the result. There lay tons of rock which had been torn from the solid ledge, and scattered far and near over the plains where we walked a little while before. We came with the mule teams out of the darkness, into God's light again, wiser than when we forsook the day, and with a deeper interest in the toiling million.

The distance made from this end is about 11,000 feet. They are now 3,000 feet from the central shaft. Men are working in the shaft both ways. They are making about forty feet per week at this end. During July they advanced one hundred and sixty feet. Whether as much is being done at the shaft and the other end, I am unable to say. They are quite sure of letting daylight through within the next year. Two gangs of men are kept constantly employed, and relieve each other every eight hours. The men seem strong and perfectly well. It is not a very unhealthy nor uncomfortable place. But there is not a Yankee among them. America prefers daylight. If the mountain is ever tunnelled, Ireland must furnish the bone and sinew. It will be tunnelled, and this will be one of the most picturesque and popular routes connecting Boston with the West. All of which will happen within the next five years.

A GREAT MEDICAL DISCOVERY!
DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA
VINEGAR BITTERS,
Hundreds of Thousands Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.
WHAT ARE THEY!
THEY ARE NOT A VILE FANCY DRINK,
Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetisers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Root and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and a LIFE-GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to direction and remain long unwell, provided the bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.
For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.
DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia.
They invigorate the stomach and stimulate the torpid liver and bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.
FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effect.
Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins, cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.
PIN, TAPE and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. For full directions, read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French and Spanish.
FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal. ☞ Send for a circular.
They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs. 1yrdawfeb16

The Cause and Cure of Consumption.
The primary cause of Consumption is derangement of the digestive organs. The deranged stomach produces deficient nutrition and assimilation. By assimilation I mean that process by which the nutriment of the food is converted into blood, and thence into the solids of the body. Persons with digestion thus impaired, having the slightest predisposition to pulmonary disease, or if they take cold, will be very liable to have Consumption of the Lungs in some of its forms; and I hold that it will be impossible to cure any case of Consumption without first restoring a good digestion and healthy assimilation. The very first thing to be done is to cleanse the stomach and bowels from all diseased mucous and slime which is clogging these organs so that they cannot perform their functions, and then rouse up and restore the liver to a healthy action. For this purpose, the surest and best remedy is SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS. These Pills cleanse the stomach and bowels of all the dead and morbid slime that is causing disease and decay in the whole system. They will clear out the liver of all diseased bile that has accumulated there, and arouse it up to healthy and healthy action, by which natural and healthy bile is secreted.
The stomach, bowels and liver are thus cleansed by the use of Schenck's Mandrake Pills; but there will still be the stomach an excess of acid, the organ it torpid, and the appetite is poor. In the bowels, the lacteals are weak, and requiring strengthening and tonic. It is in addition like this that Schenck's Seaweed Tonic proves to be the most valuable remedy ever discovered. It is added to the use will neutralize all excess of acid, making the stomach sweet and fresh; it will give permanent tone to this important organ, and create a good, hearty appetite, and prepare the system for the first process of a good digestion, and ultimately make good, healthy, living blood. After this preparatory treatment, what remains to cure most cases of consumption is the free and persevering use of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup. The Pulmonic Syrup ripens the morbid matters, whether in the blood, and is readily absorbed into the circulation, and thence distributed to the diseased lungs. There it ripens all morbid matters, whether in the form of abscesses or tubercles, and then assists Nature to expel all the diseased matter in the form of free expectoration, which now is ripe. It is then, by the great healing and purifying properties of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, that all ulcers and cavities are healed up sound, and my patient is cured.
The essential thing to be done in curing Consumption is to get up a good appetite and a good digestion, so that the body will grow in flesh and get strong. If a patient has diseased lungs, a cavity or abscess there, the cavity cannot heal, the matter cannot ripen, so long as the system is below par. What is necessary to cure is a new order of things, a good appetite, a good nutrition, the body to grow in flesh and get fat; then Nature is helper, the cavities will heal, the abscess will ripen and be thrown off in large quantities, and the person regains health and strength. This is the true method to cure Consumption, and if a person is very bad, if the lungs are not entirely destroyed, or even if one lung is entirely gone, if there is enough vitality left in the other to heal up, there is hope.
I have seen many persons cured with only one sound lung, live and enjoy life to a good old age. This is what Schenck's medicines will do for Consumption. They will clean out the stomach, sweeten and strengthen it, get up a good digestion, and give Nature the assistance she needs to clear the system of all the disease that is in the lungs, whatever the form may be.
It is important that, while using Schenck's medicines, care should be exercised not to take cold; keep in-doors in cold and damp weather; avoid night air, and take out-door exercise only in a genial and warm sunshine.
I wish it distinctly understood that when I recommend a patient to be careful in regard to taking cold while using my medicines, I do so for a special reason, a man who has but partially recovered from the effects of a bad cold is far more liable to a relapse than one who has been entirely restored, and it is precisely the same in regard to consumption. So long as the lungs are not perfectly healed, just so long is there imminent danger from the effects of the disease. Hence it is that I so strenuously caution pulmonary patients against exposing themselves to an atmosphere that is cold and unpleasant. Confirmed consumptives' lungs are a mass of sores, which the least change of atmosphere will inflame. The great secret of my success with my medicines consists in my ability to allay inflammation instead of provoking it, as many of the faculty do. An inflamed lung cannot with safety to the patient be exposed to the biting blasts of winter or the chilling winds of spring or autumn. It should be carefully shielded from all irritating influences. The utmost caution should be observed in this particular, as without it a cure under almost any circumstances is an impossibility.
The person should be kept on a wholesome and nutricious diet, and all the medicines continued until the body has restored to it the natural quantity of flesh and strength.
I was myself cured by this treatment of the worst kind of Consumption, and have lived to get fat and hearty these many years, with one lung mostly gone. I have cured thousands since, and very many have been cured by this treatment whom I have never seen.
About the first of October I expect to take possession of my new building at the northeast corner of Sixth and Arch Streets, where I shall be pleased to give advice to all who may require it.
Full directions accompany all my remedies, so that a person in any part of the world can be readily cured by a strict observance of the same.

New Publications.

Demorest's Monthly for November presents a full and varied choice of Winter Fashions, so essential to our climate and the tastes of the ladies. The present issue has its usual variety of Music, Literature, Household, and other useful articles, and the new list of Premiums for 1872. $3 per year. Published at 838 Broadway, New York.

Oliver Optic's Magazine for November is rich with good things. The continued stories by Oliver Optic, Elijah Kellogg, and Sophie May, as they draw toward their close, increase in interest. There is a captivating and instructive article on Fancy Work for Girls, profusely illustrated, a college story, full pageillustrations, &c. Lee & Shepard; $2.50 per year.

Peterson's Magazine for November is a magnificent number. "Baby's Answer," is its principal steel plate. Then comes its double-sized, colored, steel fashion plate, and "Peterson" is now the only magazine that gives these double-sized plates engraved on steel. Then there is a superb slipper-pattern, printed in colors. The tales and novelets, as always in "Peterson," are all original. $2 a year to single subscribers. Every person getting up a club will receive the Magazine for 1872 gratis, and also a splendid copy-right engraving (24 inches by 18), "Five Times One To-Day!" We can speak from personal experience of the beauty and value of this engraving. Specimens of the Magazine sent gratis if written for. Address, Charles J. Peterson, Philadelphia.

The November number of Harper's Monthly has a leading article on "Edouard Frere and Sympathetic Aid in France." Other articles are "Johnny Appleseed—a Pioneer Hero," "Ramblies in the West Indies" (from Charles Kingsley's book), and "French Royal Chateaux." Three additional chapters of "The American Barge" are given, and the story, "Annie Furness," is concluded. John G. Saxe contributes a short poem, "The Dead Letter." In "The Easy Chair," Mr. Curtis returns again to the theme "The Transcendental Epoch in New England," and talks in the finest way of Ellery Cuanning, the poet. The editorial departments are, as usual, full, fresh and entertaining.

The November number of Wood's Household Magazine contains much interesting reading by popular authors. It contains contributions by Harriet Beecher Stowe, Kate W. Hamilton, John G Saxe, Theodore Tilton, Horace Greeley, Thomas K. Beecher, Gail Hamilton, James Parton, Isaac Waldron, Jennie Joy, Dio Lewis, M. D., and others. By addressing the publishers, S. S. Wood & Co., Newburg, New York, specimen numbers may be obtained free. $1 per annum.

The November No. of Old and New contains several additional chapters of MacDonald's story, The Vicar's Daughter, which shows that it is to be a tale of more dramatic interest than he has ever attempted. Dr. Bellows contributes an elaborate criticism on the new school of English Novels. An essay by Mr. Wasson on the Dangers of Discovery will challenge the attention of all thoughtful readers. The number is especially interesting to general readers from its variety. The mystery of Hilda Hyde's Bundle is explained. $4 per annum.

The Galaxy for November has contributions from Anthony Trollope, Justin McCarthy, Henry James, Jr., Fanny Barrow, "Howard Glyndon," "Carl Benson," and others. J. D. Imboden, late a General in the Confederate service, writes some interesting "Reminiscences of Lee and Jackson," bringing to light several new facts in their career. The much talked of article on the capture of New Orleans by ex-Secretary of the Navy Gideon Welles, is evidently intended for the great glorification of that individual at every body else's expense.

The American Journal of the Medical Sciences, edited by Isaac Hayes, M. D., and published quarterly by Henry C. Lea of Philadelphia, at $5 per year, contains an immense amount of information valuable to the faculty. The list of contributors embraces the names of more than fifty medical men, many of whom are in the front rank of the profession. The work should be in the hands of every physician.

BUCHU

[From Dispensatory of the United States.]

DIOSMA CRENATA — BUCHU LEAVES.

PROPERTIES.—Their odor is strong, diffusive and somewhat aromatic; their taste bitterish and analogous to mint.

MEDICAL PROPERTIES AND USES.—Buchu leaves are gently stimulant, with a peculiar tendency to the Urinary Organs.

They are given in complaints of the Urinary Organs, such as Gravel, Chronic Catarrh of the Bladder, Morbid Irritation of the Bladder and Urethra, Disease of the Prostrate Gland, and Retention or Incontinence of Urine, from a loss of tone in the parts concerned in its evacuation. The remedy has also been recommended in Dyspepsia, Chronic Rheumatism, Cutaneous Affections and Dropsy.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is used by persons from the ages of 18 to 25, and from 35 to 45, or in the decline or change of life; after Confinement or Labor Pains; Bed-Wetting in children.

In affections peculiar to Females, the Extract Buchu is unequalled by any other remedy, as in Chlorosis or Retention, Irregularity, Painfulness or Suppression of Customary Evacuations, Ulcerated or Schirrous State of the Uterus.

DISEASES OF THE BLADDER, KIDNEYS, GRAVEL AND DROPSICAL SWELLINGS.—This medicine increases the power of Digestion, and excites the Absorbents into healthy action, by which the Watery or Calcareous depositions and all Unnatural Enlargements are reduced, as well as Pains and Inflammation.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU has cured every case of Diabetes in which it has been given. Irritation of the Neck of the Bladder and Inflammation of the Kidneys, Ulceration of the Kidneys and Bladder, Retention of Urine, Diseases of the Prostrate Gland, Stone in the Bladder, Calculus, Gravel, Brick-Dust Deposit and Mucous or Milky Discharges, and for enfeebled and delicate constitutions of both sexes, attended with the following Ing symptoms: Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Horror of Disease, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Pain in the Back, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Eruption on the Face, Pallid Countenance, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, etc.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is Diuretic and Blood-Purifying, and cures all diseases arising from habits of dissipation, excesses and imprudences in life, impurities of the Blood, etc., superceding Copaiba in affections for which it is used in connection with

MANHOOD

IN THE

Young and Rising Generation.

The vegetable powers of life are strong, but in a few years how often the pallid hue, the lack-lustre eye and emaciated form, and the impossibility of application to mental effort, show their baneful influence. It soon becomes evident to the observer that some depressing influence is checking the development of the body. Consumption is talked of, and perhaps the patient is removed from school and sent into the country. This is one of the worst movements. Removed from ordinary diversions of the ever-changing scenes of the city, the powers of the body, too much enfeebled to give zest to healthful and rural exercise, thoughts are turned inwardly upon themselves.

If the patient be a female the approach of the menses is looked for with anxiety as the first symptom in which nature is to show her saving power in diffusing the circulation and visiting the cheek with the bloom of health. Alas! increase of appetite has grown by what it is fed on. The energies of the system are prostrated, and the whole economy is deranged. The beautiful and wonder ful period in which body and mind undergoes so fascinating a change from child to woman, is looked for in vain. The parents have bleeded in anxiety, and fancies the grave but waiting for its victim.

TRY HELMBOLD'S

EXTRACT BUCHU

For Weakness Arising from Excesses or Early Indiscretion,

attended with the following symptoms: Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, General Weakness, Horror of Disease, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Dreadful Horror of Death, Night Sweats, Cold Feet, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Languor, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, Often Eruptions Appear with Dyspeptic Symptoms, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Pallid Countenance and Eruptions on the Face, Pain in the Back, Heaviness of the Eyelids, Frequently Black Spots Flying before the Eyes, with Temporary Suffusion and Loss of Sight, Want of Attention, Want of Stability, Restlessness, with Horror of Society. Nothing is more desirable to such Patients than Solitude, and nothing they more dread, for fear of themselves; no peace of mind, no carelessness, no speculation, but a hurried transition from one question to another.

ON—WHICH THIS MEDICINE IS CERTAINLY REMOVES — SOON FOLLOW LOSS OF POWER, FATUITY AND EPILEPTIC FITS, IN ONE OF WHICH THIS PATIENT MAY EXPIRE.

During the Superintendence of Dr. Wilson at the Bloomingdale Asylum, this sad result occurred to two patients. Reason has for a time left them, and both died of epilepsy. They were of both sexes, and about twenty years of age.

Who can say that these excesses are not frequently followed by those direful diseases, Insanity and Consumption? The records of the Insane Asylums, and the melancholy deaths of Consumption, bear ample witness to the truth of these assertions. In Lunatic Asylums the most melancholy exhibitions appear. The countenance is actually sodden and quite destitute; neither mirth nor grief ever visits it. Should a sound of the voice occur it is rarely articulate.

"With woful measures wan despair
Low sullen sounds their grief beguile."

While we regret the existence of the above diseases and symptoms, we are prepared to offer an invaluable gift of chemistry for the removal of the consequences.

HELMBOLD'S

Fluid Extract of Buchu.

There is no tonic like it. It is an anchor of hope to the physician and patient. This is the testimony of all who have used or prescribed it.

Beware of counterfeits and those cheap decoctions called Buchu, most of which are prepared by self-styled doctors, from deleterious ingredients, and sold for sale at "two a price" and "larger bottles," etc. They are unreliable and frequently injurious. Ask for Helmbold's. Take no other.

ARE YOU GOING TO PAINT?

—IF SO, USE THE—

AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINT.

It is Cheaper, Handsomer and more durable than the best of other Paints. One Thousand Gallons of it were sold in this City, in the year 1870, and not one complaint has come from those who have used it; but all speak in its favor; it is mixed ready for application, and is much easier put on than any other Paint, making a smooth, glossy surface for years, that can be cleaned with hot soap without injuring it. It is excellent for walls inside, in the place of paper.

I shall keep this season a large stock of Chemical Paints of all shades on hand, to accommodate customers with any amount, without delay in ordering it. Those who want to use the Chemical Paints and have had them misrepresented by those who deal in Lead and Oil, are invited to call and examine my Paints that have been on Buildings two years, and you will find them as fresh as it laid but one month.

I am prepared to do Painting by Contract, or by the day, using the Chemical Paint, or furnishing good experienced workmen by the day at very low wages. B. NORTON, only Agent for selling the

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 20, 1871.

The Fires

In Wisconsin and Michigan are attracting more general attention. The New York chamber of commerce adopted a memorial which has been forwarded to President Grant, that government aid to the sufferers in Michigan and other places will probably be necessary, and assuring him that Congress would undoubtedly sanction any outlay for this benevolent purpose. The committee of the chamber of commerce announce that future contributions received by them will be divided between the Chicago, Wisconsin and Michigan sufferers.

Chicago Incidents.

The Chicago Tribune contains a column of suggestive "Personal" advertisements, inquiring for missing persons, etc.

The torch of Hymen was not put out amid the general wreck. Twenty marriage licenses were issued there last week.

An editor of a Chicago paper has received several poetical effusions suggested by the late disaster; but he declines them all, on the ground that it is wasteful to print anything which commences each line with a capital, when capital is as scarce as it is now in Chicago.

In Ontario street, a baby 10 months old was thrown from a fourth-story window, and caught in a blanket by men congregated below. It started head downwards, like Sam Patch in his last leap, but gradually gained the perpendicular, and alighted on its feet like an athlete. The infant was somewhat worried for breath at first, and couldn't scream worth a cent in its new woolen cradle, but it gradually recovered equilibrium, and in five minutes was serenely sucking its thumb.

A Chicago merchant who lost all his books in a "chilled iron" safe, remarked that it was due, he supposed, to the fact that the fire took the chill all out.

A signboard, stuck in the ruins of a building on Madison street, reads: "Owing to circumstances over which we had no control, we have removed."

GLOUCESTER RECEIVES THE RESCUED SCHOONER.—Schooner E. A. Horton, which was captured on the Canadian fishing grounds and carried to Guysborough for the violation of the fishing laws, arrived home at Gloucester, Mass., on the 18th. The firm who own the Horton had a schooner seized last season and were put to great expense and inconvenience, and only secured her release by bonding. They thereupon resolved never to stand another seizure, but to bring their vessels home themselves at all hazards. Capt. Harvey Knowlton proceeded to Guysborough and in the disguise of a miner visited the mines and worked four days, getting out a peck or so of quartz, which he carried with him to assist in his plans of escape, being obliged to keep his men hid in the woods by day while he reconnoitred, seeking for a chance to board the schooner. At length the opportunity came, and the Horton lay abandoned apparently by the Government, the keeper having deserted her. Capt. Knowlton was soon aboard and, with the assistance of his stalwart crew, took the vessel together with her cargo, the result of the season's catch, home to her rightful owners, the hardy fisherman's wife and child. He set sail with a light heart, and for the first five days felt somewhat apprehensive of pursuit, but none came, and with the exception of two heavy gales, he had a good passage, having, however, no chart or quadrant—only a compass. On arriving come the citizens fired a salute and gave the captain and crew a royal welcome. Every was wild with joy at the successful issue of the plucky and adventurous Yankee skipper who dared to "take the responsibility." The cargo of 250 barrels was found intact.

Collector Babson is of the opinion that the United States government has no claim upon the schooner other than upon any vessel coming into port having lost her papers, and that upon a representation of the facts to the department she will be furnished with new papers. The vessel was, he considers, in the condition of one served by the process of law, and a keeper placed on board. On the departure of the keeper or guard in the fancied security of insufficient water to float the craft, her owners were at liberty to go on board and assume possession. He thinks that no violation of law has been committed, as the vessel was virtually abandoned by the officers who had her in charge, and as no violence was used in her recapture.

—Felix R. Brunot will not accept the commissionership of Indian affairs.

New Hampshire Items.

In the circuit court of the United States, at Exeter, Judge Clark presiding, John Tuomey and Lawrence Wayland of Concord were convicted of carrying on business as retailers of liquor without license, in violation of the United States law. Tuomey's counsel filed exceptions and moved arrest of judgment. Wayland was sentenced to a fine of $10 and three months' imprisonment in the Concord jail.

The Baptist church in Brentwood celebrated its centennial on the 19th.

Sally Jenness of Canaan recently took sixty grains of morphine and died.

Judge Clark, of the U. S. Circuit Court, has delivered an opinion, establishing that a man who runs a sawmill, although sawing exclusively for other people, is a manufacturer of lumber, and subject to the special tax, if he saws lumber of the value of $1000 per annum.

The Dover Enquirer says the appropriation for clearing the Cocheco River has been judiciously expended and it is probably that Gen. Thom will recommend an additional appropriation of $35,000 or $40,000.

George Kingsbury of Dover cut his left thumb nearly off while splitting wood recently.

The Swampscott Machine Co.'s workmen of South Newmarket have donated one day's wages to the Chicago sufferers, amounting to about $600.

That belt pin that Mrs. S. B. Jenness of Great Falls swallowed a while ago, has been fished out of her throat by Boston surgeons.

The city councils of Concord have appropriated $7,500 for the Chicago sufferers.

The banking institutions of Manchester hold half a million dollars of Chicago securities.

TAMMANY.—Gov. Hoffman of New York has secured the services of Chas. O'Conner to assist in the prosecution of suits instituted in behalf of the city against the perpetrators of frauds on the treasury. It is thought the prosecution will begin immediately, and that sufficient evidence has been accumulated to secure conviction, provided there is a fair trial. Governor Hoffman remarked privately that unless the democratic party was relieved from all association with the perpetrators of the frauds, its power and influence would be lost forever, and he wished for his party's sake that justice should be done immediately.

The committee of seventy has obtained some important testimony in regard to the theft of the vouchers, which they refuse to make public until the trial begins.

KU-KLUX COME TO GRIEF.—Thirty of the South Carolina Ku-Klux went into Spartansburg and voluntarily surrendered, the first reported compliance with the President's proclamation. Chalmers Butler of Newberry county was held in $3000 bail at Columbia, on the 16th, for trial before Judge Bond, in November, for participation in a midnight outrage on Edmond Chalmers, a prominent colored republican of the same county. Chalmers was taken from his house one night in August last, having been shot and dangerously wounded, knocked down, given five hundred lashes and left for dead. Several of the Ku-Klux confined in the Albany penitentiary have lately become very humble, and profess willingness to disclose all they know of the order and its evil works.

A PORTION of the Smith Paper Company's bridge over the Housatonic, at Lee, Mass., gave way on Saturday, precipitating three ladies and a gentleman down 14 feet into the river. A little girl standing near was so much frightened that she jumped in. Providentially, though the party fell on rocks and timbers, none of them were seriously injured.

ADVICES from Odessa state that 800 buildings in the town of Bogooslaw were burned by incendiary fires. It is believed to be the work of fanatical oppressors of the Jews. A great proportion of the inhabitants are of the Jewish faith.

MRS. SEGUIN, while performing in Parepa-Rosa's troupe on Monday night, was taken with paroxysms of grief and removed to her hotel, consequent on the announcement that her daughter, Mrs. Frodsham, was killed at the Chicago fire.

SCHOONER H. C. WINSLOW was struck by a gale on Sunday, off Point Brules in Lake Michigan, and capsized. The crew were saved, but the wife and two daughters of a passenger were drowned.

CHOLERA has again appeared in Constatinople and its suburbs. In two days sixty persons died, ten of whom were Englishmen.

AN EXTRAORDINARY INCIDENT.—During the silly season animals in London appear very obligingly to perform most remarkable feats. We are all familiar with the image of "bull in a china shop," but a few days ago its equivalent occurred in the shape of an ox in a glass shop. Opposite the Charing Cross hotel is an immense glass shop in which one morning lately an over-brazen ox took refuge. It was discreetly treated and scarcely did any damage. On the 2d instant a more extraordinary incident took place. A four-wheeled cab turned out of Cheapside into Gutter lane. The driver attempted for some reason or other to turn round. The horse then became restive, and dashing against the cellar window of the nearest shop, smashed the glass, and getting its head and fore legs down the cellar commenced struggling and kicking violently.

Its hindquarters were now the only part of the animal visible from the street, and any attempts to draw it backward seemed futile. As soon as the harness was loosened or cut the horse plunged forward and disappeared. As many of the crowd which was soon collected as could get near enough to peep, asserted that the animal was now to be seen standing upright in the cellar, whence there seemed but little chance of its being extricated alive. A horse slaughterer was sent for to remove it dead or alive. Some of the stones of the pavement were taken up, and the aperture enlarged. The horse's legs were encased in straw and tied together, and after it had been five hours under ground it was drawn up by ropes, and shortly after walked off, apparently not seriously injured by its unprecedented experience.—London Paper.

—A marriage between Charles and Mary Lell, chronicled in a Western paper, silences forever the geometrical theory that their can be no union between pair o' Lells.—N. Y. World.

—The lamp in a New York horse-car followed the custom of all non-explosives, and used up the passengers generally.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

Lung fever, common cold, catarrhal fever, and nasal discharge of a brownish color in horses, may be checked at once by liberal use of Sheridan's Cavalry Condition Powders.

The season for coughs and colds is rapidly approaching, and every one should be prepared to check the first symptoms, as a cough contracted between now and Christmas frequently lasts all winter. There is no better remedy than "Johnson's Anodyne Liniment." For all diseases of throat and lungs, it should be used internally and externally.

An Anchor to Windward.

It is good seamanship, where there is reason to expect heavy weather, to drop an anchor to windward.

We are in the midst of the season of chills and fever. The sure preventive of this distressing malady is HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS. A course of that wholesome vegetable tonic will render an attack impossible. Take the hint and drop an anchor to windward.

Weak stomachs are most liable to be disordered late in the autumn, when the changes of temperature are marked and frequent. Hostetter's Bitters fortifies the stomach against the effects of these variations. Let dyspeptics make a note of the fact, and drop an anchor to windward.

The liver is most sensitive when the weather is continually alternative between the warmth of summer and the cold of winter than at any other period of the year. This is peculiarly the season of such alterations. Let the bilious remember that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is essentially an anti-bilious medicine, and drop an anchor to windward.

The wisest plan is to forestall evil. The next best thing is to arrest it. For disorders of the stomach, irregularities of the bowels, and all periodical fevers, take, as soon as the complaint developes itself, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters.

—French heels have been nearly entirely discarded in Oil City. The sidewalks being made of rafted lumber, and full of peg-holes, the girls frequently found their heels fast, and a whole section of side-walk had to be torn up before they could continue their promenade. The authorities have passed an ordinance lately requiring every sidewalk owner to keep a set of jack-screws and pully-blocks on the premises, in readiness for such accidents.—Titusville Herald.

THE DOMESTIC SEWING MACHINE.—Since the Domestic Sewing Machine was awarded the "First Premium" at the late State Fair at Dover, the rush for them has been even greater than ever; Mr. E. A. Joy, the fortunate Agent, whose rooms are adjoining our office, is unable to set them up as fast as they are called for, notwithstanding he has lately employed an able assistant. Everybody who buys a "Domestic" seems happy. At the State Fair it was found to be the only Machine in the world having self adjusting tensions. It was in operation four days, using all kinds of thread on all sorts of goods, without any change of tensions. If you don't examine it before purchasing any other, you will wish you had.

1871. LYCEUM COURSE. 1872.

IN arranging the programme for a course of Popular Lectures, Readings, &c., to be given in the

Universalist Church

for the season of 1871—2, the committee believe this list has the largest number of distinguished names ever offered to the Portsmouth public, and that the Course will present attractions not surpassed in point of interest and variety. They will appear in the order announced:

NOV. 2, Maj. Gen. JUDSON KILPATRICK,
Subject: "The American Stump." A new, instructive and amusing lecture.

NOV. 9, Rev. W. H. H. MURRAY.
Subject: "Deacons." A new lecture.

NOV. 16, JAMES T. FIELDS.
Subject: "A Plea for Cheerfulness."

NOV. 22, GEORGE WILLIAM CURTIS.
Subject: "Women in the Old time and the New."

NOV. 30. To be announced.

DEC. 7, Rev. WILLIAM R. NICHOLSON, D. D.
Subject: "Civilization and Poverty."

DEC. 14, Rev. E. E. HALE.
Subject: "He Did his Level Best," A Story This is an entirely new feature, arranged especially for Lyceums, and has proved to be an exceedingly attractive one.

DEC. 21, Mrs. MARY A. LIVERMORE,
Subject: "What shall we do with our Daughters?"

JAN. 4, PROF. MOSES T. BROWN, and DR. J. H. WILLCOX.
Entertainment: Organ Concert. Miscellaneous Readings, by Prof. Brown, from favorite authors, with some character sketches.
Organ Recitals by Dr. Willcox performed on the fine new organ recently placed in this church.

JAN. 11, Prof. C. H. HITCHCOCK.
Subject: "Life above the Clouds; or, Mt. Washington in Midwinter," illustrated with noted Stereoscopic Views of frost work, exhibited by the aid of a Stereopticon and Calcium Light.

The organ will be exhibited each evening.

TICKETS for this Course are now ready, at the stores of Messrs. Shores, Preston, Thacher and Hill.

PRICE $1,50 FOR THE COURSE.

No single evening tickets will be issued.

As the number to be sold is limited to the comfortable seating capacity of the church, those desiring to attend should secure their tickets without delay, as a large number are already taken up.

Ushers will be in attendance each evening.

Retaliation.

A correspondent of the Maine Democrat says that Henry Remick of Kittery has recently commenced a civil action in the Supreme Court, against Henry B. Remick of that place, for injuries sustained by receiving the contents of a revolver discharged at him by defendant several month since at Kittery Foreside, laying damages at $5000.

Communicated.

The Fire Department.

Messrs. Editors:—In reply to the Old Fire-ward, in your issue of Thursday, I can say that if the City Government of the last three years had adopted one half of the really good recommendations made them by live firemen, (some of those Governments,) the fire department of this city would to-day be second to none in the country both in its efficiency and economy,—the opposition to those recommendations being generally from Old Fire-wards. Ex-ENGINEER.

Universalist S. S. Convention.

The Sunday School exhibition in the Universalist church, Wednesday evening was attended by a churchfull of people, and pleased the audience greatly. The exercises consisted of recitations, dialogues and singing. A song, "Come, Birdie, Come," by Miss Lucy M. Locke, was very pleasing, and a humorous dialogue, "A Love of a Bonnett," by six young ladies, was finely rendered and greatly enjoyed. The convention adjourned Thursday afternoon.

The State Teachers' Association

Will meet in Dover on Thursday and Friday next. Fare at the hotels will be from $1.25 to $1.50 per day, and free return tickets over the various railroads will be furnished. The programme embraces a discussion on Compulsory Education, Practical Education by Prof. Quinby, discussions on Methods of Teaching, etc., Studies in an English Course, and School Discipline. The Question Drawer, vocal music, readings, singing, etc., will make the occasion one of interest. We hope our School Committees will think it their duty to close the schools both days in order that every teacher may be able to attend.

VIVAT ROBESON.—We have great respect for the jolly Secretary of the Navy. He is ever in too good humor to neglect justice. He is eminently practical, is possessed of sterling common sense, and shows it in his dealings with the rowdies in attendance at the Annapolis benevolent cemetery. The barbarous custom of "hazing" the younger attendants on that institution has become firmly fastened on it, and the fair-minded Secretary rebukes it by reminding the cowardly persecutors that while mere youthful vivacity and mischief may be overlooked, persistent blackguardism is inconsistent with the character of an officer and a gentleman, and will not be tolerated—which does honor to the kind hearted Secretary and the position he fills.

Contributions

For Chicago are as follows:—New York $2,000,000; Boston $400,000; San Francisco $150,000; Worcester $40,000; Hartford $30,000; New Bedford $14,000; Portland, Oregon, $10,000; Lowell, $9000.

Base Ball.

NEW SUBSCRIBERS who now pay in advance for the DAILY CHRONICLE or N. H. GAZETTE for the year 1872, will receive either paper gratis until January. We will furnish the GAZETTE and the Concord Independent Statesman from this date to July 1, 1872, for $2 in advance to new subscribers.

THE NATIONAL INSURANCE CONVENTION met in New York on the 18th. The president thought that the New York companies would pay ninety per cent. of their losses.

—It is calculated that Russia can raise, within a few days, an army of 1,700,000 soldiers. Great improvements have been made in all military matters. They are now trying at St. Petersburg a mitrailleuse which beats all inventions of the same kind, and the infantry are to be armed with the chassepot.

Contributed.

The Tomb of the Pepperells.

An interesting article with the above title contributed to the CHRONICLE of Sept. 11th, imparts valuable historical information regarding the sarcophagus, but is incorrect in stating that the death of Miss Harriot Hirst Sparhawk "ended the line of the Pepperells," as there are still about 25 lineal descendants of Sir William Pepperell living, although it is true that the name has become extinct.

Elizabeth, the only daughter of Sir William and Lady Mary (Hirst) Pepperell, married Col. Nathaniel Sparhawk. Samuel Hirst Sparhawk, their third son, was the father of Miss H. H. Sparhawk; but Nathaniel, their oldest son, was married three times and had six children. Nathaniel's eldest daughter, Eliza, married Dr. Spooner of Boston. Their only daughter, Elizabeth Sparhawk Spooner, married Edward Jarvis, Esq., of Ellsworth, Me., and she is still living, with her four children and two grandchildren, in Columbia, California, to which place they removed before her husband's death.

Nathaniel's youngest daughter, Mary Pepperell, was born at Kittery in the old mansion built by Sir William Pepperell for his daughter when she was married. Mary Pepperell married Hon. William Jarvis, then (and for nine years) Consul-General and Charge d'Affairs at Lisbon. They had two children; viz., Mary Pepperell Sparhawk Jarvis and Elizabeth Bartlett Jarvis. Mary P. S. Jarvis married Hampden Cutts, Esq., of Portsmouth, now residing in Brattleboro', Vt. Elizabeth B. Jarvis married David Everett Wheeler, Esq., of New York. Mrs. Cutts,* three of her children and eight grand-children are living. Mrs. Wheeler's son, Everett Pepperell, and her daughter, Mary H., reside in New York. The former is an eminent lawyer, who married Miss Hodges of Washington, D. C., and they have two children. His sister (Mary H.) married Rev. Cornelius B. Smith, Rector of St. James' Church, N. Y., and they have two children.

Thus it is evident that Mrs. Dr. Spooner and Mrs. William Jarvis were first cousins of Miss Harriot H. Sparhawk; all three were grand-daughters of Col. and Madame Sparhawk, and of course great-granddaughters of Sir William Pepperell; and the children of Mrs. Dr. Spooner and Mrs. William Jarvis are quite as much in direct line from Sir William Pepperell as was Miss H. H. Sparhawk.

The only sister of Samuel H. Sparhawk married Dr. Charles Jarvis of Boston, a distinguished physician, orator and patriot, and brother of the Consul. During the last illness of her brother, she was requested by him to adopt his daughter, then a child of six years, which she consented to do. Dr. and Mrs. Charles Jarvis gave her an excellent education and inspired that taste for literature, which, next to her firm faith in our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ, afforded her the richest resources in the retirement and infirmities of her old age. After Dr. Charles Jarvis' death, his widow and Miss H. H. Sparhawk spent a year in Lisbon with Mr. and Mrs. Jarvis, and returned with them to the United States. When he removed to Weathersfield, Vt., after his wife's death they accompanied him, and there passed a year. In 1812 Mrs. Dr. Charles Jarvis went to her mother's old mansion at Kittery, where her health failed, and her adopted daughter manifested truly filial affection in her attentions to her. She died in 1814, and was interred in the old tomb, having made Miss Sparhawk her heir, and consequently the possessor of numerous relics of the Pepperells, together with the "Tomb Lot."

After Col. Sparhawk's death, his widow was persuaded by her daughter (Mrs. Dr. Charles Jarvis) to reside in Boston. The state of Massachusetts allowed her $30,000 for her right to the lands devised her by her father, Sir William† Pepperell. At her death in 1797 she bequeathed a considerable portion of her property to her daughter, and a handsome legacy to her granddaughter, (Miss H. H. Sparhawk) which was put in trust for her. She was then fourteen, and this would make her eighty-eight years of age at the time of her death. Miss Sparhawk spent much time at Consul Jarvis', after his second marriage in 1817, and in later years with his married daughters; for she was much attached to him and his children; —but after his death in 1859, she never left Portsmouth.

* Mrs. Cutts was present at Miss Sparhawk's funeral solemnities, and followed "the last sad relics of mortality" to the tomb; and Mr. Wheeler would have been present, had he received the telegram in time.

† For more particulars of the Pepperells and Sparhawks, see "Life and Times of William Jarvis," pp. 309—427.

CHESAPEAKE & OHIOS — FIVE TWENTIES—CENTRAL PACIFICS.

BANKING OFFICE OF

FISK & HATCH,

No. 5 Nassau Street, New York.

September 25th, 1871.

Of the FIFTEEN MILLION CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO SIX PER CENT. LOAN, but about $4,500,000 remain unsold, and this remainder will be taken up rapidly.

The five years' option having expired on all series of FIVE-TWENTY BONDS, except 1867s and 1868s, they are liable to be called in for payment. The redemption of 160 millions FIVE-TWENTIES in coin, and the purchases by the Government during the ensuing four months, with the premium thereon, will release about 150 millions of invested capital, independently of dividend and interest payments, the greater part of which must seek reinvestment.

The Chesapeake and Ohio Sizes

have absolutely 30 years to run; are especially desirable for steady investments, and can now be bought

17 per cent. less than Ten-forties.
20 per cent. less than Five-twenties,
25 per cent. less than Sixes of 1881,

and are equally sure to be paid principal and interest in gold coin. Their amount is limited by the Trust Deed to $15,000,000. Price (at present) 93 and accrued interest, that is, with coupon attached, payable Nov. 1.

$1000 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $954.16.

$500 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $477.08.

$100 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $95.42.

Only a small amount of the latter denominations remains, and no more can be made. Bonds are in coupon or register form, same as Five-twenties.

The debt is created by the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad Company in order more speedily and effectually to extend and complete the main line of their Road to the Ohio River. This work —the most important internal improvement now progressing in the country—is rapidly approaching completion. It will establish another and superior line of communication between the Ohio and Mississippi valleys and the eastern cities; bringing ten millions of people, mainly producers, nearer to the centres of consumption in the Eastern States, and nearer to the political and commercial capitals of their country. Such is the commanding importance of this Trunk Line that the larger cities of the West are projecting feeders to connect with it, so as to avail themselves of its unequalled facilities as soon as it is completed. Large tracts of valuable coal and iron lands along its route are passing into the hands of practical miners and iron manufacturers; a large city is springing up at the western terminus, the head of reliable navigation on the Ohio, where it intersects 12,000 miles of river transit, and will soon be in connection with 30,000 miles of railroad carriage.

The CENTRAL PACIFIC SIX PER CENT. BONDS are a safe for investment as Government Bonds Their amount fixed by act of Congress at $25,885,000, is secured by property worth four times their value; they can only be bought in the open market, and are becoming scarcer in consequence of their gradual absorption by investors here and in Europe; they have a ready market in all the principal money-centres, and have twenty-four years to run; the earnings of the road are steadily increasing, and will probably reach $10,000,000 for the current year, affording a handsome surplus after payment of expenses and interest. Present price, 101½ to 102.

When the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad is completed, in 1872, and the Bonds are dealt in at the Stock Exchanges of the world, we have no doubt they will be equally popular with the Central Pacifics. Both principal and interest of the CENTRAL PACIFIC and CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO BONDS, are specifically payable in gold coin in New York; the interest on the former being paid January and July, and of the latter, May and November, corresponding with the two classes of Five-twenties.

We buy and sell FIVE-TWENTIES, TEN-FORTIES, EIGHTY-ONES, and CENTRAL or WESTERN PACIFICS, or receive them in payment for CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO BONDS at their current market price.

Orders for Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds, accompanied with Drafts or Checks, may be forwarded to us by mail. Bonds or money may be forwarded by any responsible Express Company at our expense, and the Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds, in exchange, will be sent by return Express, charges paid. FISK & HATCH.

P. S.—Accounts of Banks, Bankers and others received, on which we allow Four Per Cent. interest.

Certificates of deposit issued and collections made in all parts of the Union.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs,
No. 78 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity of a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents.

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges.

A PLACE FOR THE LEAN!

Say, old boy, where shall we meet?
Why, at Garrety's, on Daniel Street.
He's such a jolly fellow;
His LAGER is always fresh and prime,
It never wants a "head" and is
Refreshing, cool and mellow!
You require, my boy, some filling out,
You're thin, and meagre-looking;
Lager would give you the proper size,
Look at the host, he once was scant,
His BEER has made of flesh no want,
Go thou and drink likewise.

New Books.

Hurd & Houghton publish "Zanita, A Tale of the Yo Semite," a book of 296 pages, by Therese Yelverton. It is a work of thrilling adventure in the picturesque Yo Semite region woven into a narrative which the reader will wish to finish ere laying down the book. It may be ordered of Lee & Shepard, Boston, through any of our local book sellers. Price $1.50.

The same publishers have also issued "The Last Knight," a translation from the German, with notes, by John O. Sargent. It is a series of ballads founded on incidents in the life of Maximilian I., 1459—1518. The stirring incidents of that heroic time, the magnificent nuptials of Maximilian and Mary, the contest between France and Germany, and all the circumstances of romantic adventure, render the subject a most brilliant one. Price $2.50.

Our young folks who are a little sated with the torrent of infantine talk, offered for their nourishment at all seasons, will find a refreshing change of mental diet, in the Stories from Old English Poetry, by Abby Sage Richardson. This writer has condensed in simple form, the wealth of Chaucer, Spencer, Shakespeare and other poets in a volume of 280 pages, of charming reading. Some of these stories are related in such a playful, captivating manner, that the ancient and well-worn narratives read like fresh fairy tales. This book is handsomely printed and illustrated, is issued by Hurd & Houghton, New York, and is for sale by Lee & Shepard.

Sheldon & Co., of New York, have added a gem of a book to the literature of American by the publication of a volume of 223 pages "Choice Specimens of American Literature," the cream of the production of our best authors, by Prof. Benj. N. Martin. The extracts are of necessity very brief but are as "apples of gold."

"Stimulants and Narcotics" is a work by Dr. Geo. M. Beard, who considers them "medically, philosophically and morally." Published by G. P. Putnam & Sons, New York, and for sale by Foster Shores & Co. Price 50 cts.

Sheldon & Co. have also issued a pamphlet edition of "Geordand," which the Galaxy readers are familiar with. It is written in J. W. DeForest's best humor, and is not only thrilling in interest but faithfully describes the Great Canon. It is vastly superior to the Sylvanus Cobb series of adventure and style of literature.

The Judge's Pets. Stories of a family and its dumb friends. By E. Johnson. Illustrated. These are stories both of the six children and pets of the Judge's family. The incidents are taken with strict regard to their truth and are told with a simplicity and freedom from ostentatious writing which will commend them to all readers. For sale by Lee & Shepard. Price $1.25.

Four, and What They Did. By Helen C. Weeks, author of "Alnslee", with illustrations Published by Hurd & Houghton. Among the many new books for children, we know of no more which are more sought after than those written by Mrs. Weeks, who is one of the brightest and most natural writers for the young.—For sale by Lee & Shepard. Price $1.25.

The Clockmaker: Sayings and Doings of Samuel Slick of Slickville. By Hon. Thomas Chandler Haliburton. With illustrations by F. O. C. Darley. Published by Hurd & Houghton. Price 1.25. The Clockmaker first appeared in form of a series of letters to the "Nova Scotian" newspapers in 1835, they were collected in book form and published in 1837 and were eagerly read, both in America and England, the wit of the book making it equally enjoyable on both sides of the water. The celebrity of this humorous work has induced the publishers to reprint it.

"Lady Judith," by Justin McCarthy, which has for some time delighted the readers of the "Galaxy," has been published in book form, with illustrations by Sheldon & Co. The story is continuously vivid and highly interesting.

Godey's Lady's Book for November has a fine steel plate. Colored Fashion plate, containing six figures. Colored of Winter Hoods. A Bad Day's Sport. Flowers and Flower Baskets, twenty four engravings. An extra sheet of Fashions and Lingerie, fifty-four engravings. A plate of Walking Dresses. Suburban Residence, with plan. Besides a variety of useful designs in the Work Department. The literary matter is interesting and instructive.

The N. E. Historical & Genealogical Register (quarterly.) for October, is published by the N. E. Historic, Genealogical Society. $3 per annum. This number contains—as does every number yet published—a varied, valuable and most interesting list of contents.

THE AMERICAN WASHER!
Price, $5.50.

The American Washer Saves Money, Time, and Drudgery.

The Fatigue of Washing Day no Longer Dreaded, but Economy, Efficiency, and Clean Clothing, Sure.

In calling public attention to this little machine, a few of the invaluable qualities, (not possessed by any other washing machine yet invented,) are here enumerated.

It is the smallest, most compact, most portable, most simple in construction, most easily operated. A child ten years old, with a few hours' practice, can thoroughly comprehend and effectually use it. There is no wedging, no screws to annoy, no delay in adapting! It is always ready for use! It is a perfect little wonder! It is a source of comfort, and a blessing of a better quality, than the most elaborate and costly. One half of the labor is ably saved by its use, and the clothes will last one-half longer than by the old plan of the rub board. It will wash the largest blanket. Three shirts at a time, washing thoroughly! In a word, the ability of any fabric, to be washed, without injury, the Cambric Handkerchief, are equally within the capacity of this LITTLE GEM! It can be extended to any tub and taken off at will.

No matter how deep rooted a prejudice may exist against Washing Machines, the moment this little machine is seen to perform its wonders, all doubts of its cleansing efficacy and utility are banished, and the doubter and detracter at once become the fast friends of the machine.

We have testimonials without end, setting forth its numerous advantages over all others, and from housewives who have tried almost the unwieldy, useless machines which have signally failed to accomplish the perfect promised in prominent and loud sounding advertisements.

It is as perfect for washing as a wringer is for wringing. The price and the paramount influence to purchasers, has been placed so low that it is within the reach of every housekeeper, and there is no article of domestic economy that will repay the small investment so soon.

All that is asked for this GREAT LABOR SAVER, is a fair trial. We guarantee each machine to do its work perfectly.

A GREAT MEDICAL DISCOVERY!

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA

VINEGAR BITTERS,

Hundreds of Thousands Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.

WHAT ARE THEY!

THEY ARE NOT A VILE FANCY DRINK, Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Roots and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and a LIFE-GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to direction and remain long unwell, provided the bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the stomach and stimulate the torpid liver and bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effect.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins, cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

PIN, TAPE and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. For full directions, read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French and Spanish.

FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal. ☞ Send for a circular.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs. lyndawfeb16

The Cause and Cure of Consumption.

The primary cause of Consumption is derangement of the digestive organs. The derangement produces deficient nutrition and assimilation. By assimilation I mean that process by which the nutriment of the food is converted into blood, and thence into the solids of the body. Persons with digestion thus impaired, having the slightest predisposition to pulmonary disease, or if they take cold, will be very liable to have Consumption of the Lungs in some of its forms; and I hold that it will be impossible to cure any case of Consumption without first restoring a good digestion and healthy assimilation. The very first thing to be done is to cleanse the stomach and bowels from all diseased mucous and slime which is clogging these organs so that they cannot perform their functions, and then rouse up the torpid liver to a healthy action. For this purpose, the surest and best remedy is SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS. These Pills cleanse the stomach and bowels of all the diseased mucous and slime that is causing disease and decay in the whole system. They will clear out the liver of all diseased bile that has accumulated there, and rouse it up to a new and healthy action, by which natural and healthy bile is secreted.

The stomach, bowels and liver are thus cleansed by the use of Schenck's Mandrake Pills, but there remains in the stomach an excess of acid, the organ is torpid, and the appetite is poor. In the bowels, the bacteria are weak, and requiring strength and support. It is this condition like this that Schenck's Seaweed Tonic proves to be the most valuable remedy ever discovered. It is alkaline, and its use will neutralize all excess of acid, making the stomach sweet and fresh; it will give permanent tone to this important organ, and create a good, hearty appetite, and prepare the system for the first process of a good digestion, and ultimately make good, healthy, living blood. After this preparatory treatment, what remains to cure the most cases of consumption is the free and persevering use of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup. The Pulmonic Syrup, by attacking the system, carries the blood, and is readily absorbed into the circulation, and thence distributed to the diseased lungs. There it ripens all morbid matter, whether in the form of tubercles or tubercles, and then assists Nature to expel all the diseased matter in the form of free expectoration, when once it ripens. It is then, by the great healing and purifying properties of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, that all ulcers and cavities are healed up sound, and my patient is cured.

The essential thing to be done in curing Consumption is to get up a good appetite and a good digestion, so that the body will grow in flesh and get strong. If a person has diseased lungs, no matter of abscess there, the cavity cannot heal, the matter cannot ripen, so long as the system is below par. What is necessary to cure is a vigorous digestion, a good appetite, a good nutrition, the body to grow in flesh and get fat; then Nature is helped, the cavities will heal, the matter will ripen and be thrown off in large quantities, and the person regains health and strength. This is the true and only plan to cure Consumption and Scrofula, very bad, if the lungs are not entirely destroyed, or even if one lung is entirely gone, if there is enough vitality left in the other to heal up, there is hope.

I have seen many persons cured with only one sound lung, live and enjoy life to a good old age. This is what Schenck's medicines will do to cure Consumption. They will clean out the stomach, sweeten and strengthen it, get up a good digestion, and give Nature the assistance she needs to cure the external disease that is in the lungs, whatever the form may be.

It is important that, while using Schenck's medicines, care should be exercised not to take cold; keep in-doors in cold and damp weather; avoid night air, and take out-door exercise only in a genial and warm sunshine.

I wish it distinctly understood that when I recommend a patient to be careful in regard to taking cold while using my medicines, I do so for a special reason. A man who has just partially recovered from the effects of a bad cold is far more liable to a relapse than one who has been entirely cured, and it is precisely the same in regard to consumption. So long as the lungs are not perfectly healed, just so long is there imminent danger or a full return of the disease. Hence it is that I so strenuously advise pulmonary patients against exposing themselves to an atmosphere that is not genial and pleasant. On the contrary, remaining in a room full of wire, which the least change of atmosphere will inflame. The grand secret of my success with my medicines consists in my ability to substantiate my statements instead of provoking it as many of the faculty do. An infuriated lung cannot with safety to the patient be exposed to the biting blast of winter or the chilling winds of spring or autumn. It should be carefully shielded from all irritating influence. The utmost caution should be observed in this regard, or without it a cure under almost any circumstances is an impossibility.

The person should be kept on a wholesome and nutritious diet, and the medicine continued until the body has restored to it the natural quantity of flesh and strength.

I was myself cured by this treatment of the worst kind of Consumption, and have lived to get fat and hearty these many years, with one lung nearly gone. I have cured thousands since, and very many have been cured by this treatment whom I have never seen.

About the first of October I expect to take possession of my new building at the northeast corner of Sixth and Arch Streets, where I shall be pleased to give advice to all who may require it.

Full directions accompany all my remedies, so that a person in any part of the world can be readily cured by a strict observance of the same.

New Publications.

Mrs. Cornelius' Cook Book, and Young Housekeeper's Friend, has been before the public more than 25 years, during which time it has steadily grown in favor, and no book on the subject has attained so wide and deserved popularity. Thousands of American families will gratefully acknowledge their indebtedness for happy and well-regulated homes to Mrs. Cornelius' counsels and suggestions, and to her always reliable directions for preparing a healthful table. Many choice receipts have been substituted for some of the old ones, and the work enlarged by the addition of more than one hundred and fifty new receipts, tested by experienced housekeepers; full directions for canning fruits; an important chapter on "Health," and many additional pages of counsels and suggestions, all of great value to housekeepers. Thompson, Bigelow & Brown, publishers, No. 25 & 29 Cornhill, Boston. For sale by Foster Shores & Co. Price $1.50.

Among the Ladies' Magazines, Arthur's "Home" has, for twenty years, maintained a high reputation. The November number is very attractive. The two beautiful engravings, "The Children's Offering," and "The Puppies' Nursery," the last a double-page cartoon, are works of art of high merit. The fashion pages are full of new costumes, and the literary department rich in stories and articles suited to all readers. $2 a year. T. S. Arthur & Sons, Philadelphia, Pa.

The November number of The Children's Hour is on our table. We recommend all who wish to put in the hands of their little one's a magazine that "speaks through simple forms of language the highest truths," to send to T. S. Arthur & Sons, Philadelphia, Pa., for a specimen number; $1.25 a year.

THEOLOGICAL DISCIPLINE IN THE ARMY.—On Sewell Mountain, a short time before our army fell back to Gauley in great haste upon the very night the enemy retreated in the opposite direction, General Rosecrans, who went about in a common soldier's overcoat and under a slouch hat attempted to pass the guard on the mountain side. The guard came promptly to a charge and ordered the unknown to stand back.

"But, my good fellow," cried Rosey, "I must pass."

"Can't do it without the countersign."

"I haven't the countersign, but I am General Rosecrans."

"Oh, the devil! That's played."

"What do you mean—who do you take me for?"

"Take you for? Why for what you are—one of them damned old wagoners trying to get out to steal chickens."

This made Rosey perfectly furious, and, although a pious man, he broke into a tirade of profanity. The guard responded, and a little theological discussion followed, more emphatic than polite. In the midst of it the corporal of the guard, hearing the row, came to the rescue. He recognized the general and the poor soldier began apologizing.

"Never mind," said Rosey, "you're a good fellow and did your duty; but, my man, you musn't swear so. You jeopardize your precious soul by such profanity."

That man was promoted; he rose in rank. And having been desperately wounded in his coat-tail he came out of the war a brevet-wagon-master, and went to Congress.

A REALLY GOOD INVENTION.—It is very seldom we commend to the public in this way patent improvements and inventions, which belong more properly to our advertising columns. What we have to commend, however, so deeply concerns the health, happiness and comfort of our American women, that we make no apology for giving it our most emphatic approval and endorsement. The invention referred to is the great American Washer, which is claimed to be in every conceivable respect superior to any other "washer" extant. It is the smallest, most compact, most portable, most easily operated, and is not at all liable to get out of order. Its construction is so simple, that even a child can be successfully taught to operate in an incredible short space of time.

Some of the most prominent and desirable features in this "washer," which is an inducement in itself, are worthy of especial commendation. They are these: It is always ready for use; there is no adjusting; no screws to confuse and annoy, and no delay whatever, in adapting it. Everything seems to have been done that ingenuity could suggest; and in our estimation it is simply a practical, sensible and beautiful invention, and only requires to be seen to be appreciated, which cannot fail to please the taste of the most fastidious.—Philadelphia Weekly Press.

A NEW VOLUME OF SCRIBNER'S MAGAZINE commences with the October Number. It will be enlarged and greatly improved, and the publishers intend that it shall be "unsurpassed in Literary and Artistic Excellency by any Periodical of its kind."

BUCHU

[From Dispensatory of the United States.]

DIOSMA CRENATA — BUCHU LEAVES.

PROPERTIES.—Their odor is strong, diffusive and somewhat aromatic; their taste bitterish and analogous to mint.

MEDICAL PROPERTIES AND USES.—Buchu leaves are gently stimulant, with a peculiar tendency to the Urinary Organs.

They are given in complaints of the Urinary Organs, such as Gravel, Chronic Catarrh of the Bladder, Morbid Irritation of the Bladder and Urethra, Disease of the Prostrate Gland, and Retention or Incontinence of Urine, from a loss of tone in the parts concerned in its evacuation. The remedy has also been recommended in Dyspepsia, Chronic Rheumatism, Cutaneous Affections and Dropsy.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is used by persons from the ages of 18 to 25, and from 35 to 55, or in the decline or change of life; after Confinement or Labor Pains; Bed-Wetting in children.

In affections peculiar to Females, the Extract Buchu is unequalled by any other remedy, as in Chlorosis or Retention, Irregularity, Painfulness or Suppression of Customary Evacuations, Ulcerated or Schirrous State of the Uterus.

DISEASES OF THE BLADDER, KIDNEYS, GRAVEL AND DROPSICAL SWELLINGS.—This medicine increases the power of Digestion, and excites the Absorbents into healthy action, by which the Watery or Calcareous depositions and all Unnatural Enlargements are reduced, as well as Pains and Inflammation.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU has cured every case of Diabetes in which it has been given. Irritation of the Neck of the Bladder and Inflammation of the Kidneys, Ulceration of the Kidneys and Bladder, Retention of Urine, Diseases of the Prostrate Gland, Stone in the Bladder, Calculus, Gravel, Brick-Dust Deposit and Mucous or Milky Discharges, and for enfeebled and delicate constitutions of both sexes, attended with the following symptoms: Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Horror of Disease, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Pain in the Back, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Eruption on the Face, Pallid Countenance, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, etc.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is Diuretic and Blood-Purifying, and cures all diseases arising from habits of dissipation, excesses and imprudences in life, impurities of the Blood, etc., superseding Copaiba in affections for which it is used in connection with

MANHOOD

IN THE

Young and Rising Generation.

The vegetable powers of life are strong, but in a few years how often the pallid hue, the lack-lustre eye and emaciated form, and the impossibility of application to mental effort, show their baneful influence. It soon becomes evident to the observer that some depressing influence is checking the development of the body. Consumption is talked of, and perhaps the youth is removed from school and sent into the country. This is one of the worst movements. Removed from ordinary diversions of the ever-changing scenes of the city, the powers of the body, too much enfeebled to give zest to healthful and rural exercise, thoughts are turned inwardly upon themselves.

If the patient be a female the approach of the menses is looked for with anxiety as the first symptom in which nature is to show her saving power in diffusing the circulation and visiting the cheek with the bloom of health. Alas! increase of appetite has grown by what it is fed on. The energies of the system are prostrated, and the whole economy is deranged. The beautiful and wonderful period in which body and mind undergo so fascinating a change from child to woman, is looked for in vain. The parent's heart bleeds in anxiety, and fancies the grave but waiting for its victim.

TRY HELMBOLD'S

EXTRACT BUCHU

For Weakness Arising from Excesses or Early Indiscretion,

attended with the following symptoms: Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, General Weakness, Horror of Disease, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Dreadful Horror of Death, Night Sweats, Cold Feet, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Languor, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, Often Enormous Appetite with Dyspeptic Symptoms, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Pallid Countenance and Eruptions on the Face, Pain in the Back, Heaviness of the Eyelids, Frequently Black Spots Flying before the Eyes, with Temporary Suffusion and Loss of Sight, Want of Attention, Great Mobility, Restlessness, with Horror of Society. Nothing is more desirable to such Patients than Solitude, and nothing they more dread, for fear of themselves; no repose of matter, no earnestness, no speculation, but a hurried transition from one question to another.

THESE SYMPTOMS, IF ALLOWED TO GO ON—WHICH THIS MEDICINE INVARIABLY REMOVES — SOON FOLLOW LOSS OF POWER, FATUITY AND EPILEPTIC FITS, IN ONE OF WHICH THE PATIENT MAY EXPIRE.

During the Superintendence of Dr. Wilson at the Bloomingdale Asylum, this sad result occurred to two patients. Reason has for a time left them, and both died of epilepsy. They were of both sexes, and about twenty years of age.

Who can say that these excesses are not frequently followed by those direful diseases, Insanity and Consumption? The records of the Insane Asylums, and the melancholy deaths of Consumption, bear ample witness to the truth of these assertions. In Lunatic Asylums the most melancholy exhibitions appear. The countenance is actually sodden and quite destitute; neither mirth nor grief ever visits it. Should a sound of the voice occur it is rarely articulate.

"With woful measures wan despair
Low sullen sounds their grief beguile."

While we regret the existence of the above diseases and symptoms, we are prepared to offer an invaluable gift of chemistry for the removal of the consequences.

HELMBOLD'S

Fluid Extract of Buchu.

There is no tonic like it. It is an anchor of hope to the physician and patient. This is the testimony of all who have used or prescribed it.

Beware of counterfeits and those cheap decoctions called Bachu, most of which are prepared by self-styled doctors, from deleterious ingredients, and offered for sale at "less price" and "larger bottles," etc. They are unreliable and frequently injurious. Ask for Helmbold's. Take no other.

ARE YOU GOING TO PAINT?

—IF SO, USE THE—

AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINT.

It is Cheaper, Handsomer and more durable than the best of other Paints. One Thousand Gallons of it were sold in this City, in the year 1870, and not one complaint has come from those who have used it; but all speak in its favor; it is mixed ready for application, and is much easier put on than any other Paint, making a smooth, glossy surface for years, that can be cleaned with hot soap without injuring it. It is excellent for walls inside, in the place of paper.

I shall keep this season a large stock of Chemical Paints of all shades on hand, to accommodate customers with any amount, without delay in ordering it. Those who want to use the Chemical Paints and have had them misrepresented by those who deal in Lead and Oil, are invited to call and examine my Paints that have been on Buildings two years, and you will find them as fresh as if laid but one month.

I am prepared to do Painting by Contract, or by the day, using the Chemical Paint, or furnishing good experienced workmen by the day at very low wages. B. NORTON, only Agent for selling the

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 21, 1871.

An Account of Terrible Suffering.

On the 15th there arrived in New York city by the Erie railway a number of persons direct from the scenes of the great forest fires in Wisconsin and Michigan. There were nine in the party: James W. Hunter, Mrs. Sarah Hunter, George Martine, of Flushing, L. I., Henry Porter, Samuel Hillman, Charles Myers of Freehold, N. J., Margaret McGorm, Edward Wallace and George Blakeslee of New York. All were suffering from having inhaled the smoke, fumes and ashes of the fire. Mrs. Hunter's hair, which she says flowed to the waist, was completely burned off. One side of her face and neck and shoulders were fearfully injured, three deep holes having been made by the glowing cinders in the flesh. Her hands, also, were covered with blisters. Mr. Hunter's face, neck and hands were badly burned. Mr. Martine's face was a hideous spectacle. One cheek was literally raw, and great blotches pitted his left arm, shoulder and back. One eye is hopelessly ruined, and the other inflamed to an ominous degree. All were scarred, especially on the face, neck, hands and feet. As they all say, no tongue can tell their agony of mind, pain, anguish and terror, nor can language or pencil portray the dreadful scenes through which they have passed.

Mr. Hunter says he resided at Prestigo with his wife and little child, seven years of age. Their house was about three miles from the town, just at the edge of a strip of forest. There had been fires in the woods and prairies for a week previous, and night after night they had sat at the windows, gazing upon the gorgeous panorama of flame, smoke and sparkling cinders, as it moved along the horizon. Very little, if any, fear was entertained, as the course of the fire seemed away from the town.

On Sunday night they attended church in the village. They and Martin, the herdman, retired to rest early, wholly unsuspecting the fearful peril that was soon to overwhelm them. At about midnight they were aroused by the roaring and crackling of the flames. At first they were almost petrified with amazement and fear. The blazing wood seemed marching upon them. A brisk breeze was stirring, but the strong current of hot air raged to and fro with a horrid, howling sound. Quickly dressing, they rushed to the yard. The sky was thick with smoke, and showers of sparks were hurled hither and thither, assailing their faces, eyes and clothing. From the barn came a piteous chorus of neighs, bellowings and screams from the terrified cattle, horses and other animals. After great difficulty they were released, and compelled to go out. The cattle at once stampeded from the fire, but the horses trembled and seemed paralyzed, their nostrils extending, their eyes dilating and glaring and their mouths frothing. With great difficulty and haste they were harnessed and attached to a long lumber box wagon, into which a few articles were thrown, and the party mounted and drove off. An eighth of a mile had been traversed at a rapid rate, when a sudden gust of wind drove a mass of red hot cinders upon them, filling the air with stifling smoke. Where the sparks fell they burned into the flesh. The little girl screamed with fear. "Oh, mamma, I am burning up," she cried; the others shook off the fire and covered themselves with blankets. The air for a moment was black, and breathing was almost impossible. The horses staggered, backed, and reared with furious screams, and then with a plunge that unseated those in the wagon, rushed down the road at almost lightning speed. All control of them was lost, and the party clung to the sides of the vehicle to keep in. On they flew, the wheels striking fire against the stones, and the wagon swaying to and fro from one side of the road to the other. Then, for a time, the wind changed and the clouds of cinders were carried in another direction. They could see that all the northern part of the village was on fire, and the flames seemed moving with the velocity of clouds. All the buildings were of wood, much of it being of pitch pine, and as there had been no rain for a long time, and the sun had baked everything dry, the fire ran along them as though they had been a train of gunpowder.

Mrs. Hunter said: We stood in the water up to our necks, our little girl Minnie being held up between us. When we first went in the feeling was that of grateful refreshment. The top of the water seemed warm, but the bottom part was cold. After we had been there half an hour, the wind carried great strips, and even pieces of board, some of them flaming. These would be whirled in the air, high up over our heads, and and hover like a huge hawk, and then swoop down upon us. We would duck our heads under the water, but would get so exhausted that we could not, and then we had to be burned. Poor little Minnie, so weak that she could hardly cry, would say: "Dear paps, I am burned again; dear mamma, my feet are so cold, and I am so tired. Three hours and more thus passed. Every moment we expected to die. Finally the air became so thick that we could not see. Our eyes seemed parboiled. The agony was awful. Our feet were like ice, and our faces and heads in an atmosphere of flame. At last there was a rush of the waters, the dam had given away, and the flood came down upon us, sweeping us off our feet into a mass of timber and broken planks, some on fire, horses, cattle, dogs and human beings all struggling and shrieking. In the rush and whirl the almost helpless Mr. and Mrs. Hunter were separated. Mrs. Hunter went down and came near being drowned. Minnie was lost and drowned. By a swerving of the current they were washed on shore, and at daylight found each other. There were many mourning and crying over the scene of desolation. On all sides, as far as the eye could reach, there were smouldering fires. The village was a long waste of ashes; not a vestige remained.

Chicago.

John Hay writes as follows:—The first man I met on leaving the train was Hon. L. Swett. I asked if he was one of the few fortunates. He smiled and nodded. I congratulated him on the safety of his house. "Oh! that's another matter; my house is gone, but my wife and children were saved." This spirit is too common to be remarked, yet, when you compare it with what you see among other people, it seems very admirable.

I saw on Wabash Avenue, which, with its cheerful houses and autumn leaves, smiles like an oasis on a fiery sea, the burly form and cheery Western face of Governor and General Richard Oglesby. He hailed me in his hearty, wholesome way, and took me to see something worth seeing. He said that a loaded furniture van was standing before a fine residence, into which they were moving the office of the Chicago and Calumet Dock Company, and the sight which so amused the Governor was a pot of butter which had passed through the greatest heat without losing its integrity. It had been safely stowed in the vaults of one of the deposit companies. This trial is so much more striking than the safety of important papers, that the pot of fire-tried butter will be a greater card for the deposit company than any amount of rescued diamonds.

Robert T. Lincoln, son of the late President Lincoln, entered his law office about daylight on Monday morning, after the flames had attacked the building, opened the vault, and piled upon a table most of the valuable papers, then slung the pack over his shoulder and escaped amid a shower of falling firebrands. He walked up Michigan avenue, with this load on his back, and stopped at the mansion of John Young Scammon, where they breakfasted with a feeling of perfect security. Lincoln went home with his papers, and before noon the house of Scammon was in ruins, the last which was sacrificed by the lake side.

Another correspondent contradicts the report that the prisoners in the basement of the Court House were left to die a horrible death in their cells. But he says:—"Subsequent events prove that it would have been better if they had been abandoned to their fate, as many of them escaped from the officers in their transfer to the Bridewell, and were afterwards foremost in the scenes of murder and pillage that were unhappily so prevalent."

The loss of Cyrus H. McCormick, of Chicago amounts to three-quarters of a million. He will rebuild his reaper factory and warehouses.

New Hampshire Items.

While workmen were raising timbers to the upper stories of Hazelton's new hotel at Manchester Thursday, a piece of scantling slipped from the rope, striking Mr. Daniel H. Gilman on the head, facturing his skull and producing a wound which will undoubtly cause death. Mr. Gilman was foreman of the carpenter work on the hotel.

A Frenchman named Trickey was run over at Laconia on Wednesday evening by an express train and killed. His age was about 20 years.

—Keyser pronounces signatures to bills in his name in the New York records for $950,000, forgeries.

Dollie Bidwell and Lillie Wilkinson were thrown from a carriage at Newport, R. I., recently. Dolly escaped without injury, while Lillie had a "black" eye.

Our Bankers Abroad.—Late files from European papers comment most favorably on the appointment of the London firm of Henry Clews & Co., as bankers abroad for all countries of the U. S. Government and the Treasury Department, in place of Baring Bros. It is true that no feeling but the utmost cordiality of spirit exists between these two representative banking houses. It is not true, that Baring Bros. have transacted their business with the Government in an unsatisfactory manner. On the contrary, the utmost good feeling has existed from the beginning of the trust up to the present time. It is true that the government has confidence in the House of Henry Clew & Co., and it is rather a testimonial of confidence in their manner of doing business, that as a reward for services rendered to the government by Mr. Clews, that has secured the appointment of Henry Clews & Co. as our bankers abroad. This house has risen rapidly in public confidence, until it has reached the government, which nationalizes its popularity by confering the present appointment of Fiscal agents. Probity, tact, patriotism, and financial power thus get a compliment. The duties of their position are such, that it cannot but tend to give general confidence throughout this country and in Europe to the name and credit of this leading banking house.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

It Is Said that if a puff of air were to be blown into a vein of an animal, death would instantaneously follow, because circulation would be stopped. The blood makes the entire circuit of the human body every seven minutes, and whenever this circulation is impeded or any of its channels are clogged by impurities which ought to be carried off, disease follows—fever or a disorder of liver or kidneys, or scrofula, or dyspepsia. How to get at and remove the source of the difficulty use the old and infallible blood purifier, Dr. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters." o21 4w

The Means of Escape.

The fall has many perils for the week and feeble, and its sudden atmospheric changes are trying to the constitutions of even the robust. The chilling temperature of the nights, as compared with the almost summer warmth of the days, necessarily exercises an unhealthy influence on all who are exposed to it. Hence dysentery, diarrhœa, intermittent fevers, bilious attacks, and derangements of all the secretions, are common at this season. The true way to escape them is to meet the causes with a protective and invigorating medicine. HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS are designed for this exigency. This powerful vegetable specific relieves the system of all acrid humors, purifies the fluids, tones the secretive organs, promotes healthy evaporation through the pores, increases the activity of the digestive functions, cheers the spirits, and regulates the bowels. To do this is to make the whole body vigorous, and render it proof against the vicissitudes of temperature, and against malaria. A course of the great tonic and alterative is therefore in all cases advisable as a preventive at this season. If, on the other hand, the mischief is already done, and intermittent or remittent fever is actually present, or the liver, bowels, or stomach disordered, there is no medicine so certain to effect a quick and thorough cure as this harmless and agreeable preparation.

The Domestic Sewing Machine.—Since the Domestic Sewing Machine was awarded the "First Premium" at the late State Fair at Dover, the rush for them has been even greater than ever; Mr. E. A. Joy, the fortunate Agent, whose rooms are adjoining our office, is unable to set them up as fast as they are called for, notwithstanding he has lately employed an able assistant. Everybody who buys a "Domestic" seems happy. At the State Fair it was found to be the only Machine in the world having self adjusting tensions. It was in operation four days, using all kinds of thread on all sorts of goods, without any change of tensions. If you don't examine it before purchasing any other, you will wish you had.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

A CARD.

Mr. and Mrs. Yeaton tender their thanks to their friends and the citizens of Portsmouth and vicinity for their sympathy and kindness. And while we are painfully conscious that this is but a poor compensation for such generous services, this little is due and is gratefully offered. And where all were so sympathizing and many so liberal of time and expense, it is not easy to make distinctions; but we think it due the efficient head of the Police Department to make an exception in his favor.

1871. LYCEUM COURSE. 1872.

In arranging the programme for a course of Popular Lectures, Readings, &c., to be given in the

Universalist Church

for the season of 1871—2, the committee believe this list has the largest number of distinguished names ever offered to the Portsmouth public, and that the Course will present attractions not surpassed in point of interest and variety. They will appear in the order announced:

NOV. 2, Maj. Gen. JUDSON KILPATRICK.
Subject: "The American Stump." A new, instructive and amusing lecture.

NOV. 9, Rev. W. H. H. MURRAY.
Subject: "Deacons." A new lecture.

NOV. 16, JAMES T. FIELDS.
Subject: "A Plea for Cheerfulness."

NOV. 23, GEORGE WILLIAM CURTIS.
Subject: "Women in the Old time and the New."

NOV. 30, REV. S. H. McCOLLESTER.
Subject: "Athens and Greece."

DEC. 7, Rev. WILLIAM R. NICHOLSON, D. D.
Subject: "Civilization and Poverty."

DEC. 14, Rev. E. E. HALE.
Subject: "He Did his Level Best," A Story This is an entirely new feature, arranged especially for Lyceums, and has proved to be an exceedingly attractive one.

Dec. 21, Mrs. MARY A. LIVERMORE,
Subject: "What shall we do with our Daughters?"

JAN. 4, PROF. MOSES T. BROWN, and DR. J. H. WILLCOX.
Entertainment: Organ Concert. Miscellaneous Readings, by Prof. Brown, from favorite authors, with some character sketches.
Organ Recitals by Dr. Willcox performed on the fine new organ recently placed in this church.

JAN. 11, Prof. C. H. HITCHCOCK.
Subject: "Life above the Clouds; or, Mt. Washington in Midwinter," illustrated with noted Stereoscopic Views of frost work, exhibited by the aid of a Stereopticon and Calcium Light.

The organ will be exhibited each evening.

TICKETS for this Course are now ready, at the stores of Messrs. Shores, Preston, Rancher and Hill.

PRICE $1.50 FOR THE COURSE.

No single evening tickets will be issued.

As the number to be sold is limited to the comfortable seating capacity of the church, those desiring to attend should secure their tickets without delay, as a large number are already taken up.

Ushers will be in attendance each evening.

Carriages at Auction.

A large lot of new carriages of many kinds, comprising phaetons, open and top buggies, wagons, etc., and a lot of second hand carriages and one chaise, will be sold at Came Brothers' Repository on High Street to-day by Major Hackett, the sale commencing at 10 1-2 o'clock, A. M. No further commendation of these carriages is needed than to say that they were built by Came Brothers. Several horses will be sold by auction at the same time and place, with harnesses, etc. This is the best opportunity ever afforded in this city to secure first-class carriages at moderate prices. See advertisement.

New Reservoir.

The Aldermanic Committee on the Fire Department recommended at the last meeting of the Board that a new reservoir be built somewhere near the Concord Railroad. We have heard the Hanover Street schoolhouse yard suggested as a suitable place for locating a reservoir, the ground there being easy to excavate, with plenty of room to make the reservoir as large as desired. Whether the location is a good one in a strategical point of view is another question,—there is no use in digging a big hole because it can be easily dug, if it will not be of service when it is finished.

City Council, Thursday, Oct. 19.

In Board of Aldermen, William Downing was appointed special police without pay at Concord depot.

Voted to purchase an express wagon for Fire Department.

The Committee on Fire Department reported that a reservoir to hold 70,000 gallons can be built for $1800. They recommended that it be located near the Concord Railroad.

The Mayor and Aldermen Marvin and Fernald were appointed a Committee to see if the City can connect a pipe with the pipe of the Kearsarge Mills to bring water from the pond.

Voted that a sum not exceeding $1700 be appropriated to pay the bills for the Firemen's Muster; Ayes, Aldermen Annable, Waldron, Giddings, Marvin—4; Nays, Aldermen Fernald, Mendum, Wendell—3.

Supreme Judicial Court.

The grand jury reported late Thursday afternoon. They found an indictment against Daniel O. Clark of Kingston for selling liquor; three indictments against John Angell of Kingston for selling liquor; one against Charles Works of Kingston for selling liquor; one against Michael Howard of Haverhill, Mass., for murder in 2d degree; one against Joseph Marshall of Seabrook for murder in 2d degree; one against Charles Witham and George W. Smart for burglary at Raymond; one for keeping a disorderly house; one against James Gilchrist for breaking and entering the store of George Stott, in Portsmouth; one against Richard Kingsley for aggravated assault on David Berry of Portsmouth; one against Christian Johnson of Portsmouth for obstructing highway; one against Frank B. Gray for larceny at North Hampton; one against John Cassidy for larceny of coat at Portsmouth; two against the town of Hampstead; one against the town of Kingston and one against the town of Raymond, for not repairing highways.

Charles Witham pleaded guilty of burglary and Smart of larceny. Sentence deferred.

Frank B. Gray was arraigned and pleaded guilty of larceny. Sentence deferred.

James Gilchrist was arraigned and pleaded not guilty to the charge of breaking and entering with intent to steal.

Richard Kingsley was arraigned and pleaded not guilty to the charge of aggravated assault.

The Court adjourned to Monday. The murder cases will probably be tried during the first of the week.

Communicated.

Management of Fires.

Messrs Editors:—I am glad to see by the CHRONICLE of Friday morning, that some notice is taken of my communication on the management of fires. It shows that the writer is alive to the subject, and all that is wanted is to rouse the public to a sense of their danger in case of fire. It is some gratification to learn that "good recommendations" have been made to the city authorities, to secure the "efficiency and economy" of the Fire Department; for considering the very large appropriations made for it, we have a right to expect the best management, that the Firemen may enjoy the reputation they deserve for their hard labors. But who are they who oppose "good recommendations?" Ex-Engineer says that they were opposed generally by the old Firewards. I think there must be some misapprehension in this matter. Very few of the old Fire-wards remain, and I believe that they, as well as all good citizens, would be glad of any plan or scheme which would promote the "efficiency and economy" of the department. I hope this discussion will not rest, but that the public may be aroused to their danger, and use all possible means to avoid the calamity of a great fire.

AN OLD FIRE-WARD.

The Lyceum.

We are informed that the tickets for the Lyceum course in the Universalist church are selling rapidly,—as they should, for not only does the list of lecturers include the names of many of the best and most popular speakers of the day,—Kilpatrick, Murray, Fields, Hale, Mrs. Livermore and others,—but the price of tickets is set so low that it will be much cheaper to attend the course than to stay away. Ten entertainments for $1.50,—fifteen cents each; fifteen cents to hear George William Curtis discourse of "Women in the old time and the new," or Prof. Hitchcock tell of "Life above the clouds in mid-winter!" Young men who wish to show particular attention to attractive acquaintances, can manage it delicately and economically by purchasing tickets to this Lyceum course; thirty cents an evening is much less than what oysters and cakes are likely to cost for each pair, and not much more than the value of the shoe leather they will probably wear out in their long walks, if they stay away. Some over-scrupulous people may have conscientious qualms about receiving so much value as this course offers, for so little money; but the offer comes from the Lyceum committee and we cannot see that there is anything actually dishonest in accepting their terms. No single evening tickets will be issued, so those wishing to attend should secure course tickets at once, the number of the latter being limited to the comfortable seating capacity of the church. See advertisement.

THE WESTERN FIRES.—Among the most appalling accounts of the late fire disasters is that of the burning of Williamsonville, a small place about 400 miles to the east, at the head of Little Surgeon Bay. The mill at that place was burned and nearly all the inhabitants of the town perished in the flames. The mill was situated in a small clearing in a cedar swamp which was piled around with 4000 cords of cut timber. The houses were all situated near each other. The inhabitants thus encircled in this limited clearing, were unable to escape from the devouring flames. A large number of surgeons went to the scene, with several nurses, from Green Bay. The dead were decently buried, a shingle being placed at the head of each grave giving the name of each person.

Among the villages either wholly or in part destroyed are the following: Green Bay, Humboldt, Casco, Red River, Russels, Rosiere, Robinsonville, Thirty Deames, Glenmore, Hubbard's Mill, New Franken, Oak Orchard, Coullard Bridge, Williamsonville, Menehaunee, Marinette, Birch Creek, Union Town, Peshtego, The Sugar Bush, Messiere, Dycksville, Abnepee, Pierce, Kewanee and many others.

HORACE HODGDON of Newburyport was arrested on Monday for being too enterprising in the matrimonial line. He was married Friday to Elizabeth Merritt of Nashua, and was so pleased with wedded life that he repeated the experiment Sunday with a Miss Pike of Newberyport. He has been paying attention to both girls, who were friends.

BRUNSWICK is in Maine. Tenney resides there.

—"Grant takes everything that is given him," said a Democrat. "Yes," replied a Republican, "and that's just where he is more modest than his Democratic predecessors, for they took everything without waiting to have it given."

NEW SUBSCRIBERS who now pay in advance for the DAILY CHRONICLE or N. H. GAZETTE for the year 1872, will receive either paper gratis until January. We will furnish the GAZETTE and the Concord Independent Statesman from this date to July 1, 1872, for $2 in advance to new subscribers.

☞ THE NEW HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE for this week, is now ready for delivery, at the Chronicle Office. Each number contains all the reading matter of the week's Dailies. Price $2 a year; single copies 5 cents,—in wrappers for mailing, if desired. Six copies for $10 per year, to Clubs—per mail or city carrier.

JOB AND CARD PRINTING.—We have made great additions to our jobbing facilities—a mammoth Hand Press (the largest in Portsmouth,) new Display Type, Borders of various styles, &c. —and are prepared to execute with neatness and dispatch, all orders for FULL SHEET POSTERS, DATE SLIPS, PAMPHLETS, SERMONS, ADDRESSES, AUCTION BILLS, CONSTITUTIONS, BY LAWS, PROGRAMMES, HANDBILLS, CIRCULARS, ORDERS DANCES, BLANKS, BILL HEADS, RECEIPTS, TICKETS, BUSINESS, MARRIAGE, ADDRESS AND VISITING CARDS, LABELS, TAGS, and in fact PRINTING OF ANY DESCRIPTION, at SATISFACTORY PRICES. Orders received by mail, express, or at the CHRONICLE OFFICE will be promptly filled.

CHESAPEAKE & OHIOS — FIVE TWENTIES—CENTRAL PACIFICS.

BANKING OFFICE OF
FISK & HATCH,
No. 5 Nassau Street, New York.
September 25th, 1871.

OF THE FIFTEEN MILLION CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO SIX PER CENTS, LAST YEAR, but about $4,500,000 remain unsold, and this remainder will be taken up rapidly.

The five years' option having expired on all series of FIVE-TWENTY BONDS, except 1867s and 1868s, they are liable to be called in for payment. The redemption of 100 millions FIVE-TWENTIES in coin, and the purchases by the Government during the ensuing four months, with the premium thereon, will release about 150 millions of invested capital, independently of dividend and interest payments, the greater part of which must seek reinvestment.

The Chesapeake and Ohio Sixes

have absolutely 30 years to run; are especially desirable for steady investments, and can now be bought in

17 per cent. less than Ten-forties.
20 per cent. less than Five-twenties,
25 per cent. less than Sixes of 1881,

and are equally sure to be paid principal and interest in gold coin. Their amount is limited by the Trust Deed to $15,000,000. Price (at present) 93 and accrued interest, that is, with coupon attached, payable Nov. 1.

$1000 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $934.16.

$500 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $477.08.

$100 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $93.42.

Only a small amount of the latter denominations remains, and no more can be made. Bonds go in coupon or register form, same as Five-twenties.

The debt is created by the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad Company in order most speedily and effectually to extend and complete the main line of their Road to the Ohio River. This work —the most important internal improvement now progressing in the country—is rapidly approaching completion. It will establish another and superior line of communication between the Ohio and Mississippi valleys and the eastern cities; bringing ten millions of people, mainly producers, nearer to the centres of consumption in the Eastern States, and nearer to the political and commercial capitals of their country. Such is the commanding importance of this Trunk Line that the larger cities of the West are projecting feeders to connect with it, so as to avail themselves of its unequalled facilities as soon as it is completed. Large tracts of valuable coal and iron lands along its route are passing into the hands of practical miners and iron manufacturers; a large city is springing up at the western terminus, the head of reliable navigation on the Ohio, where it intersects 12,000 miles of river transit, and will soon be in connection with 30,000 miles of railroad carriage.

The CENTRAL PACIFIC SIX PER CENT. BONDS are as safe for investment as Government Bonds. They are secured by act of Congress at $25,885,000, is secured by property worth four times their value; they can only be bought in the open market, and are becoming scarcer in consequence of their gradual absorption by investors here and in Europe; they have a ready market in all the principal money-centres, and have twenty-four years to run; the earnings of the road are steadily increasing, and will probably reach $10,000,000 for the current year, affording a handsome surplus after payment of expenses and interest. Present price, 101½ to 102.

When the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad is completed, in 1872, and the Bonds are dealt in at the Stock Exchanges of the world, we have no doubt they will be equally popular with the Central Pacifics. Both principal and interest of the CENTRAL PACIFIC and CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO BONDS, are specifically payable in gold coin in New York; the Interest on the former being paid January and July, and of the latter, May and November, corresponding with the two classes of Five-twenties.

We buy and sell FIVE-TWENTIES, TEN-FORTIES, EIGHTY-ONES, and CENTRAL OF WESTERN PACIFICS, or receive them in payment for CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO BONDS at their current market price.

Orders for Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds, accompanied with Drafts or Checks, may be forwarded to us by mail. Bonds or money may be forwarded by any responsible Express Company at our expense, and the Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds, in exchange, will be sent by return Express, charges paid. FISK & HATCH.

P. S.—Accounts of Banks, Bankers and others received, on which we allow Four Per Cent. Interest.

Certificates of deposit issued and collections made in all parts of the Union.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs,
No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity of a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents.'

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents.

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges.

A PLACE FOR THE LEAN!

Say, old boy, where shall we meet?
Why, at Garrety's, on Daniel Street,
He's such a jolly fellow;
His LAGER is always fresh and prime,
It never wants a "head" and is
Refreshing, cool and mellow!
You require, my boy, some filling out,
You're thin, and meagre-looking;
Lager would give you the proper size.
Look at the host, he once was scant,
His BEER has made of flesh no want,
Go thou and drink likewise.

Morning Chronicle.

OLD TIME CHRONICLES, No. 38.

BY UNCLE JOSEPH.

THE DARK DAY.—The day that in history and many records is thus called was May 19, 1780. This was 91 years ago. Perhaps a few persons now living, 94 years of age or upwards, recollect it. Many living have heard those who have now passed away tell of it, and printed accounts of it in various works are abundant. New England was the place, but it extended beyond to the Hudson river in New York, north to portions of Canada, east (at sea) in some places more than a hundred miles, and southwest to a portion of Pennsylvania. The morning began with some clouds and a little rain. The sun was seen in rising but was not clear. The air was remarkable for stillness, but nothing especial attracted the attention of any one till past 8 o'clock, when it was found that it was fast growing dark. In an hour it was quite dark. People generally left work, the cattle in pastures ceased feeding, the birds suspended their songs and went mostly out of sight at night. It was necessary to light candles in dwellings, but almost all persons were frequently out, looking up to the heavens. The darkness was not natural like that of night, but there was a reddish appearance in the air, especially around the horizon. Objects seen appeared somewhat as they do when viewed through a smoked glass. This lasted six hours or to 3 P. M., when light broke forth in the western sky, although the appearance was strange, there being flashes similar to splendid northern lights. Yet the people bailed it with gladness, and soon it was about as light as usual. Towards night darkness returned in part and the night following was one of the greatest darkness. After the night had passed, nothing unusual was noticed.

Work on the dark day was not only suspended, but very many were in terrible fear and consternation. The question asked on every hand was, "What does it mean?" and, "What is coming next?" It was thought by some that the world was coming to an end, and they ought to be at peace with their fellow beings and with the Creator, who might be offended with them. The perishing things of earth looked cheap, and some of its vanities were thrown away, among them "rolls," as they were called, worn by females on the head. In some of the large towns the bells were rung, assemblies gathered in the churches, and as Whittier says in a poem relative to some of the events of that day, "Women wept and men prayed." The course of Abraham Davenport, a member of the Legislative Assembly of Connecticut, is generally approved. The lawmakers trembingly exclaimed, "It is the Lord's great day," and there was a motion to adjourn. Davenport had no fear in the case. He said, "Either the day of judgment is at hand or it is not. If it is not, there is no cause for adjournment. If it is, I wish to be found in the line of my duty. Let candles be brought."

As to the cause of the darkness, opinions have been and still will be various. Many have considered it a supernatural influence, caused by Him who presides over Nature, as a warning of coming retribution. But there is a difficulty about this theory. No special judgments followed, neither have there in the three generations that have passed since, save what are common in every age and state of the world; and if this was a special warning, why was it given only to New England and a few adjacent territories? It has been attributed to smoke from extensive fires that raged in forests some days previous. Merrill's New Hampshire Gazetter (p. 7.) relies on this; but nothing of the kind is probable. There were as great fires before and since, without darkness, and all testimony was that there was no appearance of a smoky atmosphere. Some thought of an eclipse of the sun, but there was none at that time; some of the interposition of Mercury or Venus, but there was no transit of either; some of a comet; no evidence of it. What then was the cause? It is not known. If some opinions and theories are probable, none are certain, and the real cause is not known. Nature is full of wonders and mysteries.

The November number of The Nursery is now ready for its thousands of eager young readers. The illustrations of this number are exceedingly good, and the reading matter is of the best character. It has no superior in its own field.

THE AMERICAN WASHER!

Price, $5.50.

The American Washer Saves Money, Time, and Drudgery.

The Fatigue of Washing Day no Longer Dreaded, but Economy, Efficiency, and Clean Clothing, Sure.

In calling public attention to this little machine, a few of its invaluable qualities, not possessed by any other washing machine yet invented, are here enumerated.

It is the smallest, most compact, most portable, most simple in construction, most easily operated. A child ten years old, with a few hours' practice, can thoroughly comprehend and effectually use it. There is no adjusting, no screws to annoy, no delay in adapting! It is always ready for use! It is a perfect little wonder! It is a miniature giant, doing more work and of a better quality, than the most elaborate and costly. One half of the labor is fully saved by its use, and the clothes will last more than twice as long by the old plan of the rub board. It will wash the largest blanket. Three shirts at a time, washing thoroughly! In a word, the solution of any fabric, from a Quilt to a Lace Curtain or Cambric Handkerchief, are equally within the capacity of this LITTLE GEM! It can be fastened to any tub and held off at will.

No matter how deep rooted a prejudice may exist against Washing Machines, the moment this little machine is seen to perform its wonders, all doubts of its cleansing efficacy and utility are banished, and the doubter and detractor at once becomes the best friends of the machine.

We have testimonials without end, setting forth its numerous advantages over all others, and from hundreds who have thrown aside the unwieldy, useless machines, which have signally failed to accomplish the object promised in prominent and loud sounding advertisements.

It is a perfect substitute for a washer-board, and there is no article of domestic economy that will repay the small investment so soon.

$5.50,

All that is asked for this GREAT LABOR SAVER, is a fair trial. We guarantee each machine to do its work perfectly.

A GREAT MEDICAL DISCOVERY!

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA

VINEGAR BITTERS.

Hundreds of Thousands Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.

WHAT ARE THEY!

THEY ARE NOT A VILE FANCY DRINK,

Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Root and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and a LIFE-GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to direction and remain long unwell, provided the bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the stomach and stimulate the torpid liver and bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effect.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins, cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

PIN, TAPE and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. For a full description, read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French and Spanish.

FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Toxic Bitters have no equal. ☞ Send for a circular.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs. 1yrdawf6t16

The Cause and Cure of Consumption.

The primary cause of Consumption is derangement of the digestive organs. The derangement produces deficient nutrition and assimilation. By assimilation I mean that process by which the nutriment of the food is converted into blood, and thence into the solids of the body. Persons with digestion thus impaired, having the slightest predisposition to pulmonary disease, or if they take cold, will be very liable to have Consumption of the Lungs in some of its forms; and I hold that it will be impossible to cure any case of Consumption without first restoring a good digestion and healthy assimilation. The very first thing to be done is to cleanse the stomach and bowels from all diseased mucous and slime which is clogging these organs so that they cannot perform their functions, and then rouse up and restore the liver to a healthy action. For this purpose, the surest and best remedy is SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS. These Pills cleanse the stomach and bowels of all the dead and putrid slime that is causing disease and decay in the whole system. They will clear out the liver of all diseased bile that has accumulated there, and arouse it up to a new and healthy action, by which natural and healthy bile is secreted.

The stomach, bowels and liver are thus cleansed by the use of Schenck's Mandrake Pills; but there remains in the stomach an excess of acid, the organ it torpid, and the appetite is poor. In the bowels, the lacteals are weak, and requiring strength and support. It is in a condition like this that Schenck's Seaweed Tonic proves to be the most valuable remedy ever discovered. It is alkaline, and its use will neutralize all excess of acid, making the stomach sweet and fresh; it will give permanent tone to this important organ, and create a good, hearty appetite. It will prepare the system for the first process of a good digestion, and ultimately make good, healthy, living blood. After this preparatory treatment, what remains to cure must cases of consumption is the free and persevering use of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup. The Pulmonic Syrup is taken into the stomach, mixes with the blood, and is readily absorbed into the circulation, and thence distributed to the diseased lungs. There it ripens all morbid matter, whether in the form of abscesses or tubercles, and then assists Nature to expel all the diseased matter in the form of free expectoration, when once it ripens. It is from the great healing and ripening qualities of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, that all ulcers and cavities are healed up sound, and my patient is cured.

The essential thing to be done in curing Consumption is to get up a good appetite and a good digestion, so that the body will grow in flesh and get strong. If a person has diseased lungs, or cavity or abscess there, the cavity cannot heal, the matter cannot ripen, so long as the system is below par. What is necessary to cure is a new order of things, a good appetite, a good nutrition, the body to grow in flesh and get fat; then Nature is helped, the cavities will heal, the matter will ripen and be thrown off in large quantities, and the person regains health and strength. This is the true and only plan to cure Consumption, and if a person is very low, if the lungs are not entirely destroyed, or even if one lung is entirely gone, if there is enough vitality left in the other to build up, there is hope.

I have seen many persons cured with only one sound lung, live and enjoy life to a good old age. This is what Schenck's medicines will do to cure Consumption. They will clean out the stomach, sweeten and strengthen it, get up a good digestion, and give Nature the assistance she needs to clear the system of all the disease that is in the lungs, whatever the form may be.

It is important that, while using Schenck's medicines, care should be exercised not to take cold; keep in-doors in cold and damp weather; avoid night air, and take out-door exercise only in a genial and warm sunshine.

I wish it distinctly understood that when I recommend a patient to be careful in regard to taking cold while using my medicines, I do so for a special reason. I do it because I have found to my cost, that many who had recovered from the effects of a bad cold in the lungs, were liable to a relapse than one who has been entirely cured, and it is precisely the same in regard to consumption. So long as the lungs are not perfectly healed, just so long is there imminent danger of a full return of the disease. Hence it is that I so strenuously caution pulmonary patients against exposing themselves to an atmosphere that is not genial and pleasant. Confirmed consumptives are as much a mass of sores, which the least change of atmosphere will inflame. The grand secret of my success with my medicines consists in my ability to adapt them to the case instead of provoking it, as many of the faculty do. An inflamed lung cannot with safety to the patient be exposed to the biting blasts of winter or the chilling winds of early autumn. It should be carefully shielded from all irritating influence. The utmost caution should be observed in this particular, as without it a cure under almost any circumstances is an impossibility.

The person should be kept on a wholesome and nutritious diet, and all the medicines continued until the body has restored to it the natural quantity of flesh and strength.

I was myself cured by this treatment of the worst kind of Consumption, and have lived to get fat and hearty these many years, with one lung mostly gone. I have cured thousands since, and very many have been cured by the treatment whom I have never seen.

About the first of October I expect to take possession of my new building on the northeast corner of Sixth and Arch Streets, where I shall be pleased to give advice to all who may require it.

Full directions accompany all my remedies, so that a person in any part of the world can be readily cured by a strict observance of the same.

"THANK GOD IT'S RAINING."—The following incident, at the park in the northern part of Chicago, on the night of the terrible fire, is related by an eye-witness:

It was towards morning, when hope had been dismissed, and despair had entered the weary hearts of the watchers, when a gentleman felt a raindrop on his hand. He thought at first it was a tear from his wife, who was leaning on his arm, her head forced down and her soul given to sorrowful thoughts. But another and another drop in quick succession, and a pattering in the leaves over his head assured him that it was raining. He was on the point of uttering a remark to that effect when a hundred voices, it seemed, cried out—"Thank God it's raining!" A pale, care-worn lady, who was trying to soothe the sorrows of a woman who had lost her two children, looked up and said, "No, it's not rain: the angels are weeping for us; their tears are falling on our ruined homes."

GOOD-NATURE.—We have no special admiration of the touchiness of an Englishman regarding the sacred rights of his personality. The hedge-hog is not an agreeable bird, and we have no wish to see it substituted for the American eagle; but a bundle of quills is better calculated to command respect than a ball of putty. The man who stands stiffly in his tracks and says, "Touch me not!" presents a very much more respectable appearance than the man who dodges him and every obstacle which he encounters in his way. We are very much afraid of hurting the feelings of somebody, when we know, or ought to know, that somebody's feelings ought to be hurt, and that nothing would do somebody so much good as to have his feelings hurt. We forget that there are things of infinitely greater importance than bad people's feelings—things to which we owe infinitely higher duty. A man has no moral right to permit himself to be robbed or cheated. If he tamely submits to such a crime he becomes accessory to it, and encourages the rascal at whose hand he has suffered to make a victim of the next unsuspecting customer.

The characteristic American good-nature not only encourages and confers impunity upon all sorts of wrong, but it seriously reacts upon American character. It begets a toleration of all kinds of moral evil that brings at last insensibility to it. There cannot be a very wide moral difference between the man who commits crime and the man who weakly tolerates it. The active sinner is, if anything, the braver and noble, of the two. He at least manifests a courage which the other does not. There is nothing that America needs more than the bold and persistent assertion, in every practical way, of its sense of what is fair and honest, and right and proper and courteous, between man and man.—Scribner's Magazine.

FARRAGUT'S DECISION.—On the day when intelligence was received that the ordinance of secession had passed the Virginia Convention, Captain Farragut determined to abandon Norfolk and the State. Collecting hastily a few valuables, he placed his wife, sister, and their children in a carriage, put his loaded pistols in his pocket, and within two hours from the reception of the news that Virginia had decided to secede he proceeded to the Baltimore steamer, then at the wharf. Leaving all else behind, he resolved not to be denationalized or torn from the Union; he would know no country but that which he loved and served from his childhood. The next day he passed through Baltimore, then in excited insurrection. The ordinary channels of travel by steamers and railroads were interrupted, and in the general confusion it was difficult to procure means of transportation or to leave the city. He found by accident that a common canal boat was leaving the wharf for Philadelphia. On this boat, which had indifferent accommodations for about eighteen persons, there were crowded nearly three hundred—fugitives, like himself and family, seeking refuge in the North. He reached New York after some annoyance and inconvenience, with but slight pecuniary means to sustain himself and his exiled and dependent family. Being on waiting orders—for the department, which did not then know these particulars, was moving with cautious, vigilant, and wary steps, careful and guarded whom to trust, and in the employment of Southern officers particularly circumspect—Captain Farragut felt his pecuniary resources insufficient for his support in the great metropolis. Always modest and unobtrusive, and almost a stranger in New York, he found a resting place for a few days under the roof of a friend whom he had previously known, until he could obtain a secluded place out of the city, adapted to his limited means. He succeeded in getting a modest cottage at Hastings on the Hudson at a rent of $150 per annum, which he plainly furnished, and to which, with one servant, he retired to await events—ready, however, and anxious to serve his country and give himself to her cause.—"Admiral Farragut and New Orleans," by Gideon Welles, in November Galaxy.

BUCHU

[From Dispensatory of the United States.]

DIOSMA CRENATA — BUCHU LEAVES.

PROPERTIES.—Their odor is strong, diffusive and somewhat aromatic; their taste bitterish and analogous to mint.

MEDICAL PROPERTIES AND USES.—Buchu leaves are gently stimulant, with a peculiar tendency to the Urinary Organs.

They are given in complaints of the Urinary Organs, such as Gravel, Chronic Catarrh of the Bladder, Morbid Irritation of the Bladder and Urethra, Disease of the Prostrate Gland, and Retention or Incontinence of Urine, from a loss of tone in the parts concerned in its evacuation. The remedy has also been recommended in Dyspepsia, Chronic Rheumatism, Cutaneous Affections and Dropsy.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is used by persons from the ages of 18 to 25, and from 35 to 55, or in the decline or change of life; after Confinement or Labor Pains; Bed-Wetting in children.

In affections peculiar to Females, the Extract Buchu is unequalled by any other remedy, as in Chlorosis or Retention, Irregularity, Painfulness or Suppression of Customary Evacuations, Ulcerated or Schirrous State of the Uterus.

DISEASES OF THE BLADDER, KIDNEYS, GRAVEL AND DROPSICAL SWELLINGS.—This medicine increases the power of Digestion, and excites the Absorbents into healthy action, by which the Watery or Calcareous depositions and all Unnatural Enlargements are reduced, as well as Pains and Inflammation.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU has cured every case of Diabetes in which it has been given. Irritation of the Neck of the Bladder and Inflammation of the Kidneys, Ulceration of the Kidneys and Bladder, Retention of Urine, Diseases of the Prostrate Gland, Stone in the Bladder, Calculus, Gravel, Brick-Dust Deposit and Mucous or Milky Discharges, and for enfeebled and delicate constitutions of both sexes, attended with the following symptoms: Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Horror of Diseases, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Pain in the Back, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Eruption on the Face, Pallid Countenance, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, etc.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is Diuretic and Blood-Purifying, and cures all diseases arising from habits of dissipation, excesses and imprudences in life, impurities of the Blood, etc., superceding Copaiba and other Nauseous Compounds.

Beware of counterfeits. Ask for Helmbold's. Take no other.

Price $1.25 per Bottle, or 6 Bottles for $6.50.

MANHOOD

IN THE

Young and Rising Generation.

The vegetable powers of life are strong, but in a few years how often the pallid hue, the lack-lustre eye and emaciated form, and the impossibility of application to mental effort, show their baneful influence. It soon becomes evident to the observer that some depressing influence is checking the development of the body. Consumption is talked of, and perhaps the youth is removed from school and sent into the country. This is one of the worst movements. Removed from ordinary diversions of the ever-changing scenes of the city, the powers of the body, too much enfeebled to give zest to healthful and rural exercise, thoughts are turned inwardly upon themselves.

If the patient be a female the approach of the menses is looked for with anxiety as the first symptom in which nature is to show her saving power in diffusing the circulation and visiting the cheek with the bloom of health. Alas! Increase of appetite has grown by what it is fed on. The energies of the system are prostrated, and the whole economy is deranged. The beautiful and wonderful period in which body and mind undergo so fascinating a change from child to woman, is looked for in vain. The parent's heart bleeds in anxiety, and fancies the grave but waiting for its victim.

TRY HELMBOLD'S

EXTRACT BUCHU

For Weakness Arising from Excesses or Early Indiscretion,

attended with the following symptoms: Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, General Weakness, Horror of Disease, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Dreadful Horror of Death, Night Sweats, Cold Feet, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Languor, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, Often Enormous Appetite with Dyspeptic Symptoms, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Pallid Countenance and Eruptions on the Face, Pain in the Back, Heaviness of the Eyelids, Frequently Black Spots Flying before the Eyes, with Temporary Suffusion and Loss of Sight, Want of Attention, Great Mobility, Restlessness, with Horror of Society. Nothing is more destructible to such Patients than Solitude, and nothing they more dread, for fear of themselves; no repose of matter, no earnestness, no speculation, but a hurried transition from one question to another.

THESE SYMPTOMS, IF ALLOWED TO GO ON—WHICH THIS MEDICINE INVARIABLY REMOVES — SOON FOLLOW LOSS OF POWER, FATUITY AND EPILEPTIC FITS, IN ONE OF WHICH THE PATIENT MAY EXPIRE.

During the Superintendence of Dr. Wilson at the Bloomingdale Asylum, this sad result occurred to two patients. Reason has for a time left them, and both died of epilepsy. They were of both sexes, and about twenty years of age.

Who can say that these excesses are not frequently followed by those direful diseases, Insanity and Consumption? The records of the Insane Asylums, and the melancholy deaths of Consumption, bear ample witness to the truth of these assertions. In Lunatic Asylums the most melancholy exhibitions appears. The countenance is actually sodden and quite destitute; neither mirth nor grief ever visits it. Should a sound of the voice occur it is rarely articulate.

"With woful measures wan despair
Low sullen sounds their grief beguile."

While we regret the existence of the above diseases and symptoms, we are prepared to offer an invaluable gift of chemistry for the removal of the consequences.

HELMBOLD'S

Fluid Extract of Buchu.

There is no tonic like it. It is an anchor of hope to the physician and patient. This is the testimony of all who have used or prescribed it.

Beware of counterfeits and those cheap decoctions called Buchu, most of which are prepared by self-styled doctors, from deleterious ingredients, and offered for sale at "less price" and "larger bottles," etc. They are unreliable and frequently injurious. Ask for Helmbold's. Take no other.

Delivered to any address. Describe symptoms in all communications.

MONDAY, OCTOBER 23, 1871.

The Public Forum,

Manchester's new comic paper, becomes more amusing with each issue, under the conduct of that extremely funny fellow, the editor who fails to wield the "corrective whalebone" for our particular benefit as he promised he would in his first paper. But he manages to let a little truth blunder into the Public Forum, as for instance: in his leading article (in which he notifies the Democrats that they must depart from the "new departure" and go back to the good old Democratic principle that a native-born American—if black—has no rights which a foreign-born Democrat is bound to respect, as their only chance for a victory) speaking of the new departure, he says:—

Now we submit in all candor and sincerity that this thing does not pay. It was a scheme to catch Radical votes.

Correct; that's just what all the Republican papers have said of it all along.—A little further along the editor had a severe attack of spread-eagleism, and produced the following:—

Up with the broad banner of the Constitution of our fathers, strict construction of its provisions, limited central authority, equal taxation, honest and impartial administration, liberty and Democratic government.

He must have felt bad when he fixed that up. Considering the number of times he died in the last ditch, during the late war, in attempting to throw the flag of liberty beneath the feet of a slaveholding aristocracy, the above shout for liberty and democracy shows a marked improvement—the biggest "departure" from old principles of any yet discovered.

But the very best joke in the great comic paper—a joke which shows that real wits can be witty on any subject or none—is the editor's article on the Chicago calamity. He is amusing enough when he "applies the corrective whalebone;" but when he gets into a religious vein he beats Punch all hollow. But with all his fun there is a great deal of wisdom mingled,—he has found out the true cause of the disasters to Chicago and the West. It is a judgment from Heaven on those sinful places, for the wicked part they took in the cruel war against our patriotic southern brethren! He closes as follows:—

We hope that Chicago may speedily recover, and progress with a thrift unprecedented in her history. But let her and let us all remember, that judgment and retribution walk and work in mysterious ways, and no people can long violate the laws of God and humanity, without being overtaken by the penalties decreed by the Almighty.

So the keresene-lamp-and-Irish-woman theory must be given up. Truly, the editor's fun is funny, but his moralizing is much funnier—when you know the man.

He slights us again, we are sorry to say; for he has one-third of a column filled with notices of himself and the Public Forum, taken from various papers, yet includes none of our notices, though he knows they are more truthful than any he gives. But we forgive him in consideration of the gallant work he is doing for the Republican party.

WENDELL PHILLIPS has been speaking in Boston to the friends of temperance, and says:—

You will labor for years without securing your results. But the reward will come when you least expect it. I have an utter conviction that when you get to the real mind of the people you will find that they who will not be ruled by a king or corporations will never be by rum. I am not afraid of despotism with the church on one side and fashion on the other. I am not afraid of corporations. The fear lies deeper than that. If you do not recognize the labor movement and the righteousness of the cause, the people will rise and level the city on the ground, as was done in Paris. Angered and driven to the wall, they will tear asunder the walls of wealth invested in liquor. The time will come when no man that has a gallon of liquor shall keep it, and no man that owns a dollar in it shall continue to own it.

A PRIVATE LETTER from Hall's Arctic expedition states that it succeeded in obtaining a few dogs at Proven and Upernavick, and sailed from the latter place September 5, going north. All well.

CHARLES O'CONOR has associated with him as counsel against Tammany, W. H. Perham, ex-Judge Emott and W. M. Evarts.

SEVEN MEN belonging to a surveying party on the Canada Pacific Railroad were burned to death by fires in the woods.

THE TRIAL of Botts for the murder of Pet Halstead resulted in a verdict of murder in the first degree.

Circular.

Agriculture.

A year ago, the Secretary of the Board of Agriculture sent out to the officers of every town in New Hampshire, a series of questions regarding the farming interests of the State, with the request that replies be made at a given time. About one-half of the towns were reported and are noticed, to some extent, in the Annual Report of the Board. Other towns made no response, though the request was repeated, and prepaid envelopes were sent for returns. Copies of the Report of the Board may be found in the possession of the Representatives, Senators, and other State officers, and in the hands of every Town Clerk. A reference to the document will show what towns were not properly reported to Secretary.

We shall soon commence a series of public meetings in various parts of the State, in which we hope to receive material aid from farmers in the vicinity. We shall collect and disseminate all the information we can on the various agricultural subjects that present themselves for consideration, and shall do all that lies in our power to foster and promote the agricultural interests of the State.

Some of the leading topics that we wish to present and urge upon your attention, and in relation to which we desire information at once or as soon as possible, are herein named:—

1. We shall be glad to receive, at the earliest day practicable, a statement of facts, or your best judgment, in regard to the harvest of the present year in your town, compared with the average of former years, including grass, grain, vegetables, fruit, the amount per acre, and the number of acres under cultivation.

2. State the amount of rain during the season, compared with other years; also the proportion of cold or frost, the heat, the cloudy or rainy days, the amount of showers accompanied by thunder, lightning or hail, the injury done by winds, showers and excessive rains, whether to roads, crops or lands: and at a later day—about the first of April—we desire you to give us information regarding the weather during the winter; the amount of snow, the range of the thermometer, the quantity of fodder consumed during the winter in comparison with that consumed in other seasons, and any other information on the subject of meteorology, and the influence of the weather, whether favorable or otherwise, upon the interests of the farmers, gardeners and stock raisers of the State.

3. Give us full accounts of the injury done by insects of all kinds, especially those that injore grass, fruit, grain and vegetables; the damage done by dogs in killing sheep, or by wild animals in attacks on fowls or otherwise; the injury done to field or garden crops in any other respect, by birds of any kind; the loss of farm animals by diseases, or by accident; and anything else not here enumerated, that is worthy to receive public attention.

4. If you have a Farmers' Club in your town, send us a list of the officers, the times of meeting and reports of discussions, and all the information you can in regard to the work and influence of the Club. If none exists, will you enlist a few men with you and organize and sustain one the coming winter, reporting your organization and success? We feel it to be a matter of great importance to the farmers to sustain clubs in all the towns of the State, for the purpose of discussing their interests, holding local Fairs, and protecting themselves against the tricks of sharpers or imposters in various departments of trade.

5. Tell us whether the farming interest in your town is increasing or diminishing; whether the farm districts have been abandoned in any degree; if woodlands have been stripped, hill-sides turned to grazing, low lands grown up to foul grass, or been drained and made productive; whether new modes of culture have been introduced, new crops grown, new branches adapted to make greater profits, new implements employed, new fertilizers applied, improved stock raised, buildings improved and household furnishings been increased, and whether the farmers work less and live better than they did years ago. And tell us if they are generally free from debt, and have money at interest or on deposit. Communicate to us the comparative expense of labor on the farm, in diary work, or that of the household. We shall be glad to know what markets are most accessible to you, and what influence such markets have on your prosperity and that of your neighbors, who are engaged in rural pursuits. In addition to this say what judgment dictates regarding the advancement of the farming population of the vicinity, and of the social and moral improvements of the people.

These are some of the subjects on which we desire to gather information, in which we ask your aid. You need not be confined to these topics but embrace in your replies, not only these but any others that may be suggested to you.

In behalf of the Board and general interests of agriculture.

Yours truly, JAMES O. ADAMS,
Sec., Manchester.

COMING JUSTICE IN NEW YORK.—At a meeting of the Council for political reform, William M. Evarts, in a speech, said: "If peaceable, orderly and intelligent efforts fail to correct the evils now afflicting us, there is no alternative but violence or force, it being impossible that the present corrupt system of government could be perpetually borne."

DR. GEORGE F. CHASE of Lowell has been fined $109.75 for concealing a case of small-pox or varioloid known to exist within the city limits; but about fifty patients are now at the city hospital.

MISS JENNIE PIXLEY, aged 21 years, a student at the Rockport, N. Y., Normal School, committed suicide by taking strychnine. The cause was the dislike of her friends to the gentleman she loved.

CHARLES DURBAN of Zanesville, O., shot himself while watching at the bedside of his dying wife. She died shortly afterward. The parties had been married less than a year.

—The election laws of Rhode Island require that a foreign born citizen must own $134 worth of real estate before he can vote.

—Two girls, ten and twelve years old, got into a fight at Charleston, and one was killed.

NEW SUBSCRIBERS who now pay in advance for the DAILY CHRONICLE or N. H. GAZETTE for the year 1872, will receive either paper gratis until January. We will furnish the GAZETTE and the Concord Independent Statesman from this date to July 1, 1872, for $2 in advance to new subscribers.

THE EUROPEAN QUESTION.

What is the European question to us? Let the crowned heads fight it out while we supply their armies with provisions.

THE AMERICAN QUESTION

The Means of Escape.

The fall has many perils for the week and feeble, and its sudden atmospheric changes are trying to the constitutions of even the robust. The chilling temperature of the nights, as compared with the almost summer warmth of the days, necessarily exercises an unhealthy influence on all who are exposed to it. Hence dysentery, diarrhœa, intermittent fevers, bilious attacks, and derangements of all the secretions, are common at this season. The true way to escape them is to meet the causes with a protective and invigorating medicine. HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS are designed for this exigency. This powerful vegetable specific relieves the system of all acrid humors, purifies the fluids, tones the secretive organs, promotes healthy evaporation through the pores, increases the activity of the digestive functions, cheers the spirits, and regulates the bowels. To do this is to make the whole body vigorous, and render it proof against the vicissitudes of temperature, and against malaria. A course of the great tonic and alterative is therefore in all cases advisable as a preventive at this season. If, on the other hand, the mischief is already done, and intermittent or remittent fever is actually present, or the liver, bowels, or stomach disordered, there is no medicine so certain to effect a quick and thorough cure as this harmless and agreeable preparation.

Political.

There is every indication that there will be more ballot-box stuffing and repeating at the next election in New York than ever before.

The republican majority in California will be larger than in September, though the vote is lighter.

The Executive Committee of the Union League have decided to call a National Council, December 13.

—The court-martial for the trial of communists, at Versailles, has sentenced ninety-one and acquitted nine thousand.

—John McDevitt, ex-champion billiard player, was burned to death in the Chicago fire.

—The Chicago fund has now reached seven millions of dollars.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

THE DOMESTIC SEWING MACHINE.—Since the Domestic Sewing Machine was awarded the "First Premium" at the late State Fair at Dover, the rush for them has been even greater than ever; Mr. E. A. Joy, the fortunate Agent, whose rooms are adjoining our office, is unable to set them up as fast as they are called for, notwithstanding he has lately employed an able assistant. Everybody who buys a "Domestic" seems happy. At the State Fair it was found to be the only Machine in the world having self adjusting tensions. It was in operation four days, using all kinds of thread on all sorts of goods, without any change of tensions. If you don't examine it before purchasing any other, you will wish you had.

IT IS SAID that if a puff of air were to be blown into a vein of an animal, death would instantaneously follow, because circulation would be stopped. The blood makes the entire circuit of the human body every seven minutes, and whenever this circulation is impeded or any of its channels are clogged by impurities which ought to be carried off, disease follows—fever or a disorder of liver or kidneys, or scrofula, or dyspepsia. To get at and remove the source of the difficulty use the old and infallible blood purifier, DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA VINEGAR BITTERS. o21 4w

A case of chronic rheumatism of unusual severity, cured by "Johnson's Anodyne Liniment," is noticed by one of our exchanges. A large bunch came out upon the breast of the sufferer, and appeared like part of the breast bone.

The sweetest word in our language is health. At the first indication of disease, use well-known and approved remedies. For dyspepsia or indigestion, use "Parson's Purgatives Pills." For coughs, colds, sore or lame stomach, use "Johnson's Anodyne Liniment.

1871. LYCEUM COURSE. 1872

IN arranging the programme for a course of Popular Lectures, Readings, &c., to be given in the

Universalist Church

for the season of 1871—2, the committee believe this list has the largest number of distinguished names ever offered to the Portsmouth public, and that the Course will present attractions not surpassed in point of interest and variety. They will appear in the order announced:

NOV. 2, Maj. Gen. JUDSON KILPATRICK. Subject: "The American Stump." A new, instructive and amusing lecture.

NOV. 9, Rev. W. H. H. MURRAY. Subject: "Deacons." A new lecture.

NOV. 16, JAMES T. FIELDS. Subject: "A Plea for Cheerfulness."

NOV. 23, GEORGE WILLIAM CURTIS. Subject: "Women in the Old time and the New."

NOV. 30, REV. S. H. MCCOLLESTER. Subject: "Athens and Greece."

DEC. 7, Rev. WILLIAM R. NICHOLSON, D. D. Subject: "Civilization and Poverty."

DEC. 14, Rev. E. E. HALE. Subject: "He Did his Level Best," A Story. This is an entirely new feature, arranged especially for Lyceums, and has proved to be an exceedingly attractive one.

Dec. 21, Mrs. MARY A. LIVERMORE. Subject: "What shall we do with our Daughters?"

JAN. 4, PROF. MOSES T. BROWN, and DR. J. H. WILLCOX.

Entertainment: Organ Concert. Miscellaneous Readings, by Prof. Brown, from favorite authors, with some character sketches.

Organ Recitals by Dr. Willcox performed on the fine new organ recently placed in this church.

JAN. 11, Prof. C. H. HITCHCOCK.

Subject: "Life above the Clouds; or, Mt. Washington in Midwinter," illustrated with noted Stereoscopic Views of frost work, exhibited by the sciot a Stereopticon and Calcium Light.

The organ will be exhibited each evening.

TICKETS for this Course are now ready, at the stores of Messrs. Shores, Preston, Thacher and Hill,

PRICE $1.50 FOR THE COURSE.

No single evening tickets will be issued.

As the number to be sold is limited to the comfortable seating capacity of the church, those desiring to attend should secure their tickets without delay, as a large number are already taken up.

Ushers will be in attendance each evening.

SCIENTIFIC AND POPULAR MEDICAL WORKS

—ON—

MANHOOD, WOMANHOOD AND NERVOUS DISEASES,

PUBLISHED BY THE

PEABODY MEDICAL INSTITUTE,

No. 4 Bulfinch Street, Boston,

(Opposite Revere House.)

DR. W. H. PARKER, Assistant Physician.

Medical knowledge for everybody. 250,000 copies sold in two years.

A Book for every Man.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE, OR SELF-PRESERVATION. A Medical Treatise on the Cause and Cure of EXHAUSTED VITALITY, PREMATURE DECLINE IN MAN, NERVOUS AND PHYSICAL DEBILITY, HYPOCHONDRIA, and all other diseases arising from the ERRORS OF YOUTH, OR THE INDISCRETIONS OR EXCESSES of mature years. This is indeed a book for every man. Price only $1.00. 285 pages, bound in cloth.

A Book for Every Woman,

Entitled SEXUAL PHYSIOLOGY OF WOMAN, AND HER DISEASES; or, WOMAN TREATED OF PHYSIOLOGICALLY AND PATHOLOGICALLY, from INFANCY TO OLD AGE, with elegant ILLUSTRATIVE ENGRAVINGS. 300 pages, bound in beautiful French cloth. Price $2.00.

A Book for Everybody.

Flattered by the reception of, and great demand for, the above valuable and timely treatises, and also to meet a great need of the present age, the author has just published a new book, treating exclusively of NERVOUS AND MENTAL DISEASES. 150 pp. cloth. Price $1, or SENT FREE on receipt of $3 for the other two books, postage paid.

These are, beyond all comparison, the most extraordinary works on Physiology ever published. They treat of the most important and interesting character ever introduced to which no allusion even can be found in any other works in our language. All the MYSTERIES of the author, whose experience is such as probably never before fell to the lot of any man, are given in full. No person should be without these valuable books.

"VALUABLE BOOKS.—We have received the valuable medical works published by the Peabody Medical Institute. These books are of actual merit, and should find a place in every intelligent family. They are not the cheap order of abominable trash, published by irresponsible parties, and purchased to gratify coarse tastes, but are written by a responsible professional gentleman of eminence, as a source of instruction on vital matters, concerning which lamentable ignorance exists. The important subjects presented are treated with delicacy, ability and care, and, as an appendix, many useful prescriptions for prevailing complaints are added."—Coos Republican, Lancaster, N. H.

"The author of these books is one of the most learned and popular physicians of the day, and is entitled to the gratitude of our race for these invaluable productions. It seems to be his aim to induce men and women to avoid the cause of those diseases to which they are subject, and he tells them just how and when to do it."—Chronicle, Farmington, Maine, Sept. 7, 1869.

Either book sent by mail on receipt of price.

N. B. The Author of the above-named medical works is the Chief Consulting Physician of the Peabody Medical Institute, and is so constantly employed in consultation with invalids from all parts of the country, that he has no time to attend to mere business details. Therefore all letters should be addressed to the PEABODY MEDICAL INSTITUTE, or to Dr. W. H. PARKER, the Medical Assistant of the Author, and his Business Agent, who, as well as the Author himself, may be consulted on all diseases requiring skill, secrecy and experience. oct26 1yr

Do anything for the relief of the sufferers by fire in Michigan and Wisconsin? Their needs are pressing. "It is more blessed to give than to receive," remember. Who will commence the good work?

The Hutchinson Family,

By special invitation, will give a concert in the Methodist church on State Street, Tuesday evening. Tickets 35 cts. for adults; for children 20 cts. The church should be—and probably will be—crowded.

Republican Meeting.

This evening at headquarters on Daniel Street. All interested in the coming municipal election are requested to be present. Prompt action and thorough organization are necessary. The election will take place Nov. 28th and but five weeks interveno.

The Carriage Sale

By the Came Brothers on Saturday drew a large attendance from all sections of the State. The horses and carriages sold at good prices, the bidding being brisk. This inaugurates a new system in Portsmouth and we hope trade sales will become a leading feature in business here. We learn that the Came Brothers have an order for fifty carriages, from Michigan.

An Unbearable Nuisance.

We have been afflicted the past week with an undefinable presence which assailed our nose. Our nose? Yea, every nose that sniffed inside our sanctum. It pervaded every square inch of space, and refused to depart. Chloride of lime had no effect on it. Callers vanished without bidding us farewell. A fire during the cold days warmed it into double-barrelled elasticity and sent it through every crevice into our neighbors' apartments. Every one who called suggested a different remedy. Even the office "devil" turned up his nose and left for parts unknown. Finally, we ascertained that we had a jolly company in this misery—and misery loves company. Storekeepers murmured, gatherers at the Reading Room thought themselves in proximity to departed rats, Post Office clerks grombled at imaginary foul drains—and we experimented. We turned off the gas, and breathed again. Then our poet thought to rejoice and eliminated the following:

Sing a song of acids,
Base and alkali,
Four and twenty gasses
Baked into a pie;
When the pie was opened,
Wonderful to say,
Oxygen and nitrogen
Both flew away!

As darkness grew apace we needed light, and with the gas came again the abominable smell from the infernal regions on Bow Street. Our throat grows sore, our vision wavers, our voice fails us, we hunger not, neither do we thirst; we choke, we suffocate! Maledictions on the producers of such an odoriferous æriform fluid. May they never live to attend our funeral.

A NEW INVENTION which causes locomotives to consume cinders has been successfully tried on the Fitchburg Railroad. The main point of this contrivance lies in the fact that the smoke-stack of the engine instead of being vertical as is generally the case, is bent backward, and then upward, spreading widely at the mouth. Within the stack at the second curve is placed a wire screen at an angle of forty-five degrees with the course of the smoke, and the usual fire screen is stretched across the mouth. The dust and cinders carried into the stack are stopped by the slanting screen and fall back harmlessly, the second screen assisting by catching what few grains the first allows to pass. Besides these two screens another means of prevention is provided in the shape of a small hot-water pipe in the stack, from which a spray is produced that wets the cinders, deadening them and assisting them in their passage into a box at the side of the engine. This attachment may be used or not at the pleasure of the engineer, being governed by a stopcock from the boiler.

ANOTHER CATASTROPHE.—To the long catalogue of fire, tempest, earthquake shocks, volcanic eruptions, tornadoes and convulsions generally, is now to be added the following—the story is told by the Times of India:

"Advices from Ihangara state at a place about forty miles distant on the hills a thunderbolt fell on the 22d of August after a heavy downpour of rain. The ground was literally cut up in consequence, and the whole of the huts standing there as well as their inmates were swallowed up in the chasm. Such a catastrophe has never been known in Sind. Some fifty or sixty persons perished."

THE REVISED CATECHISM.

BY MARK TWAIN.

First class in modern Moral Philosophy stand up and recite:

What is the chief end of man?
A. To get rich.
In what way?
A. Dishonestly if we can; honestly if we must.
Who is God, the one only and true?
A. Money is God. Gold and greenbacks and stocks—father, son and the ghost of the same—three persons in one; these are the true and only God, mighty and supreme; and William Tweed is his prophet.
Name the twelve apostles.
A. St. Asa's Colt Hall, whereon the prophet rode into Jerusalem; St. Connolly, the beloved disciple; St. Matthew Carnochan, that sitteth at the receipt of customs; St. Peter Fisk, the belligerent disciple; St. Paul Gould, that suffereth many stripes and glorieth in them; St. Isaiah Winans; St. Jacob Vanderbilt, the esteemed disciple; St. Garvey, the charitable; St. Ingersoll, of the holy carpets; St. N. Y. Printing Co., the meek and lowly, that letteth not its right hand know what its left hand taketh; St. Peter Hoffman, that denied his (Irish) master when the public cock had crowed six or seven times; St. Barnard, the wise judge, who imparteth injunctions in time of trouble, whereby the people are instructed to their salvation.
How shall a man attain the chief end of life?
A. By furnishing imaginary carpets to the Court House, apocryphal chairs to the armories, and invisible printing to the city.
Are there other ways?
A. Yea. By purchasing the quarantine apostle for a price; by lightering shipmen of all they possess; by proceeding through immigrants from over the sea; by burying the moneyless at the public charge and transhipping the rest 10 miles at $40 a head. By testing iron work for buildings. By furnishing lead and iron gaspipes to the Court House and then conveying the impression in the bill that they were constructed of gold and silver and set with diamonds. By taking care of the public parks at $5 an inch. By loafing around gin mills on a salary, under the illusion that you are imparting impetus to a shovel on the public works.
Are these sufficient? If not, what shall a man do else to be saved?
A. Make out his bill for ten prices, and deliver nine of them into the hands of the prophet and the holy family. Then he shall be saved.
Who were the models the young men were taught to emulate in former days?
A. Washington and Franklin.
Whom do they and should they emulate now in this era of larger enlightenment?
A. Tweed, Hall, Connolly, Carnochan, Fisk, Gould, Barnard and Winans.
What works were chiefly prized for the training of the young in former days?
A. Poor Richard's Almanac, the Pilgrim's Progress, and the Declaration of Independence.
What are the best prized Sunday School books in this more enlightened age?
A. St. Hall's Garbled Reports, St. Fisk's Ingenious Robberies, St. Carnochan's Guide to Corruption, St. Gould on the Watering of Stock, St. Barnard's Injunctions, St. Tweed's Handbook of Morals, and the Court House edition of the Holy Crusade of the Forty Thieves?
Do we progress?
A. You bet your life.

EXTINCTION OF FIRES.—In the scientific record of Harper's Magazine for February we find the following:

A recent German writer, in discussing the general theory of fires, and the best method of preventing and extinguishing them, mentions various mineral substances which may be mixed with the water employed, to give it much greater efficiency.

Chief among these, in his opinion, is common salt, and he maintains, as the result of actual experiment, that one pare of water containing salt will have more effect than four without it. He explains its action by saying that a saline solution is less readily vaporized than pure water, and that it is not so easily decomposed into its constituent elements of oxygen and hydrogen, which, of course, tend to reunite and produce a still greater intensity of combustion. He thinks that the salt it self also, falling on hot coals, is decomposed, its sodium combining with the oxygen of the water, but that the hydrogen of the water unites with the chlorine of the salt, and forms a complete incombustible gas, which has a very favorable effect in deadening the flame, and aiding in extinguishing the fire.

There is no danger of injury to the fire apparatus attendant upon the use of salt water, provided it be subsequently flushed with fresh water from the hydrant. Our author advises that a supply of rock salt be kept in bags in every engine house, and as soon as a fire breaks out that the solution be made. It is not necessary to have such a solution saturated, as a large percentage of water may be added without materially affecting the efficiency of the mixture.

An important preventive of fire is suggested in the coating of the beams and timbers of newly built houses with soluble glass, applying this in several successive coats of a rather dilute solution, to be followed by a final application of a mixture of soluble glass and cement. Wood treated in this way may be exposed quite close to burning matter without actually taking fire.

—The latest excitement at Charlestown was a street-cleaning race between two gangs of laborers.

The Christian Church in York County.—Perhaps no church is so little known as is this organization. Rarely do they report their wealth, numbers and Christian work to the local press. I see that the reported value of church property on the map of York County is $4700; but this report is so far from the truth that I have taken some pains to make an estimate of the value of their property for your excellent paper. There are thirteen churches in this county of York; the value of the parsonage property owned by these churches is $15,200, and the value of their houses of worship is $33,200, making a total of $48,000 in round numbers; they have also a missionary fund of several thousand dollars. There have been organized two new societies during the past year,—one at Maryland Ridge, and the other at Berwick Junction. The former have a neat house of worship, free from debt, and the other society will soon build. S. A. HUTCHINSON.

THE ELOPEMENT FROM BOB-TAIL BEND.

BY EDWARD F. UNDERHILL.

Wal, stranger, it war the quarest thing, 'and I never could comprehend
How she should 're dar'd to run the reak, not knowing how it would end
In leavin' with me that stormy night on the steamboat at Bob-tail Bend.

We'd been on right square squeezin' terms for maybe a month or more
When her old man, he got his back up, and he slushed around and swore,
And allowed if I ever come thar again, he'd kick me out o' the door.

Which, the more that I thought it over, the more it appeared to be
A gentle hint that I wurn't required to be one o' his family,
Which it made my idea a heap more not that he should be cached by me.

I skurcely know how it come around, but, one night, at the Pilot o' the road,
A streak o' lightnin' lit up the yarth, which a calico dress it showed,
And then I heered a feminine voice—a voice which at worst I knowed.

And then, by one of the sing'l'rist chances, which I never could comprehend,
Her and me, I found, war both a tryin' to git to the end
In the stupendest thunder-storm, which we thought never would end.

We found thar the Pinnak woodin' up, with her bows run sq'ln the shore;
We crossed on the stage-plank and h'isted ourselves up to the cabin floor,
Which I asked if thar war a preacher aboard as quick as we got in the door.

The clerk p'inted out a claw-hammer cost which war slung to a white cravat,
And which it war all roofed over with the shiniest kind o' hat;

"Stranger," ses I, "we'd like to be hitched"—which it wur what we war at.

If him and me had been thar alone, I reckon I jest would 've rent,
And mildly mauled the gilt-edged cuss, as a lively two minute stent
When he said that we couldn't be spliced by him without our parents consent.

So we set out the night and we talked of our love' to the moonlight "purtin" all that she said,
She drowned the noise of the wheezin' exhaust and the piston's clankin' tread,
And the rain swashin' down on the hurriken deck and the thunder claps overhead.

On makin' our lankin' at Gilroy's Bar, matters looked powerful blue,
And which it war Friday, and a crowd wur thar—thar close a soakin' all through,
A'waitin' to witness a churful sight—the hangin' of Jeems Buckaloo.

(And which the occasion wur, as I heered, that Jeems, right keerless, one day,
Had pulled a trigger as he war a ridin' another man's hoss away,
Which it caused the owner to slip his breath his people regretted to say.)

But the clerk he found a gineslne 'squire, which he p'inted us both to the book;
(And which he had on a coon-skin cap and Kaintucky jeans breeches and coat,)
But he got matters into an orkard nux when he tried the language to quote.

And which the fact war he'd jest been elected and hadn't yet learnt up the law,
But in the certifikt which he writ out you couldn't find any a flaw,
For if his hand o' write wurn't so nice, the paper wur good in the law.

And thar is the dockyment—dingy and stained; it tells jest our startin' in life—
A life with a love which it's allus been green without any wrangle or strife;
Which, it couldn't have never been nothin' else, with a woman like Sue for a wife.

How did the old man take it! Wal, stranger, he swaggered and swore,
And cussed and scolded and stamped and stormed, and raved and ripped, and pitched
And allowed he'd let day-light through my liver, and I con't know how many things more.

But in less 'an a month he dropped his spite; he found ov'this better to do,
For he seen that my heart were a sloppin' over with the tenderest love for Sue,
And that my honest young arms and hands had day's works in 'em all through.

And Sue isn't none o' your concave women; she's plump as a 'possum in Fall,
Which her face it is bright with the lovin'st smiles, without any wrinkle at all,
And she stands as straight as a liberty-pole—though she isn't not nigh so tall.

And, yit, it is twenty-four years ago, that we made up our minds, instead
Of sleepin' along on Winter's nights with the rafters close over head,
It'd be a heap more comfort'ble to pile up two in a bed.

And, stranger, to keep a wife party and young, that's only one way that I know;
Whenever you find her clar down in the mouth and sad, and her spiritsis low
Which it is just at such times, then your high-pressurest love you should show.

But maybe, to you, it isn't so quar' and shady as you comprehend
How she should 're dar'd run the reak and rockcein' how it would end

MR. W. D. BANCKER has brought from Chicago a curious memorial of the great fire. Among the ruins of the Western News Company's establishment, where an immense stock of periodicals and books was reduced to ashes, there was found a single leaf of a quarto Bible, charred around the edges. It contained the first chapter of the lamentations of Jeremiah, which opens with the following words: "How doth the city sit solitary that was full of people! how is she become as a widow! she that was great among the nations and princess among the provinces, how is she become tributary! She weepeth sore in the night, and her tears are on her cheeks; among all her lovers she hath none to comfort her." And this was the only fragment of literature saved from the News Company's great depot.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS, For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs, No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal advice and opinions rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity of a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents.

"Mr. R. H. Eddy has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges.

A GREAT MEDICAL DISCOVERY!

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA

VINEGAR BITTERS,

Hundreds of Thousands Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.

WHAT ARE THEY!

THEY ARE NOT A VILE FANCY DRINK, Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Roots and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and a LIFE-GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to direction and remain long unwell, provided the bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the stomach and stimulate the torpid liver and bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effect.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins, cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

PIN, TAPE and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. For full directions, read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French and Spanish.

FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal. ☞ Send for a circular.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs. 1yrdawsf6

The Cause and Cure of Consumption.

The primary cause of Consumption is derangement of the digestive organs. The derangement produces deficient nutrition and assimilation. By assimilation I mean that process by which the nutriment of the food is converted into blood, and thence into the solids of the body. Persons with digestion thus impaired, having the slightest predisposition to pulmonary disease, or if they take cold, will be very liable to have Consumption of the Lungs in some of its forms; and I hold that it will be impossible to cure any case of Consumption without first restoring a good digestion and healthy assimilation. The very first thing to be done is to cleanse the stomach and bowels from all obstructions and stime which is clogging these organs so that they cannot perform their functions, and then rouse up and restore the liver to a healthy action. For this purpose, the surest and best remedy is SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS. These Pills cleanse the stomach and bowels of all the dead and morbid slime that is causing disease and decay in the whole system. They will clear out the liver of all diseased bile that has accumulated there, and arouse it up to a new and healthy action, by which natural and healthy bile is secreted.

The stomach, bowels and liver are thus cleansed by the use of Schenck's Mandrake Pills; but there remains in the stomach an excess of acid, the organ is torpid, and the appetite is poor. In the bowels, the lacteals are weak, and requiring strength and support. It is in a condition like this that Schenck's Seaweed Tonic proves to be the most valuable remedy ever discovered. It is alkaline, and its use will neutralize the excess of acid, making the stomach sweet and fresh; it will give permanent tone to this important organ, and create a good, hearty appetite, and prepare the system for the work of assimilation, digestion, and ultimately make good, healthy, living blood. After this preparatory treatment, what remains to cure most cases of Consumption is the free and persevering use of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup. The Pulmonic Syrup nourishes the system, purifies the blood, and is peculiarly adapted into the circulation, and thence distributed to the diseased lungs. There it ripens all morbid matters, whether in the form of abscesses or tubercles, and then assists Nature to expel all the diseased matter in the form of free expectoration, when once it ripens. It is then, by the great healing and purifying properties of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, that all ulcers and cavities are healed up sound, and my patient is cured.

The essential thing to be done in curing Consumption is to get up a good appetite and a good digestion, so that the body will grow in flesh and get strong. If a person has diseased lungs, a cavity or abscess there, the cavity cannot heal, no matter cannot ripen, so long as the system is below par. What is necessary to cure is a new or further digestion, a good appetite, a good nutrition, the body to grow in flesh and get fat; then Nature is helped, the cavities will heal, the matter will ripen and be thrown off in large quantities, and the person regains health and strength. This is the true and only plan to cure Consumption, and if a person is very bad, if the lungs are not entirely destroyed, or even if one lung is entirely gone, if there is enough vitality left in the other to heal up, there is hope.

I have successfully cured many patients with only one sound lung, live and enjoy life to a good old age. This is what Schenck's medicines will do to cure Consumption. They will clear out the stomach and bowels and strengthen it, get up a good digestion, and give Nature the assistance she needs to clear the system of all the disease that is in the lungs, whatever the form of it may be.

It is important that, while using Schenck's medicines, care should be exercised not to take hard, indigestible food, and during weather to avoid night air, and take out-door exercise only in a genial and warm sunshine.

I wish it distinctly understood that when I commence treating a patient to be cured, I expect to taking cold while using my medicines, I do so for a special reason. A man who has but partially recovered from the effects of a bad cold is far more liable to a relapse than one who has been entirely cured, and it is precisely the same regard to consumption. So long as the lungs are not perfectly healed, just so long is there imminent danger of a full return of the disease. Hence it is that I so strenuously caution patients against taking cold while expecting themselves to an atmosphere that is not genial and pleasant. Confirmed consumptives' lungs are a mass of cheese, which the least change of atmosphere will inflame. The grand secret of my success with my medicines consists in my ability to subdue inflammation instead of provoking it, as most do in the faculty do. An inflamed lung cannot with safety to the patient be exposed to the biting blasts of winter or the chilling winds of spring, and a person in any part of the world can be readily cured by a strict observance of the same.

CHESAPEAKE & OHIOS — FIVE TWENTIES—CENTRAL PACIFICS.

BANKING OFFICE OF

FISK & HATCH,

No. 5 Nassau Street, New York.

September 25th, 1871.

Of the FIFTEEN MILLION CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO SIX PER CENT. LOAN, but about $4,500,000 remain unsold, and this remainder will be taken up rapidly.

The five years' option having expired on all series of FIVE-TWENTY BONDS, except 1867s and 1868s, they are to be called in for payment.

The redemption of 100 millions FIVE-TWENTIES in coin, and the purchases by the Government during the ensuing four months, with the previous, will release about 120 millions of invested capital, independently of dividend and interest payments, the greater part of which must seek reinvestment.

The Chesapeake and Ohio Sixes

have absolutely 30 years to run; are especially suitable for steady investments, and can now be bought

17 per cent. less than Ten-forties.
20 per cent. less than Five-twenties,
25 per cent. less than Sixes of 1881,

and are equally sure to be paid principal and interest in gold coin. Their amount is limited by the Trust Deed to $15,000,000. Price (at present) 90 and accrued interest, that is, with coupon attached, payable Nov. 1.

$1000 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $934.16.

$500 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $477.08.

$100 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $95.42.

Only a small amount of the latter denominations remains, and no more can be made. Bonds with coupon or register form, same as Five-twenties.

This debt is created by the Chesapeake and Ohio Navigation Company for more ample powers and effects, and to extend and complete the main line of their Road to the Ohio River. This work—the most important and valuable improvement now in progress in the country—is rapidly approaching completion. It will establish another and superior line of communication between the Ohio and Mississippi valleys and the eastern cities; bringing ten millions of people, mainly producers, nearer to the centres of consumption in the Eastern States, and nearer to the political and commercial capitals of their country. Such is the commanding importance of this Trunk Line that the largest cities of the West are rapidly feeling forces to connect with it, so as to avail themselves of its unequalled facilities as soon as it is completed. Large tracts of valuable coal lying on lands along its route are passing into the hands of practical miners and iron manufacturers; a large city is springing up at the western terminus, the head of reliable navigation on Ohio, where it intersects 12,000 miles of river transit, and will soon be in connection with 30,000 miles of railroad carriage.

The CENTRAL PACIFIC SIX PER CENT. BONDS are safe for investment as Government Bonds. Their amount fixed by act of Congress at $25,000,000. It is secured by property worth four times their value; they can only be bought in the open market, and are becoming scarcer in consequence of their gradual absorption by investors here and in Europe; they have a ready market in all the principal money-centres, and have twenty-four years to run; the interest is payable in gold, and is steadily increasing, and will probably reach $10,000,000 for the current year, affording a handsome surplus after payment of expenses each interest. Present price, 105 and 102.

When the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad is completed, in 1872, and the Bonds are dealt in at the CENTRAL PACIFIC and CHESAPEAKE and OHIO BONDS are specifically payable in gold coin in New York; the interest on the former being paid January and July, and of the latter, May and November, corresponding with the two classes of Five-twenties.

We buy and sell FIVE-TWENTIES, TEN-FORTIES, EIGHTY-CENTS, and CENTRAL OF WESTERN PACIFICS, or receive them in payment for CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO BONDS at their current market price.

Orders for Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds, accompanied with Drafts or Checks, may be forwarded to us by mail. Bonds or coupons may be forwarded by any responsible Express Company at our expense, and the Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds, in exchange, will be sent by Express, free of charge, and at our risk.

ARE YOU GOING TO PAINT?

—IF SO, USE THE—

AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINT.

It is Cheaper, Handsomer and more durable than the best of other Paints. One Thousand Gallons of it were sold in this City, in the year 1870, and not one complaint has come from those who have used it; but all speak in its favor; it is mixed ready for application, and is much easier put on than any other Paint, making a smooth, hard surface, which can be cleaned with hot suds without injuring it. It is excellent for walls inside, in the place of paper.

I shall keep this season a large stock of Chemical Paints of all shades on hand, to accommodate customers with any amount, without delay in order. Those who want to use the Chemical Paints and have had them misrepresented by those who deal in Lead and Oil, are invited to call and examine my Paints that have been on Buildings two years, and you will find them as fresh as if laid but one month.

RELATIVE RANK OF CITIES.—The cities of New York, Philadelphia and Brooklyn maintain the same relative rank as to population that they did in 1860. There has been considerable shifting of places among those that now constitute the remainder of the twenty foremost cities of the Union.

During the last decade St. Louis has ascended the scale from the eight to the fourth.

Chicago [before the fire] in a similar proportion, changes from the ninth to the fifth.

Baltimore, which in 1860 was the fourth, retrogrades to the sixth.

Boston pursues the same direction, from the fifth to the seventh.

Cincinnati retires a step, from the seventh to the eight.

New Orleans falls back from the sixth to the ninth.

San Francisco, taking a noble forward leap, vaults from the fifteenth to the tenth.

Buffalo lags behind from the tenth to the eleventh.

Washington makes a stride from the fourteenth to the twelfth.

Newark, New Jersey's thriving metropolis, drops, nevertheless, from the eleventh to the thirteenth.

Louisville, twelfth in rank in 1860, is now assigned to the fourteenth.

Cleveland, four steps forward, mounts from the nineteenth to the fifteenth.

Pittsburg alone retains the same relative rank now as then, the sixteenth.

Jersey City raises from the twentieth to the importance of the seventeenth.

Detroit recedes from the seventeenth to the eighteenth.

Milwaukee goes from the eighteenth to the nineteenth.

Albany, which was, ten years ago, the thirteenth, now takes the old place of Jersey City, the twentieth.

FARRAGUT SELECTED. — I had met and been favorably impressed by Captain Farragut some fifteen years previously, during the Mexican war, when I was officiating in the Navy Department as chief of a naval bureau. He at that time made what was considered a remarkable proposition to the then Secretary of the Navy, John Y. Mason, which was a plan to take the castle of San Juan d' Ulloa. I was present when he stated and urged his plan. It was characterized by the earnest, resolute, and brave daring which at a latter day was distinctly brought out in our great civil conflict. Secretary Mason heard him patiently, but dismissed him and his project as visionary and impracticable. The officer and the interview I remembered; and though we had not met for years, the impression then made upon me remained and was alluded to. He was gratified with my allusion to it, and remarked they thought him crazy, but he was satisfied the enterprise was feasible and that he would have taken the castle had he been permitted the opportunity. Naval men in whom I confided spoke well of him, but I think few, if any, appreciated his high and really strong qualities, and most of them, if aware of the New Orleans expedition, and had the choice of a commander devolved upon them, would likely have selected some other favorite. Farragut was attached to no clique, which is sometimes the bane of the navy, was as modest and truthful as he was self-reliant and brave, had individuality, and resorted to none of the petty contrivances common with many for position and advancement.—"Admiral Farragut and New Orleans," by Gideon Welles, in November Galaxy.

GIVE OTHERS PLEASURE.—If you say to yourself, "To-day I mean to be happy," it is a rash promise, a hasty project. But if you say, "To-day I mean to give some one pleasure," it is an amiable intention, which will rarely deceive your hopes. Such conduct is generous and delicate in the extreme, and cannot fail to bear good fruit.

AT UNION CITY, Tennessee, last week, while the pasengers of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad train were at supper, three men jumped on the engine and ran the train back on the track two miles, while two others entered the express car and robbed the safe of $4000. The messenger was at supper and had left one man on guard who was overpowered by the robbers. The thieves escaped.

A NEW TRIAL has been granted to Mrs. Fair. The argument on demurrer comes up before the Supreme Court in a few days. The result is very doubtful and there appears to be no hope for the prisoner.

THE FOURTH RACE of the series for the American cup was sailed on Saturday, between the Livonia and the Sappho, the latter winning by 30 minutes and 29 seconds.

TWENTY PERSONS who were on the steamer R. C. Calhoun, which foundered on Lake Michigan, are still missing. Five more schooners are reported ashore.

BUCHU

[From Dispensatory of the United States.]

DIOSMA CRENATA — BUCHU LEAVES.

PROPERTIES.—Their odor is strong, diffusive and somewhat aromatic; their taste bitterish and analogous to mint.

MEDICAL PROPERTIES AND USES. — Buchu leaves are gently stimulant, with a peculiar tendency to the Urinary Organs.

They are given in complaints of the Urinary Organs, such as Gravel, Chronic Catarrh of the Bladder, Morbid Irritation of the Bladder and Urethra, Disease of the Prostrate Gland, and Retention or Incontinence of Urine, from a loss of tone in the parts concerned in its evacuation. The remedy has also been recommended in Dyspepsia, Chronic Rheumatism, Cutaneous Affections and Dropsy.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is used by persons from the ages of 18 to 25, and from 35 to 55, or in the decline or change of life; after Confinement or Labor Pains; Bed-Wetting in children.

In affections peculiar to Females, the Extract Buchu is unequalled by any other remedy, as in Chlorosis or Retention, Irregularity, Painfulness or Suppression of Customary Evacuations, Ulcerated or Schirrous State of the Uterus.

DISEASES OF THE BLADDER, KIDNEYS, GRAVEL AND DROPSICAL SWELLINGS.—This medicine increases the power of Digestion, and excites the Absorbents into healthy action, by which the Watery or Calcareous depositions and all Unnatural Enlargements are reduced, as well as Pains and Inflammation.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU has cured every case of Diabetes in which it has been given. Irritation of the Neck of the Bladder and Inflammation of the Kidneys, Ulceration of the Kidneys and Bladder, Retention of Urine, Diseases of the Prostrate Gland, Stone in the Bladder, Calculus, Gravel, Brick-Dust Deposit and Mucous or Milky Discharges, and for enfeebled and delicate constitutions of both sexes, attended with the following symptoms: Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Horror of Diseases, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Pain in the Back, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Eruption on the Face, Pallid Countenance, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, etc.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is Diuretic and Blood-Purifying, and cures all diseases arising from habits of dissipation, excesses and imprudences in life, impurities of the Blood, etc., superceding Copaiba and other Nauseous Compounds.

Beware of counterfeits. Ask for Helmbold's. Take no other.

Price $1.25 per Bottle, or 6 Bottles for $6.50.

Describe symptoms in all communications.

MANHOOD

IN THE

Young and Rising Generation.

The vegetable powers of life are strong, but in a few years how often the pallid hue, the lack-lustre eye and emaciated form, and the impossibility of application to mental effort, show their baneful influence. It soon becomes evident to the observer that some depressing influence is checking the development of the body. Consumption is talked of, and perhaps the youth is removed from school and sent into the country. This is one of the worst movements. Removed from ordinary diversions of the ever-changing scenes of the city, the powers of the body, too much enfeebled to give rest to healthful and rural exercise, thoughts are turned inwardly upon themselves.

If the patient be a female the approach of the menses is looked for with anxiety as the first symptom in which nature is to show her saving power in diffusing the circulation and visiting the cheek with the bloom of health. Alas! increase of appetite has grown by what it is fed on. The energies of the system are prostrated, and the whole economy is deranged. The beautiful and wonderful period in which body and mind undergo so fascinating a change from child to woman, is looked for in vain. The parent's heart bleeds in anxiety, and fancies the grave but waiting for its victim.

TRY HELMBOLD'S

EXTRACT BUCHU

For Weakness Arising from Excesses or Early Indiscretion,

attended with the following symptoms: Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, General Weakness, Horror of Disease, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Dreadful Horror of Death, Night Sweats, Cold Feet, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Languor, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, Often Enormous Appetite with Dyspeptic Symptoms, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Pallid Countenance and Eruptions on the Face, Pain in the Back, Heaviness of the Eyelids, Frequently Black Spots Flying before the Eyes, with Temporary Suffusion and Loss of Sight, Want of Attention, Great Mobility, Restlessness, with Horror of Society. Nothing is more desirable to such Patients than Solitude, and nothing they more dread, for fear of themselves; no repose of matter, no earnestness, no speculation, but a hurried transition from one question to another.

THESE SYMPTOMS, IF ALLOWED TO GO ON—WHICH THIS MEDICINE INVARIABLY REMOVES — SOON FOLLOW LOSS OF POWER, FATUITY AND EPILEPTIC FITS, IN ONE OF WHICH THE PATIENT MAY EXPIRE.

During the Superintendence of Dr. Wilson at the Bloomingdale Asylum, this sad result occurred to two patients. Reason has for a time left them, and both died of epilepsy. They were of both sexes, and about twenty years of age.

Who can say that these excesses are not frequently followed by those direful diseases, Insanity and Consumption? The records of the Insane Asylums, and the melancholy deaths of Consumption, bear ample witness to the truth of these assertions. In Lunatic Asylums the most melancholy exhibitions appears. The countenance is actually sodden and quite destitute; neither mirth nor grief ever visits it. Should a sound of the voice occur it is rarely articulate.

"With woful measures wan despair
Low sullen sounds their grief beguile."

While we regret the existence of the above diseases and symptoms, we are prepared to offer an invaluable gift of chemistry for the removal of the consequences.

HELMBOLD'S

Fluid Extract of Buchu.

There is no tonic like it. It is an anchor of hope to the physician and patient. This is the testimony of all who have used or prescribed it.

Beware of counterfeits and those cheap decoctions called Buchu, most of which are prepared by self-styled doctors, from deleterious ingredients, and offered for sale as "less price" and "larger bottles," etc. They are unreliable and frequently injurious. Ask for Helmbold's. Take no other.

Delivered to any address. Describe symptoms in all communications.

Business is being resumed in the most rapid manner imaginable. Many permanent buildings are in course of construction on the burnt district, and a large number of temporary structures. The burnt district is full of workmen, and every department of business is active. The water works are in full operation, all parts of the city being bountiful supplied with water, and the fire department and fire alarm are all perfectly organized. The utmost activity prevails in all directions. All the city banks are doing a good business. The deposits made have been very large. Ten million gallons of water are now being pumped a day at the water works. The total measured distance of the burnt district is four and a half miles in length; the average width is a little over a mile, and the number of acres are 2300. The number of buildings of all kinds destroyed by the fire amounts to 18,000, of which 15,000 were substantial business structures. The actual total pecuniary loss sustained reaches $300,000,000. The first sale of stock of any kind was of 5000 shares of the city railroad, running on the south side of the city, which sold at par. The holders of the west division railroad stock refuse to sell at any price.

Mayor Mason has issued a proclamation appointing Sunday, October 29, as a day of fasting, humiliation and prayer. J. H. McVicker announces that he will rebuild a theatre equal to the one destroyed. The relief committee show a favorable condition of affairs. The Employment Society reports that the demand for laborers is in excess of the supply. The health committee reports that the health of the city is fair, though there has been some increase in diarrhœa and dysentery within a few days. The demand for transportation to leave the city is small. The department for the distribution of supplies is in a gratifying condition.

Barney Aaron, the pugilist, who was reported to have been hung to a lamp-post in Chicago, has turned up in New York in his usual good health.

The Chicago Journal says that Lee & Shepard, Boston publishers, have sent receipted bills to all parties in Chicago who were indebted to them. The amount will reach several thousand dollars.

—While these critters are bellowing about the alleged Tammany frauds, they themselves are guilty of the dastard meanness of cheating the government out of its lawful postage. Cragin has no more right to put his frank upon this sort of correspondence than he has to break in and rob the Concord Post Office of all its money and stamps. A pretty fellow he is to bellow about honesty, integrity, patriotism, loyalty and all that. O, well, it is all of a piece, from Grant to the lowest official Mrs. Grundy in the land. Grant smokes smuggled cigars, and Cragin smuggles such trash as this circular through the Post Office without any stamps. There's cheating all round the board, and it is time to clean out all these rascals and have a new deal.—Manchester Public Forum.

We suppose the above is a specimen of what the Public Forum's editor calls "applying the corrective whalebone." Hasn't he made a mistake, and said "whalebone" when he meant "jawbone?" We fancy he imagines himself Samson, judging from the weapon with which he attempts to slay his political opponents.

THE KU-KLUX.—The accounts from Georgia are that Judge Erskine seems determined to demonstrate that there is no occasion for military occupation; that the State officers of his court are arresting men by the score in the upper part of the State under charges of Ku-Kluxism. The Savannah Republican says: "The law is being vindicated by the civil tribunals, and we believe Georgia juries have long since lost patience with heedless men who are bringing so much trouble upon the State, and will punish them when proved guilty."

Recent intelligence from Yorkville, S. C., is that quite a number of prominent citizens left the county to escape the penalty of the law.

SLAVERY has, at last, had its quietus in Brazil, a bill having passed both legislative branches decreeing its extinction, after a parliamentary struggle of five years. The emancipation is not to be immediate, but progressive, as was the case when England put down slavery in her colonies. The measure, however, may be looked upon as the entering wedge which will split the "institution" in pieces before the lapse of two generations can do away with the progressive principle.

THE NEW YORK ROGUERIES.—Among the current rumors is one that has a great semblance of probability. It is to the effect that an agreement has been made between the Attorney-General at Albany and Tweed that no cases founded on the alleged city frauds shall be brought before the courts until after the election, on the plea that should any arrest be made of Tweed there would probably ensue a terrible riot.

The break of the Brennan faction from the Tammany wing of the Democratic party is a more serious affair in a political sense than anything that has yet transpired, looking to a defeat of the Sachems. It is understood that Brennan is master of the situation, and has given Tweed till next Thursday to settle on certain terms. Should these not be complied with, Sheriff Brennan will draw his scalping-knife and tomahawk, and proclaim relentless war on Tweed and all his followers. This means a loss to Tammany of over 20,000 votes in New York city.

There is a great deal more involved in the Fisk-Stokes case than appears to the public. Not only Fisk but the Tammany ring have been very nervous relative to the letters known to be in possession of Stokes. They show the intimate political relations on the one hand existing between Tammany and Erie, by which the latter not only assisted the former at election times, but also in financial measures adopted by the members of the ring, especially Peter B. Sweeney, to assist the stock operations of the Erie magnates. Fisk has promised the Tammany leaders that no effort shall be spared by him to keep the case from coming before the public until after the coming election, and in furtherance of this promise arranged to change the venue to Brooklyn by inserting the name of a party supposed to reside in that city, but who cannot be found. From present appearances Fisk will not be successful in staying off the trial until after the 7th of November.

BACKING WATER.—The Nashua Telegraph flies the name of Schuyler Colfax for President, but seeing the drift of public sentiment acknowledges the situation very neatly. It says "the world over the jovial man is the popular man, and hence President Grant, who is more of a sphinx than a joker, lacks the personal magnetism which inspires the multitude with enthusiasm. Of course the personal popularity of the President has nothing to do with the administration of the government, and it may well be doubted if he would be a better President was he as jovial as Jo Miller. On his trip "down east," this week, facts were developed which go far to prove that President Grant is popular with the people notwithstanding his immobile nature. Wherever the President went, the people were sure to go, and such hand-shaking and hurrahing on the part of brave men, and such embracing and kissing on the part of fair women, bear unmistakable testimony to the irrepressible affection of the people for the President despite his unconquerable bashfulness. Even the jovial Robeson, who was willing to stand in the place of the President as a vicarious sacrifice to the pretty girls of Maine, did not know a tithe of his popularity. If President Grant is popular enough for the men of Maine, as their actions loudly say he is, we guess he will do for the rest of the country."

All of which is significant of coming events.

WESTERN PLUCK.—Young Mason, son of the Chicago Mayor, and a worthy scion, was in Troy, N. Y., recently, "stocking up" in stoves. Married a little over a year ago, he was in a prosperous stove trade, and had just completed a new house for himself and wife. Everything was swept away, except his wedding presents, which were at the house of his father. This house was saved. The fires were hardly extinguished before young Mason gathered these presents together and started with them for New York. He sold them to Tiffany & Co. for $5000. With this money he will now re-establish himself, opening a stove store for the time being in the basement of his father's elegant residence.

Bear Bull.

In Troy, the White Stockings beat the Haymakers, 11 to 5. The White Stockings play the Athletics of Philadelphia the deciding game of the series in Brooklyn on Wednesday, and play the Haymakers at Troy on Thursday and Friday. The White Stockings will play the Boston Reds on Wednesday.

THE BOSTON HERALD is sued for libel to the amount of $20,000, for publishing a communication. The case seems very similar to that of the CHRONICLE in 1868, an appeal to Court and jury resulting in a verdict of "not guilty," the truth of the communication being proved in evidence.

New Hampshire Items.

The State bonds stolen from Mr. Jesse Crosby of Nashua by burglars have been negotiated by a Boston banking house.

The White Mountains are covered with snow.

Among the dead from the Chicago fire is Mr. Horace Dewey of Lebanon, who was driven from the third story of the building he was in and fell to the ground, being killed instantly.

Mr. Timothy Cole, formerly of Lake Village, but late of Menominee, Michigan, lost his sawmill, timber and lumber, and thinks it was mighty lucky that he wasn't cooked by the fire that swept over so large a portion of the State.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

THE DOMESTIC SEWING MACHINE.—Since the Domestic Sewing Machine was awarded the "First Premium" at the late State Fair at Dover, the rush for them has been even greater than ever; Mr. E. A. Joy, the fortunate Agent, whose rooms are adjoining our office, is unable to set them up as fast as they are called for, notwithstanding he has lately employed an able assistant. Everybody who buys a "Domestic" seems happy. At the State Fair it was found to be the only Machine in the world having self adjusting tensions. It was in operation four days, using all kinds of thread on all sorts of goods, without any change of tensions. If you don't examine it before purchasing any other, you will wish you had.

IT IS SAID that if a puff of air were to be blown into a vein of an animal, death would instantaneously follow, because circulation would be stopped. The blood makes the entire circuit of the human body every seven minutes, and whenever this circulation is impeded or any of its channels are clogged by impurities which ought to be carried off, disease follows—fever or a disorder of liver or kidneys, or scrofula, or dyspepsia. To get at and remove the source of the difficulty use the old and infallible blood purifier, DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA VINEGAR BITTERS. 021 4w

A case of chronic rheumatism of unusual severity, cured by "Johnson's Anodyne Liniment," is noticed by one of our exchanges. A large bunch came out upon the breast of the sufferer, and appeared like part of the breast bone.

The sweetest word in our language is health. At the first indication of disease, use well-known and approved remedies. For dyspepsia or indigestion, use "Parson's Purgative Pills." For coughs, colds, sore or lame stomach, use "Johnson's Anodyne Liniment.

The Home of Escape.

The fall has many perils for the weak and feeble, and its sudden atmospheric changes are trying to the constitutions of even the robust. The chilling temperature of the nights, as compared with the almost summer warmth of the days, necessarily exercises an unhealthy influence on all who are exposed to it. Hence dysentery, diarrhœa, intermittent fevers, bilious attacks, and derangements of all the secretions, are common at this season. The true way to escape them is to meet the causes with a protective and invigorating medicine. HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS are designed for this exigency. This powerful vegetable specific relieves the system of all acrid humors, purifies the fluids, tones the secretive organs, promotes healthy evaporation through the pores, increases the activity of the digestive functions, cheers the spirits, and regulates the bowels. To do this is to make the whole body vigorous, and render it proof against the vicissitudes of climate, contagion, and epidemic malaria. A course of the great tonic and alterative is therefore in all cases advisable as a preventive at this season. If, on the other hand, the mischief is already done, and intermittent or remittent fever is actually present, or the liver, bowels, or stomach disordered, there is no medicine so certain to effect a quick and thorough cure as this harmless and agreeable preparation.

A PHILOSOPHIC CHICAGOAN.—A gentleman writes: "Charley can tell you about the fire, so I won't say anything about it now, only to remark that we always wait here until other places have made their little demonstrations, and then we go in and beat 'em. We are the largest grain market, largest lumber and provision market in the world, and now we beat 'em all on the subject of ruins."

Three houses, with outbuildings, were burned in Manchester last Sunday morning. The whole loss is about $7000; insured $1000. This was the work of an incendiary, who set at least two other fires at the same time, which were put out before doing any damage. Great excitement exists in Manchester, in consequence, and the wildest rumors are afloat.

1871. LYCEUM COURSE. 1872

IN arranging the programme for a course of Popular Lectures, Readings, &c., to be given in the

Universalist Church

for the season of 1871—2, the committee believe this list has the largest number of distinguished names ever offered to the Portsmouth public; and that the Course will present attractions not surpassed in point of interest and variety. They will appear in the order announced:

NOV. 2, Maj. Gen. JUDSON KILPATRICK. Subject: "The American Stump." A new, instructive and amusing lecture.

NOV. 9, Rev. W. H. H. MURRAY. Subject: "Deacons." A new lecture.

NOV. 16, JAMES T. FIELDS. Subject: "A Plea for Optimism."

NOV. 23, GEORGE WILLIAM CURTIS. Subject: "Women in the Old time and the New."

NOV. 30, REV. S. H. MCCOLLESTER. Subject: "Athens and Greece."

DEC. 7, Rev. WILLIAM R. NICHOLSON, D.D. Subject: "Civilization and Poverty."

DEC. 14, Rev. E. E. HALE. Subject: "He Did his Level Best." A Story. This is an entirely new feature, arranged especially for Lyceums, and has proved to be an exceedingly attractive one.

Dec. 21, Mrs. MARY A. LIVERMORE. Subject: "What shall we do with our Daughters?"

JAN. 4, PROF. MOSES T. BROWN, and DR. J. H. WILLCOX. Entertainment; Organ Concert, Miscellaneous Readings, by Prof. Brown, from favorite authors, with some character sketches.

Organ Recitals by Dr. Willcox performed on the fine new organ recently placed in this church.

JAN. 11, Prof. C. H. HITCHCOCK. Subject: "Life above the Clouds; or, Mt. Washington in Midwinter," illustrated with noted Stereoscopic Views of frost work, exhibited by the aid of a Stereoptikon and Calcium Light.

The organ will be exhibited each evening.

TICKETS for this Course are now ready, at the stores of Messrs. Shores, Preston, Thacher and Hill.

PRICE $1.50 FOR THE COURSE.

No single evening tickets will be issued.

As the number to be sold is limited to the comfortable seating capacity of the church, those desiring to attend should secure their tickets without delay, as a large number are already taken up.

Ushers will be in attendance each evening.

SCIENTIFIC AND POPULAR MEDICAL WORKS

—ON—

MANHOOD, WOMANHOOD AND NERVOUS DISEASES,

PUBLISHED BY THE

PEABODY MEDICAL INSTITUTE,

No. 4 Bulfinch Street, Boston,

(Opposite Revere House.)

DR. W. H. PARKER, Assistant Physician.

Medical knowledge for everybody. 250,000 copies sold in two years.

A Book for every Man.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE, OR SELF-PRESERVATION: A Medical Treatise on the Causes and Cure of EXHAUSTED VITALITY, PREMATURE DECLINE IN MAN, NERVOUS AND PHYSICAL DEBILITY, HYPOCHONDRIA, and all other diseases arising from the ERRORS OF YOUTH, OR THE INDISCRETIONS OR EXCESSES of mature years. This is indeed a book for every man. Price only $1.00. 285 pages, bound in cloth.

A Book for Every Woman,

Entitled SEXUAL PHYSIOLOGY OF WOMAN, AND HER DISEASES; or, WOMAN TREATED OF PHYSIOLOGICALLY AND PATHOLOGICALLY, from INFANCY TO OLD AGE, with elegant ILLUSTRATIVE ENGRAVINGS. 350 pages, bound in beautiful French cloth. Price $2.00.

A Book for Everybody.

Flattered by the reception of, and great demand for, the above valuable works, and frequently treatises, and also to meet a great need of the profession, the author has just published a new book, treating exclusively of NERVOUS AND MENTAL DISEASES. 150 pp., cloth. Price $1.00, SENT FREE on receipt of $3 for the other two books, postpaid.

These are, beyond all comparison, the most extraordinary works on Physiology ever published. There is nothing whatever that the MARRIED OR SINGLE, OF EITHER SEX, can either require or wish to know, but what is fully explained, and many matters of the most important and interesting character are introduced to which no allusion even can be found in any other works in our language. All the NEW DISCOVERIES of the author, whose experience is such as probably never before fell to the lot of any man, are given in full. No person should be without these valuable books.

"VALUABLE BOOKS.—We have received the valuable medical works published by the Peabody Medical Institute. These books are of actual merit, and should find a place in every intelligent family. They are not the cheap orders of abominable trash, published by irresponsible parties, and purchased to gratify coarse tastes, but are written by a responsible professional gentleman of eminence, as a source of instruction on vital matters, concerning which lamentable ignorance exists. The important subjects presented are treated with delicacy, ability and care, and, as an appendix, many useful prescriptions for prevailing complaints are added."—Coos Republican, Lancaster, N. H.

"The author of these books is one of the most learned and popular physicians of the day, and is entitled to the gratitude of our race for these invaluable productions. It seems to be his aim to induce men and women to avoid the causes of those diseases to which they are subject, and he tells them just how and when to do it."—Chronicle, Farmington, Maine, Sept. 7, 1869.

Either book sent by mail on receipt of price.

N. B. The Author of the above-named medical works is the Chief Consulting Physician of the Peabody Medical Institute, and is so constantly employed in consultation with invalids from all parts of the country, that he has no time to attend to mere business details. Therefore all letters should be addressed to the PEABODY MEDICAL INSTITUTE, or to Dr. W. H. PARKER, the Medical Assistant of the Author, and his Business Agent, who, as well as the Author himself, may be consulted on all diseases requiring skill, secrecy and experience. oct26 1yr

Successful Enterprise.

A large number of out of town people were seen on our streets on Saturday, attracted by the auction sale of Came Brothers stock of carriages, &c. The first semi-annual sale, which we are told is to be held hereafter at the close of each summer and winter business, was attended by buyers from many towns and cities. Over ninety per cent. of the articles sold, as we are informed by Major Hackett, the auctioneer, were bought by purchasers from towns and cities at a distance. There were present dealers, stable keepers and customers, from Portland, Concord, Exeter, Manchester, Dover, Great Falls and Boston. The freight train on the Great Falls & Conway R. R. took out several carriages for persons on the line of that road. The building of this line sent the Messrs. Came new customers, as it has to our iron and coal dealers. The carriages sold in some instances were bought by persons from Ossipee, Milton, Brookfield, Springvale and towns in that direction. The sale lasted from half-past ten o'clock in the forenoon (with a brief intermission for lunch) until after four o'clock in the afternoon, and was doubtless the largest sale of the kind ever held in the Granite State.

We are glad to see one establishment of this kind on a sound basis in Portsmouth. Years ago, manufacturers of carriages in Exeter were requested to come to Portsmouth and establish the business, but for a long time we lacked the advantages of a first class establishment. The Messrs. Came seem to have come here on their own hook, and have alone and by their superior work (which at State Fairs and all other places where it is seen receives the highest commendation of good judges) built up an enviable reputation. It is by this kind of manufactures, carried on by practical men that our city prospers. The men so constantly employed here add to our population and created wealth. The name of Portsmouth for good carriages will soon be as celebrated as it was before the decline of commerce for well built ships, and the Cames in their new field of successful enterprise will doubtless have the best wishes for success of every citizen in our community.

Communicated.

Our Fire Department.

Messrs. Editors:—I have read the communications of "Old Fire-ward" and "Ex-Engineer," but it seems to me that the questions to be answered are these, 1st, Have we all the facilities needed to extinguish fire? 2d, Is our Fire Department organized as efficiently and economically as it can and should be? To the first question the answer must of course be in the negative; the one thing of all others that is needed is water. We have at present five reservoirs, and three of them are so much out of repair that they will only hold water up to the crown; all put in above that leaks out. The annual reports of every Chief Engineer we have had for the last ten years have recommended more reservoirs and have had salt water thrown in their faces every time. Let a fire start on a windy night near the residence of Mayor Adams, and salt water, the river or the Mill Ponds won't save us. It has happened so for a number of years back that the most of our fires, dangerous ones especially, have broken out near the river. Suppose the Penhallow Street fire had started at the corner of Cabot Street, instead of where it did! I will agree that the North Mill Pond would have been of some use, and perhaps the river might. Old Fireward and Ex-Engineer may re-organize the Fire Department and change the management of it, but water must be had after all. EX-FIREMAN.

Messrs. Editors:—In order to set aright "Old Fire-ward," I can say the defeat of one of the best projects ever advanced for the better protection of the city from fire, was due to the opposition of Old Fire-wards who are at present directors of a certain water company; I mean the idea first broached by the late Charles W. Brewster and seconded by Mayor Jones in his first inaugural, and for which money was appropriated one or two years ago to the amount of five thousand dollars. Had that pipe been laid previous to the late fire in Bridge Street spoken of by "Fire-ward," seven streams of water could have been put upon that fire if necessary, with less number of feet of hose than used at that time to put on three; and the Steamers being nearer to the fire, communication between them and the pipe would have been better and more sure. I think the idea of carrying water in the hand engines a very poor one for the reason it would take more power to haul the engine to a fire. My experience is that an engine can go to a fire empty and put a stream on as soon as he could with one full, for he certainly could not put a stream on until after he had laid the leading hose, and any one who knows anything about a hand engine knows that one can be put in complete working order while the leading hose is being laid. EX-ENGINEER.

S. J. Court.

On Monday, the Attorney General gave notice that Marshall of Seabrook would not be tried for murder at this term unless the body of Knox should be found this week. The prisoner will be released on bail.

David O. Clark and Charles Works of Kingston, pleaded not guilty to the charge of selling liquor.

Annie Adams pleaded not guilty to a charge of keeping a house of ill fame on Court Street, known as the "Vineyard." Trial to-day.

The case of James Gilchrist for breaking and entering the store of George Stott, in this city, and stealing silver coin therefrom, was tried and given to the jury.

The Lorillard

Fire Insurance Co. of New York pays all its losses and uncarned premiums and will reorganize with a capital of $500,000. F. W. DeRochemont & Son are Agents in this city.

The Hutchinson Family

Sing this evening at the Methodist church on State street. They will have a full house, probably, and there is no doubt about their giving a good concert. See adv't.

The Milburns

Were to give an entertainment at the Temple, this evening. We have not heard from them—but they may come. The Portland papers praise their performances.

Fire in York.

The house and barn (with contents) owned by James Fitzgerald were burned at a late hour, Saturday night. Several cattle were burned. No insurance.

Mrs. Partington

Has been lecturing in Manchester and her friends wish to hear the dear old lady here. Ike's friends dare him to come home, and that'll bring the dame, sure.

The Friends

Of Mr. Jeff. C. Rowe, the heroic baggage master who lost an arm by the Revere accident, have started a subscription paper for his benefit in Boston.

Naval.

Lieut. Commander J. H. Rowland has been ordered to ordnance duty at the navy yard.

THE JURY at Salt Lake City in the case of Hawkins, the Mormon, charged with adultery, have brought in a verdict of guilty. This is a test case, and every polygamist in Utah is at the mercy of his first wife. The law under which Hawkins has been convicted is a Mormon one, originally designed to protect Mormon "preserves" from Gentile poachers.

AID FOR WISCONSIN.—Lieutenant-General Sheridan, on being officially informed by Governor Fairchild of affairs in northern Wisconsin, at once issued orders for the despatch of 4000 army blankets, 2000 overcoats and 100 wagons for their relief.

A MAN in Benton, Me., by the name of Hodgdon had his barn burned on Friday. After the fire was extinguished the remains of his little child, only four years old, were found in the ruins, horribly burned and disfigured.

MR. MUDGE, one of the sufferers by the Eastern Railroad disaster at Revere, who was badly scalded, sued the company for $30,000. The corporation promptly paid $10,000, which settles the matter.

NEW SUBSCRIBERS who now pay in advance for the DAILY CHRONICLE or NEW. GAZETTE for the year 1872, will receive other paper gratis until January. We will furnish the GAZETTE and the Concord Independent Statesman from this date to July 1, 1872, for $2 in advance to new subscribers.

A PLACE FOR THE LEAN!
Say, old boy, where shall we meet?
Why, at Garrety's, on Daniel Street,
He's such a jolly fellow;
His LAGER is always fresh and prime,
It never wants a "head" and is
Refreshing, cool and mellow!
You require, my boy, some filling out,
You're thin, and meagre-looking;
Lager would give you the proper size,
Look at the host, he once was scant,
His BEER has made of flesh no want,
Go thou and drink likewise.
☞ Lager furnished for excursion parties by the Keg. M. GARRETT.

Morning Chronicle.

TAKING THINGS WITHOUT ASKING.—When I was a boy, I was playing out in the street one winter's day, catching rides on sleighs, and it was great fun. Boys would rather catch rides any day than go out regularly and properly to take a drive. As I was catching on to one sleigh and another, sometimes having a nice time, and oftentimes getting a out from a big black whip, I at last fastened like a barnacle to the side of a countryman's cutter.

An old gentleman sat alone on the seat, and he looked at me rather benignantly, as I thought, and neither said anything to me nor swung his old whip over me; so I ventured to climb upon the side of the cutter. Another benignant look from the countryman, but not a word. Emboldened by his supposed goodness, I ventured to tumble into the cutter and take a seat under his warm buffalo robe beside him, and he then spoke. The colloquy was as follows:

"Young man, do you like to ride?"

"Yes."

"Do you own a cutter, young man?"

"No, sir."

"It's a pretty nice cutter, isn't it?"

"Yes, sir, it is, and a nice horse drawing it!"

"Did I ask you to get in?"

"No, sir."

"Well then, why did you get in?"

"Well, sir, I—I thought you looked good and kind, and you would have no objection."

"And so, young man, because you thought I was good and kind, you took advantage of that kindness, and took a favor without asking for it?"

"Yes, sir."

"Is the ride worth having?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, now, young man, I want to tell you two things. You should never take a mean advantage of the kindness of others; and what is worth having, is worth at least asking for. Now, as you tumbled into this sleigh without asking me, I shall tumble you out into that snow-drift without asking you."

And out I went, like a shot off a shovel, and he didn't make much fuss about it either. I picked myself up in a slightly bewildered state, but I never forgot that lesson.

QUALITIES OF A GOOD COLLECTOR.—Is on time to a minute when his debtor says "come to-morrow at nine o'clock." Sits on the steps and waits for his return when he says, "I am just going to dinner."

Insists on stepping out to make change when the man "has nothing less than a twenty."

Will go to an "old stager" every day for a month with a cheerful countenance "about that little account."

Doesn't mind edging into a crowd to ask a fellow.

Will take a dollar in part if he can't get ten in whole, and "credit it" with thankful alacrity.

Always suggests a check when the money is not in hand, as he can get it "cashed" to-morrow.

Always has that account "on top" so the man can make no excuse for putting him off.

Don't mind asking for it immediately after being "treated"—or pleasantly entertained.

Is never in a hurry, "can wait till you get through."

Cuts off the retreat of the dodger by crossing over to meet him, or follows him into a store where he goes to hide.

Can cough or salute when the "hard case" wants to pass without seeing him.

In fine—is patient as a post, cheerful as a duck, sociable as a flea, bold as a lion, weather-proof as a rubber, cunning as a fox, and watchful as a sparrow-hawk.—Columbus Index.

A FULL DAY'S WORK.—M. M., of Oxford, don't object to having a hired man to do a full day's work, or at least so we should judge from the following story:—

A short time ago a man went to his place for work. Mr. M. set him ploughing around a forty-acre field. After he had ploughed faithfully all day, until the sun was about half an hour high, he expressed his opinion that it was about time to quit work.

"O, no," said Mr. M., "you can plough around six or eight times more just as well as not."

So the hired man ploughed around six or eight times, then took care of his team, milked ten cows, ate his supper, and found ten o'clock staring him in the face from the old timepiece.

Said the hired man to Mrs. M., "Where is Mr. M.?"

The good woman answered, "He has retired; do you wish to see him?"

He replied that he did. After being conducted to the bedroom he said:

"Mr. M., where is the axe?"

"Why," said Mr. M., "what do you want to do with the axe?"

"Well," said the hired man, "I thought you might like to have me split wood till breakfast is ready."

OUR MOSCOW being the heading prefixed by some journals to accounts of the Chicago disaster, the Cincinnati Times thinks that under the circumstances of the case, "Our Boscow" might be more apropos!

—The Chicago Journal has begun joking again already on its own misfortunes, and says: "If thine enemy hunger, the correct thing is to give him a cigar after dark, and, when he strikes a match to light it, shout 'incendiary,' and assist at his lynching."

—A very intelligent Virginia mule, being hemmed in on a railroad track by an approaching train, jumped into a cattle guard, crouched down until the train had passed, and then jumped out and walked off as if nothing had happened.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS, For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs, No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON, After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Opinions of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity of a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents.'

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents.

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cause, and at very reasonable charges. A GREAT MEDICAL DISCOVERY!

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA

VINEGAR BITTERS.

Hundreds of Thousands Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.

WHAT ARE THEY!

THEY ARE NOT A VILE FANCY DRINK, Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Roots and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and a LIFE-GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to direction and remain long unwell, provided the bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the stomach and stimulate the torpid liver and bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effect.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins, cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

PIN, TAPE and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. For full directions, read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French and Spanish.

FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal. ☞ Send for a circular.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs. 1yrdawf&b16

The Cause and Cure of Consumption.

The primary cause of Consumption is derangement of the digestive organs. The derangement produces deficient nutrition and assimilation. By assimilation I mean that process by which the nutriment of the food is converted into blood, and then into the solids of the body. Persons with digestion thus impaired, having the slightest predisposition to pulmonary disease, or if they take cold, will be very liable to have Consumption of the Lungs in some of its forms; and I hold that it will be impossible to cure any case of Consumption without first restoring a good digestion and healthy assimilation. The very first thing to be done is to cleanse the stomach and bowels from all diseased mucous and slime which is clogging these organs so that they cannot perform their functions, and then rouse up and restore the liver to a healthy action. For this purpose, the surest and best remedy is SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS. These Pills cleanse the stomach and bowels of all the dead and morbid slime that is causing disease and decay in the whole system. They then start out the liver of all diseased bile that has accumulated there, and arouse it up to a new and healthy action, by which natural and healthy bile is secreted.

The stomach, bowels and liver are thus cleansed by the use of Schenck's Mandrake Pills; but there remains in the stomach an excess of acid, the organ is torpid, and the appetite is poor. In the bowels, the lacteals are weak, and requiring strength and support. It is in a condition like this that Schenck's Seaweed Tonic proves to be the most valuable remedy ever discovered. It is alkaline, and its use will neutralize all excess of acid, making the stomach sweet and fresh; it will give powerful tone to this important organ, and create a good, hearty appetite, and prepare the system for the first process of a good digestion, and ultimately make good, healthy, living blood. After this preparatory treatment, what remains to cure most cases of consumption is the free and persevering use of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup. The Pulmonic Syrup nourishes the system, purifies the blood, and is readily absorbed into the circulation, and thence distributes to the diseased lungs. There it ripens all morbid matters, whether in the form of abscesses or tubercles, and then assists Nature to expel all the diseased matter in the form of free expectoration, when once it ripens. It is then, by the great healing and purifying properties of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, that all ulcers and cavities are healed up sound, and my patient is cured.

The essential thing to be done in curing Consumption is to get up a good appetite and a good digestion, so that the body will grow in flesh and get strong. If a person has diseased lungs, a cavity or abscess there, the cavity cannot fill, the matter cannot ripen, and long as the system is below par. What is necessary to cure is a new order of things, a good appetite, a good nutrition, the body to grow in flesh and get fat; then Nature is helped, the cavities will heal, the matter will ripen and be thrown off in large quantities, and the person regains health and strength. This is the true and only plan to cure Consumption, and if a person is very bad, if the lungs are not entirely destroyed, or even if one lung is gone, sound and healthy enough vitality left in the other to heal up, there is hope.

I have seen many persons cured with only one sound lung, live and enjoy life to a good old age. This is what Schenck's medicines will do to cure Consumption. They will clean out the stomach, restore the digestion, give a good healthy action, and give Nature the assistance she needs to clear the system of all the disease that is in the lungs, whatever that may be.

It is important that, while using Schenck's medicines, care should be exercised not to take cold; keep in-doors in cold and damp weather, would slight at first take one-door exercise only in a genial and warm sunshine.

I wish it distinctly understood that when I recommend a patient to be careful in regard to taking cold while using my medicines, I do so for a special reason. A man who has but partially recovered from the effects of a bad cold is far more subject to a second than one who has been entirely cured, and it is precisely the same in regard to consumption. So long as the lungs are not perfectly healthy, just so long is there imminent danger of a full return of the disease. Hence it is that I so strenuously caution pulmonary patients against exposing themselves to cold, or to any place that is not genial and pleasant. Confirmed consumptives' lungs are a mass of sores, which the least change of atmosphere will inflame. The great secret of my success with my medicines consists in my ability to subdue inflammation instead of provoking it, as many of the remedies do. An inflamed lung cannot with safety to the patient be exposed to the biting blasts of winter or the chilling winds of spring or autumn. It should be carefully shielded from every irritating influence. The utmost caution should be observed in this particular, as without it a cure under almost any circumstances is an impossibility.

The person should be kept on a wholesome and nutritious diet, and all the medicines continued until the body has restored to it the natural quantity of flesh and strength.

I was myself cured by this treatment of the worst kind of Consumption, and have lived in good health and strength for many years, with one lung mostly gone. I have cured thousands since, and very many have been cured by this treatment whom I have never seen.

About the first of October I expect to take possession of my new building at the northeast corner of Sixth and Arch Streets, where I shall be pleased to give advice to all who may require it.

Full directions accompany all my remedies, so that a person in any part of the world can be readily cured by a strict observance of the same.

CHESAPEAKE & OHIOS — FIVE TWENTIES—CENTRAL PACIFICS.

BANKING OFFICE OF

FISK & HATCH,

No. 5 Nassau Street, New York.

September 25th, 1871.

Of the FIFTEEN MILLION CHESAPEAKE and OHIO SIX PER CENT. LOAN, but about $4,500,000 remain unsold, and this remainder will be taken up rapidly.

The five years' option having expired on all series of FIVE-TWENTY BONDS, except 1867s and 1868s, they are liable to be called in for payment. The redemption of 190 millions FIVE-TWENTIES in coin, and the purchases by the Government, during the ensuing four months, with the premium thereon, will release about 190 millions of invested capital, independently of dividend and interest payments, the greater part of which must seek reinvestment.

The Chesapeake and Ohio Sixes

have absolutely 30 years to run; are especially desirable for steady investments, and can now be bought

17 per cent. less than Ten-forties.
20 per cent. less than Five-twenties,
25 per cent. less than Sixes of 1881,

and are equally sure to be paid principal and interest in gold coin. Their amount is limited by the Trust Deed to $15,000,000. Price (at present) 93 and accrued interest, that is, with coupon attached, payable Nov. 1.

$1000 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $954.16.

$500 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $477.08.

$100 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $95.42.

Only a small amount of the latter denominations remains, and no more can be made. Bonds are in coupon or register form, same as Five-twenties.

This debt is created by the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad Company in order more speedily and effectually to extend and complete the main line of their Road to the Ohio River. This work —the most important internal improvement in the country— is rapidly approaching completion. It will establish another and superior line of communication between the Ohio and Mississippi Valleys and the eastern cities; bringing ten millions of people, mainly producers, nearer to the centres of consumption in the Eastern States, and nearer to the foreign and commercial capitals of that country. Such is the commanding importance of this Trunk Line that the larger cities of the West are projected by railroads to connect with it, so as to make themselves of its unequalled facilities as soon as it is completed. Large tracts of valuable coal and iron lands along its route are passing into the hands of practical miners and iron manufacturers; a large city is springing up at the western terminus, the head of reliable navigation on the Ohio, where it intersects 12,000 miles of river transit, and will soon be in connection with 30,000 miles of railroad carriage.

The Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad is completed, in 1872, and the Bonds are dealt in at the Stock Exchanges of the world, we have no doubt, soon after the completion of the Pacific Central Pacifics. Both principal and interest of the CENTRAL PACIFIC 10 and CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO Bonds are specifically pledged for both the Central New York; the interest on the former being paid January and July, and of the latter, May and November, corresponding with the two classes of Five-twenties.

We buy and sell FIVE-TWENTIES, TEN-FORTIES, EIGHTY-ONES, and CERRAS, or WHEAT-FIELDS, and receive them in payment for CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO BONDS at their current market price.

Orders for Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds, accompanied with Drafts or Checks, may be forwarded to us by mail. Bonds or money may be forwarded by responsible Express Company at our expense, and the Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds, in exchange, will be sent by return Express, charges paid.

P. S.—Accounts of Banks, Bankers and others received, on which we allow Four Per Cent. interest.

Certificates of deposit issued and collections made in all parts of the Union.

AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINT.

It is Cheaper, Handsomer and more durable than the best of other Paints. One Thousand Gallons of it were sold in this City, in the year 1870, and not one complaint has come from those who have used it, but all speak in its favor; it is mixed ready for application, and is much easier put on than any other Paint, making a smooth, even surface for years, that can be washed with hot suds without injuring it. It is excellent for walls inside, in the place of paper.

I shall keep this season a large stock of Chemical Paints of all shades on hand, to accommodate customers with any amount, without delay in ordering it. Those who want to use the Chemical Paint and have had them misrepresented by those who deal in Lead and Oil, are invited to call and examine my Paints that have been on Buildings two years, and you will find them as fresh as if laid but one month.

I am prepared to do Painting by Contract, or by the day, using the Chemical Paint, or furnishing good experienced workmen by the day at very low wages. B. NORTON, only Agent for selling the

New Publications.

The Revolution has passed into the hands of J. N. Hallock, has been enlarged, and is now printed on handsome paper, making a very tasteful Journal. It is devoted to the interest of Woman and Home Culture, and from the clear ring of its articles it is evident that it has no sympathy with lax notions of marriage. It is a paper for all women, and for all homes. Edited by W. T. Clarke, a well known and popular journalist of New York.

Work and Play is just completing its second year, and has been received with great favor as a publication for the home and school. The publishers have succeeded in their endeavor to present a thoroughly good magazine free from trash. It is original, from contributors of the highest ability, and is carefully edited.

The Radical for this month contains an article on "Labor Parties and Labor Reform," by Samuel Johnson, which criticises in able fashion some of the assumptions and methods of the working-men's international association. C. D. B. Mills writes of "Zoroaster and his Religion." B. W. Ball, in an essay entitled "October Twelfth," treats of the mission of the New World discovered by Columbus. Marie C. Ladreyt writes of "The Aryan Race;" J. Vila Blake of "Jouffroy's Conversion;" Everett Finley of "Theory and Practice."

The Phrenological Journal for November, has a particularly interesting list of articles, including James McCosh, President of Princeton College; A Man among Men; Spiritual Presence; The Educated Man in American Society; Alex'r H. Stephens; Thoughts on Phrenology; The Tagals and Visayans; Healthy or Diseased Children; "Fill up the (Mental) Measure;" Pre-historic Man; The Boa Constrictor; Consumption; His Recommendations, or the Boy who got a Situation, etc. The publisher offers the last three numbers of 1871 free as a premium to subscribers for 1872. Terms $3 a year, S. R. Wells, 389 Broadway, N. Y.

Although the presses and all the materials used by the Western Rural and Young Folk's Rural were entirely destroyed in the great Chicago Fire, their subscription lists were rescued and within one month from the fire the papers will be out again in old form, style, &c. The Western Rural is a Farm and Family Weekly, that has attained the largest circulation of any Agricultural paper out of New York city. Terms, $2 per year. The Young Folk's Rural is a large newspaper of eight pages, for young people and children, at $1 per year. All who subscribe at this time will aid in recovering the losses.

The Monthly Novelette for November contains interesting reading matter, and is especially rich in stories and romances. Mother and Daughter, Asleep on Picket, Harry Bolton's Curacy, Nettie's Thanksgiven, The Last Victim of the Scottish Maiden, A Few Days on Pitcairn's Island, and Woman's Proper Place in Society, are part of its contents. Thomes & Talbot, 63 Congress Street, Boston; $2 per year.

THE FIFTH of the series of yacht races for the American cup took place between the Livonia and Sappho, the latter winning by twenty-five minutes and twenty-seven seconds.

—In Boston the papers are beginning to talk of wealthy men who have not contributed to the Chicago fund.

BUCHU

[From Dispensatory of the United States.]

DIOSMA CRENATA — BUCHU LEAVES.

PROPERTIES.—Their odor is strong, diffusive and somewhat aromatic; their taste bitterish and analogous to mint.

MEDICAL PROPERTIES AND USES.—Buchu leaves are gently stimulant, with a peculiar tendency to the Urinary Organs.

They are given in complaints of the Urinary Organs, such as Gravel, Chronic Catarrh of the Bladder, Morbid Irritation of the Bladder and Urethra, Disease of the Prostrate Gland, and Retention or Incontinence of Urine, from a loss of tone in the parts concerned in its evacuation. The remedy has also been recommended in Dyspepsia, Chronic Rheumatism, Cutaneous Affections and Dropsy.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is used by persons from the ages of 18 to 25, and from 35 to 55, or in the decline or change of life; after Confinement or Labor Pains; Bed-Wetting in children.

In affections peculiar to Females, the Extract Buchu is unequalled by any other remedy, as in Chlorosis or Retention, Irregularity, Painfulness or Suppression of Customary Evacuations, Ulcerated or Schirrous State of the Uterus.

DISEASES OF THE BLADDER, KIDNEYS, GRAVEL AND DROPSICAL SWELLINGS.—This medicine increases the power of Digestion, and excites the Absorbents into healthy action, by which the Watery or Calcareous depositions and all Unnatural Enlargements are reduced, as well as Pains and Inflammation.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU has cured every case of Diabetes in which it has been given. Irritation of the Neck of the Bladder and Inflammation of the Kidneys, Ulceration of the Kidneys and Bladder, Retention of Urine, Diseases of the Prostrate Gland, Stone in the Bladder, Calculus, Gravel, Brick-Dust Deposit and Mucous or Milky Discharges, and for enfeebled and delicate constitutions of both sexes, attended with the following symptoms: Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Horror of Disease, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Pain in the Back, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Eruption on the Face, Pallid Countenance, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, etc.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is Diuretic and Blood-Purifying, and cures all diseases arising from habits of dissipation, excesses and imprudences in life, impurities of the Blood, etc., superceding Copaiba and other Nauseous Compounds.

Beware of counterfeits. Ask for Helmbold's. Take no other.

MANHOOD

IN THE

Young and Rising Generation.

The vegetable powers of life are strong, but in a few years how often the pallid hue, the lack-lustre eye and emaciated form, and the impossibility of application to mental effort, show their baneful influence. It soon becomes evident to the observer that some depressing influence is checking the development of the body. Consumption is talked of, and perhaps the youth is removed from school and sent into the country. This is one of the worst movements. Removed from ordinary diversions of the ever-changing scenes of the city, the powers of the body, too much enfeebled to give zest to healthful and rural exercise, thoughts are turned inwardly upon themselves.

If the patient be a female the approach of the menses is looked for with anxiety as the first symptom in which nature is to show her saving power in diffusing the circulation and visiting the cheek with the bloom of health. Alas! increase of appetite has grown by what it is fed on. The energies of the system are prostrated, and the whole economy is deranged. The beautiful and wonderful period in which body and mind undergo so fascinating a change from child to woman, is looked for in vain. The parent's heart bleeds in anxiety, and fancies the grave but waiting for its victim.

TRY HELMBOLD'S

EXTRACT BUCHU

For Weakness Arising from Excesses or Early Indiscretion,

attended with the following symptoms: Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, General Weakness, Horror of Disease, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Dreadful Horror of Death, Night Sweats, Cold Feet, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Languor, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, Often Enormous Appetite with Dyspeptic Symptoms, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Pallid Countenance and Eruptions on the Face, Pain in the Back, Heaviness of the Eyelids, Frequently Black Spots Flying before the Eyes, with Temporary Suffusion and Loss of Sight, Want of Attention, Great Mobility, Restlessness, with Horror of Society. Nothing is more desirable to such Patients than Solitude, and nothing they more dread, for fear of themselves; no repose of matter, no earnestness, no speculation, but a hurried transition from one question to another.

THESE SYMPTOMS, IF ALLOWED TO GO ON—WHICH THIS MEDICINE INVARIABLY REMOVES — SOON FOLLOW LOSS OF POWER, FATUITY AND EPILEPTIC FITS, IN ONE OF WHICH THE PATIENT MAY EXPIRE.

During the Superintendence of Dr. Wilson at the Bloomingdale Asylum, this sad result occurred to two patients. Reason has for a time left them, and both died of epilepsy. They were of both sexes, and about twenty years of age.

Who can say that these excesses are not frequently followed by those direful diseases, Insanity and Consumption? The records of the Insane Asylums, and the melancholy deaths of Consumption, bear ample witness to the truth of these assertions. In Lunatic Asylums the most melancholy exhibitions appears. The countenance is actually sodden and quite destitute; neither mirth nor grief ever visits it. Should a sound of the voice occur it is rarely articulate.

"With woful measures wan despair
Low sullen sounds their grief beguile."

While we regret the existence of the above diseases and symptoms, we are prepared to offer an invaluable gift of chemistry for the removal of the consequences.

HELMBOLD'S

Fluid Extract of Buchu.

There is no tonic like it. It is an anchor of hope to the physician, and patient. This is the testimony of all who have used or prescribed it.

Beware of counterfeits and those cheap decoctions called Buchu, most of which are prepared by self-styled doctors, from deleterious ingredients, and offered for sale at "less price" and "larger bottles," etc. They are unreliable and frequently injurious. Ask for Helmbold's. Take no other.

Delivered to any address. Describe symptoms in all communications.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 25, 1871.

A Remarkable President.

The movements and official acts of President Grant seem to be as displeasing to the Democracy as were the movements and official acts of Gen. Grant,—he can do nothing to satisfy them. As a general, his movements on Fort Donelson, Pittsburg Landing, Richmond and Appomattox were all wrong; he had no business going to the south or southwest. His advance upon Washington was still worse; a "military dictator" had no business in the White House. His second attack upon the southern rebels,—the movement against the Democratic Ku-Klux,—was even more reprehensible than his acceptance of the Presidency; and his last great misdeed was going to the railroad celebration at Bangor and Vanceborough, "merry-making while Chicago lies in ashes, like Nero fiddling at the conflagration of Rome," as one Democratic newspaper had it. But his official acts are not nearly so remarkable as his wonderful metamorphoses of character and ability, according to the coppery press. One day he is a wily and unscrupulous usurper, marching with giant strides towards a throne which he intends to erect on the ruins of our liberties, but moving with such consumate caution and skill as to completely blind three-fourths of the most intelligent men in the land to his real intention, which is to subjugate the American people with that dangerous engine, the regular army. The next day we are informed that this ambitious man, who proposes to overthrow the constitution and the laws with an army almost equal in numbers to the entire force of Post Office employees of the country,—this extremely dangerous man, we are told, is but a mere puppet in the hands of the Radical political leaders, and has no more mind of his own than a mushroom. Another day brings the intelligence that the weak-minded President has taken another daring step on his ruthless way to the throne; then we are further informed that the ruthless dictator and destroyer of American liberty is generally drunk, and always stupid; and the last information concerning him which attracted our notice we found in the Manchester Union, which announced that "His imbecility" had gone to the eastward. We fancied that the very cheap wit which exhibits itself in "calling names," was a little out of place in the Union, more particularly as it has a neighbor whose especial business it is to cater to the tastes of the lowest class of copperheads; however, the Union knows better what its patrons want than we do. But if our memory does not deceive us, we have read in the Union many spirit-stirring appeals to the people to protect their liberties from the Dictator, and earnest denunciations of the daringly illegal course pursued by the ambitious President in furtherance of his deep-laid plans. Now it seems he is an imbecile; but it don't matter, for to-morrow he will be a cunning schemer again, leading the army over the ruins of the Republic once more in his advance towards the American throne. A blundering soldier, he blundered on from victory to victory until he blundered the Democratic rebellion out of existence; having thus failed in war, he next failed to get beaten by the rebels in a Presidential contest; after all these blunders, the man who so failed while leading hundreds of thousands of men against a portion of the country, was certain to capture the united country with a corporal's guard; and now the man who is certain to capture thirty millions of people with only thirty thousand, is a puppet, a drunkard and an imbecile. All of which shows that the Democratic press are not only very hard pushed to find any real cause of complaint against President Grant, but that they are supremely indifferent to-day about what they said yesterday, or mean to say to-morrow.

A Sharp Rebuke.—At the late term of the supreme court in Machias, Me., in a prosecution for selling rum, the jury returned a verdict of "not guilty" when the evidence of guilt was most conclusive. Judge Barrows, who presided, expressed his astonishment at the verdict, and told the jury that they were a disgrace to Washington county. The effect was salutary, as in the second prosecution of the same man for the like offence, he was found guilty, and sentenced to six months' imprisonment.

A Religious Riot took place in Scranton Pa., on Sunday. A man attempted to lecture in the street against popery, and he was set upon by a crowd of Catholics, who very nearly killed him.

Fires in New York.—Extensive fires prevail in the swamps and woods of Monroe, Orleans, Niagara, Genesee, Wayne and Seneca counties. The wind has been blowing a gale, and much uneasiness is felt throughout the burning district. The smoke obscured the sun to such a degree that lights were used in buildings in Rochester. Rain is very much needed. Reports are currently coming in of fires in all directions. Farm-houses and other buildings near Walworth, Wayne county, are burned. Several houses, straw and hay stacks, with the large woods opposite Seneca Point, Lake Canandaigua, were burned. About three acres of forest, known as Chestnut Ridge, near Rochester, were burned. The flames were subdued by the people. The Montezuma marshes have been burning several days. These marshes are two miles wide and about twelve in length. The woods near the Shaker settlement, six miles from Troy, are on fire. Considerable damage is feared. It is rumored from Albion that the Prussian settlement was burned. A large fire is raging in Shawangunk Mountains near Port Huxon. Several hundred acres are already burned over. A large fire is also raging in the woods near Rondout, at Flatbush.

Falling of the Mississippi.—The St. Paul Press says: The Mississippi has almost dried up. The majestic river whose magnificent volume two thousand miles from its outlet, has been the theme of the tourist's admiration; so broad and deep that it seemed some grand estuary of the sea on which the navies of the world might ride, has shrunk to a mere ridiculous creek, and its thin and attenuated current crawls lazily, as if it were ashamed of its shrunk shanks, among low, red, bare submarine ridges and beaches of sand that have not seen the sun before, so far as human knowledge goes, since God separated the waters from the dry land. The water has never been so low within the memory of the oldest inhabitant. Herds of cattle bask in the sunshine, on the dry bed of the great waters, where a few month ago great fleets of steamboats rode at will. Boys with trousers rolled up to their knees, sound with their feet the grand mysterious depths which have engulfed so many wayward boys and hapless men, whom accident or rashness has entangled in the strong, swift undertow.

Details of the Chicago Fire.—Mr Fuller tells the Hartford Times that he saw a man appear at the fifth-story window of a burning block and throw to the ground a handful of bed clothes, and then prepare to drop out of the window. He lowered himself by holding on to the window-sill as far as possible, and then let go; and, what is seemingly impossible, caught hold of the window-cap at the next story below him, and held on for a few seconds, when he again let go and dropped the length of the window, and actually stopped himself once more—this time on the window-sill.

This extraordinary luck did not follow the man when he let go his hold the next time. His feet struck the top of the window-casing of the next story, causing him to fall to the ground head foremost, breaking his neck, and of course killing him instantly.

Mr. F. saw a man who told him that on going into his wood house with an axe, he caught a man in the very act of setting a fire. Without a word he drove the axe through the incendiary's skull.

France is three millions of francs richer than it thought—by a curious train of events. Last autumn a balloon sent from Paris fell into territory occupied by the Germans. The aeronaut, a Government Envoy, carried that amount to purchase arms. Being pursued by the enemy, he took the money to the Abbe Therion, who concealed it for the time, afterwards sent it to Belgium and thence returned it to the Treasury.

Barney Aaron, who wasn't hung to a lamp post at Chicago, has returned to New York, despondent and dissatisfied. When the fire broke out, Sunday evening, he was dealing in a faro game, with the luck all on his side, and adjourned the syndicate without reaping any of the expected profits. He is also angry because it cost him $45 to telegraph home to his friends that he wasn't hanged.

A Lake Village correspondent informs us that the house and barn of Charles Pickering, in Laconia, were burned on Saturday night. Furniture partly saved. Loss $1100; insured $600. The fire was first seen in a shed, and is supposed to have been incendiary.

The Means of Escape.

The fall has many perils for the week and feeble, and its sudden atmospheric changes are trying to the constitutions of even the robust. The chilling temperature of the nights, as compared with the almost summer warmth of the days, necessarily exercises an unhealthy influence on all who are exposed to it. Hence dysentery, diarrhœa, intermittent fevers, billious attacks, and derangements of all the secretions, are common at this season. The true way to escape them is to meet the causes with a protective and invigorating medicine. HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS are designed for this exigency. This powerful vegetable specific relieves the system of all acrid humors, purifies the fluids, tones the secretive organs, promotes healthy evaporation through the pores, increases the activity of the digestive functions, cheers the spirits, and regulates the bowels. To do this is to make the whole body vigorous, and render it proof against the vicissitudes of temperature, and against malaria. A course of the great tonic and alterative is therefore in all cases advisable as a preventive at this season. If, on the other hand, the mischief is already done, and intermittent or remittent fever is actually present, or the liver, bowels, or stomach disordered, there is no medicine so certain to effect a quick and thorough cure as this harmless and agreeable preparation.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

The Domestic Sewing Machine.—Since the Domestic Sewing Machine was awarded the "First Premium" at the late State Fair at Dover, the rush for them has been even greater than ever; Mr. E. A. Joy, the fortunate Agent, whose rooms are adjoining our office, is unable to set them up as fast as they are called for, notwithstanding he has lately employed an able assistant. Everybody who buys a "Domestic" seems happy. At the State Fair it was found to be the only Machine in the world having self adjusting tensions. It was in operation four days, using all kinds of thread on all sorts of goods, without any change of tensions. If you don't examine it before purchasing any other, you will wish you had.

It Is Said that if a puff of air were to be blown into a vein of an animal, death would instantaneously follow, because circulation would be stopped. The blood makes the entire circuit of the human body every seven minutes, and whenever this circulation is impeded or any of its channels are clogged by impurities which ought to be carried off, disease follows—fever or a disorder of liver or kidneys, or scrofula, or dyspepsia. To get at and remove the source of the difficulty use the old and infallible blood purifier, Dr. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters. o21 4w

THE AMERICAN WASHER!

Price, $5.50.

The American Washer Saves Money, Time, and Drudgery.

The Fatigue of Washing Day no Longer Dreaded, but Economy, Efficiency, and Clean Clothing, Sure.

In calling public attention to this little machine, a few of the invaluable qualities, (not possessed by any other washing machine yet invented,) are here enumerated.

It is the smallest, most compact, most portable, most simple in construction, most easily operated. A child ten years old, with a few hours' practice, can thoroughly comprehend and effectually use it. There is no adjusting, no screws to annoy, no delay in adapting! It is always ready for use! It is a perfect little wonder! It is a miniature giant, doing more work and of a better quality, than the most elaborate and costly. One half of the labor is fully saved by its use, and the clothes will last one-half longer than by the old plan of the rub board. It will wash the largest blanket. Three shirts at a time, washing thoroughly! In a word, the ablution of any fabric, from a Quilt to a Lace Curtain or Cambric Handkerchief, are equally within the capacity of this LITTLE GEM! It can be fastened to any tub and taken off at will.

No matter how deep rooted a prejudice may exist against Washing Machines, the moment this little machine is seen to perform its wonders, all doubts of its cleansing efficacy and utility are banished, and the doubter and detractor at once become the fast friends of the machine.

We have testimonials without end, setting forth its numerous advantages over all others, and from hundreds who have thrown aside the unwieldy, useless machines, which have signally failed to accomplish the object proposed in prominent and loud sounding advertisements.

It is as perfect for washing as a wringer is for wringing. The price, another paramount inducement to purchase, has been placed so low that it is within the reach of every housekeeper, and there is no article of domestic economy that will repay the small investment so soon.

$5.50,

All that is asked for this GREAT LABOR SAVER, is a fair trial. We guarantee each machine to do its work perfectly.

The Fishing Fleet

From this harbor have completed their season's work. The catch of codfish has been unusually large; the fish nearly all sold at prices a little less than last year's. The catch of mackerel is about an average, with an upward tendency in prices. The firms doing business in this line express themselves very well satisfied with the results this season. The fleet have all returned without accident to men or vessels. The larger vessels of Messrs. Harding & Doane's fleet will be put into the coasting or West India trades until the Spring. We hope the Winter fishing off our coast may prove profitable to those engaged in it, for handling wet lines in cold weather is anything but sport, and those who do it deserve a good return for their labor.

S. J. Court.

On Monday, Charles Witham, of Northwood, was sentenced to the State prison for three years for burglary at Raymond.

Geo. W. Smart, an accomplice with Witham, was sent to the County jail for 30 days.

F. B. Gray, charged with stealing a watch from Joseph Jenness at North Hampton, was discharged on payment of costs, $34.

On Tuesday, the jury returned a verdict of "not guilty" in the case of James Gilchrist, charged with breaking and entering the store of George Stott. James D. Butler for defendant.

Annie Adams retracted her plea of "not guilty," and paid $50 and costs for keeping a house of ill fame on Court St.

The Court adjourned till Monday next, when Michael Howard will be tried for the alleged murder of David Cronan.

The hearing of the equity suit brought by Rockingham Ten Cents Savings Bank against the city of Portsmouth, to test the right of the city to tax bank property, was commenced by the Court. Goodall for bank; Bartlett and Howard for the city.

Management of Fires.

Messrs. Editors:—The two communications on the management of Fires in your paper of Tuesday morning show that some of us are alive to the subject. "Ex-Fireman" is certainly right in concluding that the great desideratum is a more abundant supply of water. "Ex-Engineer" says that he must "set old Fireward aright,"—that the "old Firewards on the board of Directors of a certain water company" were opposed to the laying of a water pipe through the city, &c. Well, Messrs. Editors, this is a matter of opinion, and I understand that the "Directors of the water company" made proposals to the city authorities in accordance with their wishes, but of which they heard nothing afterwards. At the same time those Directors urged the city authorities to build more reservoirs, and to continue building them till every part of the city was fully supplied; and this especial reason was given why reservoirs were better than a pipe, viz., the reservoirs would always be ready for use, while a pipe would occasionally be useless, whenever for any cause the water was drawn out of the main reservoirs. Another obvious reason was, that the pipe would be much more expensive, requiring a very large outlay at the commencement, for the $5000 mentioned by your correspondent would go but a little way in supplying the whole city, while the annual expense of one or two reservoirs a year would hardly be felt. I believe that an appropriation was made several years ago for a reservoir near the Jail, and no good reason has been given why it was not built agreeably to the vote of the city authorities. I think Ex-Engineer is mistaken in supposing that our firemen of the present day are less able to draw a full engine to a fire than they were formerly. There are many situations when there is no facility for getting water. Now if a full engine can be brought to bear upon the fire promptly, there would be some hope that it might be kept under while the Steam Engines are getting ready to subdue it. Messrs. Editors, this is the most important subject that can be brought before any community, vastly exceeding, for instance, the late agitation about a Railroad to Dover; and if we could come together, and discuss this subject with the same zeal and earnestness that was displayed in the road question, I think it would have a good effect, and produce a harmonious action of all classes of citizens to adopt any and all measures that can in any way tend to stop the spreading of fire.

AN OLD FIREWARD.

—They have "delicious strawberries" and "nice grapes" of the second crop, in Danville, Virginia.

MR. GEORGE VANDENHOFF delivered his lecture on Woman in the Boston Theatre Sunday evening.

"The devil," said Mr. Vandenhoff, "drove woman out of Paradise, but he could not drive Paradise out of woman." Sex is necessary to the happiness of man; without woman there could be no happiness. He said angels in the world to come could not make up for the loss of woman; as far as we can picture them, they are a dreamy, sexless creation, and man wants the tender affection of woman. According to Mr. Vandenhoff, woman's mission is to love and be loved. Love and maternity comprise her whole duties; let her be perfect in these and she has done everything. He then pictured the dreadful results of a woman's attempting to compete with man, and described the hybrid which would result from any attempt by woman to perform any duties now performed by man. Woman is the queen of civilization—man is the bread-winner; woman is the high priestess of home; the loves, the graces are her handmaids. Then followed a description of home, to which the wearied man returns to find not a politician in petticoats, a pedant, loaded and capped and ready to go off at any moment on any subject, but a wife who meets him with a kiss, the loving inquiry and the sympathetic reply. Mr. Vandenhoff argues that the mother should be the teacher of her children, as the men have no time, and asks what is to become of the children if the women have their rights, as they say. Womanliness is a great attraction to men in women, and women like most in man that which is most unlike themselves. The speaker condemned the practice of teaching women superfluous studies, such as Greek and Latin, and the idea that health is a disgrace, and continued in a general consideration of the education and instruction necessary to bring up a young girl to perfect womanhood; and followed with a summary of the way in which a young wife shall best keep her husband's love.

INFORMATION ASKED. — The Manchester Public Forum prints the resolutions passed by the Labor Reform State committee at their late meeting in Concord, in which they denounce Tammany and the New York custom house, thank Gen. Butler for his Massachusetts campaign speeches, and "cordially invite the attendance and co-operation of all citizens who believe that the machinery of the old parties has become corrupt and untrustworthy," at a "State convention of the people's reform party." The Public Forum is puzzled, and asks: "how is this, and what's the matter with Hannah now?" No wonder the Public Forum is astounded; the Labor Reform party of New Hampshire was purchased by the Democracy at a most ruinous price, last June,—all that the Democrats had did they give for the Labor Reformers; and now the costly purchase goes back on the purchasers! But the Labor Reform committee showed their sense of the eternal fitness of things in proposing that their followers be the first to enter "the people's reform party," for if ever any people in the world needed reformation it is the Labor Reformers of New Hampshire. It might have been supposed that one such joke as that would have exhausted the wit of a small company, but those jovial wags, the Labor Reform State committee, managed to get off one still better; they would have some fun, even if it was at their own expense. They passed the following:

Resolved, That the political events of the past year bear proofs, "strong as holy writ," that the interests of the country demand the formation of a new party, free from the dishonesty and frauds of both of the old organizations.

Considering that "the political events of the past year," at Concord, and the part these same Labor Reformers took in those "political events," are yet fresh in the memory of every one, and that the leading Labor Reformers are to-day holding offices which they received as a stipulated reward for their partizan services to the Democrats, their fervent giving of thanks that they are not like other men, sinners, is touching in the extreme. "The political events of the past year" prove plainly that whether the Labor Reformers of this State are "free from the dishonesty and frauds of both the old organizations" or not, they are perfectly free from anything in the likeness of political principles, having sold out what they pretended were such to the Democrats.

Billiards.

The game for the championship of this city commences at Currier,s hall on Market Street, this evening at 8 o'clock. A splendidly fitted cue is the prize. There is considerable interest felt in the matter among amoteur players.

In Dover, Oct. 13, LILLIE M. WALWORTH, daughter of Charles and Ellen Walworth, aged 8 months and 28 days.—Oct. 15, Mr. JASPER Y. MEADER, aged 36 years, 3 month.—Oct. 18, Mr. SAMUEL TWOMBLY, aged 46 years, 8 months.—Oct. 18, Mrs. OLIVE CASWELL, aged 76 years, 6 months.

In Rochester, Oct. 17, Mrs. KEZIAH WIGGLESWORTH, aged 68 years, 6 months.

In Newington, Sept. 29th, Mrs. LILLIE A. GARLAND, wife of John A. Garland, aged 20 years.

I saw her when the flush of youth
Had left the form of clay,
And grieved to know the certain truth
Of animate decay;
True gentleness—a christian grace,
Urbanity with love combined
Shone in each lineament of face—
The mirror of the mind;
She sleeps—and lo! a cherub form
Is nestled at her side,
As flowerets 'neath some chilling storm
Have withered, drooped, and died;
In Spring's all-bright'ning morn,
When opes our slumbering eyes,
Each will assume diviner form
In mutual blest surprise;
Then shall we see and know,
Unveiled by earthly light
Why fades our sunshine below,
Why guttering prospects blight;
Father! thy sovereign power,
Though dark and drear our way,
Will cheer us in life's changeful hour,
We would Thy will obey. J.

A PLACE FOR THE LEAN!
Say, old boy, where shall we meet?
Why, at Garrety's, on Daniel Street,
He's such a jolly fellow;
His LAGER is always fresh and prime,
It never wants a "head" and is
Refreshing, cool and mellow!
You require, my boy, some filling out,
You're thin, and meagre-looking;
Lager would give you the proper size.
Look at the host, he once was scant,
His BEER has made of flesh no want,
Go thou and drink likewise.

Morning Chronicle.

WHAT IS SPARED US.—Our columns have been so extensively occupied the past week with reports of the enormous losses of life and property in the late fire, that there is some danger that the damage sustained will be over estimated. True, we have seen 2500 acres in the most central portion of the city swept bare, 20,000 buildings destroyed, and 100,000 persons rendered homeless, the total pecuniary loss being not less than $300,000,000; but we have still a great deal left. We may roughly estimate the situation as follows:—

Above fifty thousand persons have left the city; population remaining 280,000.

Five grain elevators were burned, with 1,600,000 bushels of grain; leaving us with eleven grain warehouses intact, containing 5,000,000 bushels.

One-half of our stocks of pork products were burned up, with the same proportion of flour.

Of lumber 50,000,000 feet were burned; the stock now remaining is about 240,000,000 feet.

Of coal 80,000 tons were burned up; we have 79,000 tons on hand.

Our stock of leather was decreased one quarter, the value of that burned up being $95,000.

The greater portion of the stocks of groceries, dry goods, and boots and shoes were burned up with more than half the ready made clothing; but the quantities destroyed were scarcely equal to more than a three weeks' supply, and are now being rapidly replaced.

Not more than 10 per cent. of the currency was destroyed by the fire; we have 50,000 houses left standing, and our real estate could not burn up.

A careful average of these larger items, with smaller ones that need not be enumerated, shows that the city of Chicago has suffered a loss of not less than twenty, nor more than twenty-five per cent., on her total assets—real and personal. The loss is a great one; but so far from irretrievable that we may confidently hope to see a return to former prosperity ere long. The ratio of increase during the past thirty-four years has averaged 10 1-2 per cent. per annum. This rate would restore the status of a month ago, within three years. Making every due allowance for the terrible set back experienced, there can be no doubt that five years hence, at most, the exhibit of population, wealth, commerce, and manufactures will be greater than a month ago. Already the city is rising from its ashes at a rapid rate, thanks to the large hearted liberality of our countrymen every where, and the resistless energy of our own citizens. Let the faint-hearted ones take courage; the real workers have not wasted a moment in regret; after they have repaired their losses there will be no occasion for it.—Chicago Tribune.

A CHILD BURIED ALIVE.—The Steubenville Herald says: A sad affair occurred at the county infirmary, five miles from the city, resulting in a horrible death, the burying of a small lad named Murphy, aged five years, a reel-footed child who was deserted by an inhuman mother to cloak her shame. From a gentleman who was at the infirmary yesterday, we learn that two pauper children, named Phil. Sheridan and Andy Stewart, or James Helley, repaired to the orchard, a short distance below the infirmary building, and dug a hole. After effecting this part of the diabolical act, the two little fiends, whose ages are respectively five and nine years, repaired to the infirmary grounds and caught the little reel-footed boy, and carried him to his living grave. Shrieking yet without the power of being heard, the little victim was caught by the young executioners and forced into the hole. Holding him down they shoveled in the earth and stones upon his writhing body, stifling his cries as best they could, until the poor deformed body ceased to struggle, and the spirit took its flight to Him who gave it. The young murderers went back to the house without informing any one of the deed, and the buried boy's absence was first noticed by Mr. Porter, the superintendent, about one o'clock. Upon making inquiries, a little black boy informed him that "Andy Stuart and Phil. Sheridan had buried 'Limpy' down in the hollor." On going to the spot Mr. Porter found the newly made grave and below the surface the lifeless form of little "Limpy." To day Mr. Porter was in the city, and made application to Judge Martin, of the probate court, to have the two young murderers sent to the reform school.

—A lake trout was picked up in the river at Haverhill on Sunday, whose weight was 17 pounds and its length 37 inches. It had several bruises upon it, and is supposed to have been killed by going over the dam at Lawrence.

—Mr. Parton says there is a tradition in Virginia that Mrs. George Washington was a little tart in her temper, and favored the General, occasionally, with nocturnal discourses too much in the style of Mrs. Caudle.

—The whole family of Alfred S. Joffe, a Spanish gentleman residing on Washington avenue, Brooklyn, was badly scalded last week by the bursting of a coffee boiler. One child will probably die.

—A boy of five summers recently, whilst at his devotions, surprised the family by praying that he might have sixty brothers and one hundred sisters.

—The time has come described by Tom Hood, when "Boughs are daily rifled by the gusty thieves, and the Book of Nature getteth short of leaves."

—When a man wants to speak at a public meeting in Prussia, he must first obtain permission of the authorities.

Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity of a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents.'

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents.

"MR. R. H. EDDY:—Last made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, and having been powerful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend to inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents; as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges.

WHAT ARE THEY!

THEY ARE NOT A VILE FANCY DRINK,

Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Root and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and a LIFE-GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to direction and remain long unwell, provided the bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the stomach and stimulate the torpid liver and bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effect.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins, cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

PIN, TAPE and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. For full directions, read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French and Spanish.

FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal. ☞ Send for a circular.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs. Tyrdawlebis

The Cause and Cure of Consumption.

The primary cause of Consumption is derangement of the digestive organs. The derangement produces deficient nutrition and assimilation. By assimilation I mean that process by which the nutriment of the food is converted into blood, and thence into the solids of the body. Persons with digestion thus impaired, having the slightest predisposition to pulmonary disease, or if they take cold, will be very liable to have Consumption of the Lungs in some of its forms. I hold that it will be impossible to cure any case of Consumption with out first restoring a good digestion and healthy assimilation. The very first thing to be done is to cleanse the stomach and bowels from all diseased mucous and slime which is clogging these organs so that they cannot perform their functions, and then to feed and restore the liver to a healthy action. For this purpose, the purest and best remedy is SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS. These pills cleanse the stomach and bowels of all the dead and morbid slime that is causing disease and decay in the whole system. They will clear out the liver of all diseased bile that has accumulated there, and arouse it up to a new and healthy action, by which natural and healthy bile is secreted.

The stomach, bowels and liver are thus cleansed by the use of Schenck's Mandrake Pills, but there remains in the stomach an excess of acid, the organ it torpid, and the appetite is poor. In the bowels, the lacteals are weak, and requiring strength and support. It is in a condition like this that Schenck's Seaweed Tonic proves to be the most valuable remedy ever discovered. It is alkaline, and its use will neutralize all excess of acid, making the stomach sweet and fresh; it will give permanent tone to this important organ, and create a good, hearty appetite, and prepare the system for the first process of a good digestion, and ultimately make good, healthy, living blood. After this preparatory treatment, what remains to cure most cases of consumption is the free and persevering use of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup. The Pulmonic Syrup nourishes the system, purifies the blood, and is readily absorbed into the circulation, and thence distributed to the diseased lungs. There it ripens all morbid matter into healthy pus, free of abscesses or tubercles, and then assists Nature to expel all the diseased matter in the form of free expectoration. As soon as it ripens, it is then, by the great healing and purifying properties of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, that all ulcers and cavities are healed up sound, and my patient is cured.

The essential thing to be done in curing Consumption is to get up a good appetite and a good digestion, so that the body will grow in flesh and get strong. If a person has diseased lungs, a cavity or abscess there, the cavity cannot heal, the matter cannot ripen, so long as the system is below par. What is necessary to cure is to so order or things, a good appetite, a good nutriton, the body to grow in flesh and get fat; then Nature is helped, the cavities will heal, the matter will ripen and be thrown off in large quantities, and the person regains health and strength. Now, as I have said, the only plan to cure Consumption, and if a person is very bad, if the lungs are not entirely destroyed, or even if one lung is entirely gone, if there is enough vitality left in the other to heal up, cures will be done.

I have seen many persons cured with only one sound lung, live and enjoy life to a good old age. This is what Schenck's Medicines will do for Consumption. They will clean out the stomach, sweeten and strengthen it, get up a good digestion, give Nature the assistance she needs to clear the system of all the disease that is in the lungs, whatever the form may be.

It is important that, while using Schenck's medicines, care should be exercised to keep cool; keep in-doors in cold and damp weather; avoid night air, and take out-door exercise only in the middle of the warm days.

I wish it distinctly understood that when I recommend a patient to be careful in regard to taking cold while using my medicines, I do so for a special reason, and not as a bug-bear, to frighten people from the effects of a bad cold is far more liable to a relapse than one who has been strictly careful, and will cure, so far as my regard to consumption. So long as the lungs are not perfectly healed, just so long is there imminent danger of a fatal termination of the disease. Hence it is that I so strenuously caution consumptive patients against exposing themselves to the atmosphere that is not genial and pleasant. Confirmed consumptives' lungs are a mass of sores, which the least change of atmosphere will inflame. The grand secret of my success with my medicines, is my ability to withstand the inflammation instead of provoking it, as many of the faculty do. An inflamed lung cannot with safety to the patient be expected to withstand blasts of winter or the chilling winds of spring or autumn. It should be carefully shielded from all irritating influence. The utmost caution should be observed in this particular, as without it a cure under almost any circumstances is an impossibility.

The person should be kept on a wholesome and nutricious diet, and all the medicines continued until the body has restored to it the natural quantity of flesh and strength.

I was myself cured by this treatment of the worst kind of Consumption, and have lived to get fat and healthy these nine years, with one lung mostly gone. I have cured thousands since, and very many have been cured by this treatment who I have never seen.

About the first of October I expect to take possession of my new building at the northeast corner of Sixth and Arch Streets, where I shall be pleased to give advice to all who may require it.

Full directions accompany all my remedies, so that a person in any part of the world can be readily cured by a simple observance of the same.

CHESAPEAKE & OHIOS — FIVE TWENTIES—CENTRAL PACIFICS.

BANKING OFFICE OF

FISK & HATCH,

No. 5 Nassau Street, New York.

September 25th, 1871.

Of the FIFTEEN MILLION CHESAPEAKE and OHIO SIX PER CENT. LOAN, but about $4,500,000 remain unsold, and this remainder will be taken up rapidly.

The five years' option having expired on all series of FIVE-TWENTY BONDS, except 1867s and 1868s, they are made to be called in for payment. The redemption of 100 millions FIVE-TWENTIES in coin, and the purchases by the Government of Sinking Fund, now going on, with the premium thereon, will release about 150 millions of invested capital, independently of dividend and interest payments, the greater part of which must seek new investment.

The Chesapeake and Ohio Sixes

have absolutely 30 years to run; are especially desirable for steady investments, and can now be bought

17 per cent. less than Ten-forties.
20 per cent. less than Five-twenties.
25 per cent. less than Sixes of 1881,

and are equally sure to be paid principal and interest in gold coin. Their amount is limited by the Trust Deed to $15,000,000. Price (at present) 93 and accrued interest, that is, with coupon attached, payable Nov. 1.

$1000 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $934.16.

$500 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $477.08.

$100 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $95.42.

Only a small amount of the latter denomination remains, and no more can be made. Bonds are in coupon or register form, issue as Five-twenties.

The debt is created by the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad Company, to enable it more speedily and effectually to extend and complete the main line of their Road to the Ohio River. This work is now in progress, and along its route a passage is to the lands of practical miners and iron manufacturers; a large city is springing up at the western terminus, the head of reliable navigation on the Ohio, where it intersects 12,000 miles of river transit, and will soon be in connection with 30,000 miles of railroad carriage.

The CENTRAL PACIFIC SIX PER CENT. BONDS are a safe for investment as Government Bonds Their amount fixed by act of Congress at $25,000,000, is secured by property worth four times their value; they can only be bought in the open market, and are becoming scarcer in consequence of their gradual absorption by investors here and in Europe; they have a lien on land in all the principal money-centres, and have twenty-four years to run; the earnings of the road are increasing, and will probably soon be equal to the bonds of practical miners and iron manufacturers; a large city is springing up at the western terminus, the head of reliable navigation on the Ohio, where it intersects 12,000 miles of river transit, and will soon be in connection with 30,000 miles of railroad carriage.

The CENTRAL PACIFIC SIX PER CENT. BONDS are a safe for investment as Government Bonds Their amount fixed by act of Congress at $25,000,000, is secured by property worth four times their value; they can only be bought in the open market, and are becoming scarcer in consequence of their gradual absorption by investors here and in Europe; they have a lien on land in all the principal money-centres, and have twenty-four years to run; the earnings of the road are increasing, and will probably soon be equal to the bonds of practical miners and iron manufacturers; a large city is springing up at the western terminus, the head of reliable navigation on the Ohio, where it intersects 12,000 miles of river transit, and will soon be in connection with 30,000 miles of railroad carriage.

When the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad is completed, in 1872, and the Bonds are dealt in at the Stock Exchanges of the world, we have no doubt they will be equally popular as the Central Pacifics. Both principal and interest of the CENTRAL PACIFIC 10 and CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO 6 PER CENT. are specifically payable in gold in New York; the interest on the former being paid January and July, and of the latter, May and November, corresponding with the two classes of Five-twenties.

We buy and sell FIVE-TWENTIES, TEN-FORTIES, EIGHT-TWENTIES, and CENTRAL OR WESTERN PACIFICS, or receive them in payment for CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO BONDS at their current market price.

Interest on Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds, accompanied with Drafts or Checks, may be forwarded to us by mail. Bonds or money may be forwarded by any reliable Express Company at our expense, and the Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds, in exchange, will be sent by return Express, free of charge. FISK & HATCH.

P. S.—Accounts of Banks, Bankers and others received, on which we allow Four Per Cent. interest.

AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINT.

It is Cheaper, Handsomer and more durable than the best of other Paints. One Thousand Gallons of it were sold in this City, in the year 1870, and not one complaint has come from those who have used it; but all speak in its favor; it is mixed ready for application, and is much easier put on than any other Paint; it has a smooth, glossy surface for years, that can be cleaned, with hot soda without injuring it. It is excellent for the inside, in the place of paper.

I shall keep this season a large stock of Chemical Paints of all shades on hand, to accommodate customers with any amount, without delay in ordering it. Those who want to use the Chemical Paints and have had them misrepresented by those who deal in Lead and Oil, are invited to call at the Chemical Paint Store here where they will find the things two years, and you will find them as fresh as if laid out one month.

NASBY ON NEW YORK.

CONFEDRIT X ROADS,
(wich is in the State of Kentucky),
October 14, 1871.

I am here in the sere and yaller leaf, and have seen much of politics, but never in my life did I ever see a convenshun so beautifully managed ez the late Democratic convenshun in Rochester, Noo York. I was there by speshel invatashun uv my old friend, Dennis O'Shaughnessy, uv the 6th ward, Noo York, who, sense I left the Harp uv Erin Saloon, has improved wonderfully in a worldly pint of view. He was then a hod-carrier by profession and a repeater by practice. He attracted the attention of Mr. Tweed by his zeal in votin and his bravery in knockin down opposishen voters, and woz of course rewarded. He is now Assistant Inspector uv Musket Triggers uv the Ninth Regimental Armory at a salary uv $300 per month, Skool Inspector in the Sixth Ward at a salary uv $400 per month, and Thirty-Second Law Adviser to the commission for condemnin private property for streets and sich at a salary uv $3,000 per year, besides wich he hez a a tenth interest in the contract for keepin the glass in repair uv the two back winders uv two Armories, out uv wich he made $10,000 in the first six months. He wuz to hev bad the contract for two front winders in addition, but the raid the people made onto the Ring busted that. He hez, however, invested largely in city lots, and wears kid gloves, and a diamond ez big ez a peach stone. Dennis sed that of the infernal Amerikens and Germins kin be beat down, and the control uv Noo York left with the Irish, where it belongs, he will be tolerably well off in a year or two.

Dennis bein uv consequence in the party wuz, uv course, in the private counsels uv the managers uv the State Convenshun. He and Tweed, Sweeny, Connolly, Mayor Hall, Keyser, Garvin and the entire convenshun wuz at Rochester, though nobody knowed it. They went in a speshul private car, and hed private rooms at the Osborne House, with a telegraph wire running directly to the Hall in wich the Convenshun wuz hold. It was the most impressive scene I ever witnesst; one wich these old eyes will never probably look onto agin. Ther in an easy chair sot one man directin the deliberashens uv a convenshun uv the Great State uv Noo York—one brain thinkin for a thousand—one hand guidin a thousand. He directed the Convenshun to cheer when Seymour's name wuz announst ez a delegate, and they cheered—he directed em to reject the Tammany delegashun from the city, and they wuz rejected—he directed em to do everything that wuz done, and they did it.

"My great sir," sed I, in astonishment at the power he wielded, "why don't you go ever to the Hall and direct the Convenshun?"

"My gentle sir," sed he, with a bland smile, ez he dictated a message directin uv the convenshun to cheer when the rejection uv the Tammany delegates wuz announced, "my dear sir, I am there! There's a hundred uv my throats a shoutin this miuit—there's a hundred uv my hats goin up to the ceilin this minit—there's two hundred uv my hands a clappin vociferously at this minit. There's a great many of me in that hall."

After the adjournment of the convenshun for dinner the Chairman uv the Committee on Resolooshens came into the room to submit the resolooshens they had prepared, that they might be shoor they wood meet Mr. Tweed's ideas. The great man read em attentively and handed uv em back.

"They won't do," sed he, sententiously.

"In wat respeck are they faulty?" asked the Chairman, obsequiously.

"Woodent it be well enough," said Tweed, with a smile still more bland than the first, "woodent it be well enough to put in a resolooshen denouncin corrupshen, in general terms, uv course, specifyin particklerly, however, the espeshul corrupshen uv the Nashnel Government, and that of States which is under radikal control?"

The sublimity of sich a sejestion comin' from Tweed struck the Chairman all uv a heap.

"Certainly, I will, ef yoo wish it," sed he, "but I sposed—that is, my idea wuz—in a general way, yoo know, that the least sed about corrupshen, in view uv—well, I am jist now holding a place wich pays subtin like ten thou—but never mind, it shel be done."

"Then agin," sed Tweed, smilin still blander and with the faintest sejestion uv a wink in his left eye, "I would sejest that yoo pledge the Democratic party to an honest and economical expenditoor uv the public funds!"

The Chairman turned pale with surprise, but he coincided. Everybody coincides with Tweed.

"And while you are at it," continued the great chieftain with a smile, the blandniss of wich can't be described, "you had better put in a resolooshen denounsin the profligacy uv the management of matters in Noo York City, but makin it, mind yoo, ez the legitimate result of Radikal legislation four yeers ago. Draw up this resolooshen so ez to make it plain that its me yoor drivin at, without exactly namin me."

BUCHU

[From Dispensatory of the United States.]

DIOSMA CRENATA — BUCHU LEAVES.

PROPERTIES.—Their odor is strong, diffusive and somewhat aromatic; their taste bitterish and analogous to mint.

MEDICAL PROPERTIES AND USES.—Buchu leaves are gently stimulant, with a peculiar tendency to the Urinary Organs.

They are given in complaints of the Urinary Organs, such as Gravel, Chronic Catarrh of the Bladder, Morbid Irritation of the Bladder and Urethra, Disease of the Prostrate Gland, and Retention or Incontinence of Urine, from a loss of tone in the parts concerned in its evacuation. The remedy has also been recommended in Dyspepsia, Chronic Rheumatism, Cutaneous Affections and Dropsy.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is used by persons from the ages of 18 to 25, and from 35 to 55; or in the decline or change of life; after Confinement or Labor Pains; Bed-Wetting in children.

In affections peculiar to Females, the Extract Buchu is unequalled by any other remedy, as in Chlorosis or Retention, Irregularity, Painfulness or Suppression of Customary Evacuations, Ulcerated or Schirrous State of the Uterus.

DISEASES OF THE BLADDER, KIDNEYS, GRAVEL AND DROPSICAL SWELLINGS.—This medicine increases the power of Digestion, and excites the Absorbents into healthy action, by which the Watery or Calcareous depositions and all Unnatural Enlargements are reduced, as well as Pains and Inflammation.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU has cured every case of Diabetes in which it has been given. Irritation of the Neck of the Bladder and Inflammation of the Kidneys, Ulceration of the Kidneys and Bladder, Retention of Urine, Diseases of the Prostrate Gland, Stone in the Bladder, Calculus, Gravel, Brick-Dust Deposit and Mucous or Milky Discharges, and for enfeebled and delicate constitutions of both sexes, attended with the following symptoms: Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Horror of Diseases, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Pain in the Back, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Eruption on the Face, Pallid Countenance, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, etc.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is Diuretic and Blood-Purifying, and cures all diseases arising from habits of dissipation, excesses and imprudences in life, impurities of the Blood, etc., superceding Copaiba and other Nauseous Compounds.

Beware of counterfeits. Ask for Helmbold's. Take no other.

Price $1.25 per Bottle, or 6 Bottles for $6.50.

MANHOOD

IN THE

Young and Rising Generation.

The vegetable powers of life are strong, but in a few years how often the pallid hue, the lack-lustre eye and emaciated form, and the impossibility of application to mental effort, show their baneful influence. It soon becomes evident to the observer that some depressing influence is checking the development of the body. Consumption is talked of, and perhaps the youth is removed from school and sent into the country. This is one of the worst movements. Removed from ordinary diversions of the ever-changing scenes of the city, the powers of the body, too much enfeebled to give zest to healthful and rural exercise, thoughts are turned inwardly upon themselves.

If the patient be a female the approach of the menses is looked for with anxiety as the first symptom in which nature is to show her saving power in diffusing the circulation and visiting the cheek with the bloom of health. Alas! increase of appetite has grown by what it is fed on. The energies of the system are prostrated, and the whole economy is deranged. The beautiful and wonderful period in which body and mind undergo so fascinating a change from child to woman, is looked for in vain. The parent's heart bleeds in anxiety, and fancies the grave but waiting for its victim.

TRY HELMBOLD'S

EXTRACT BUCHU

For Weakness Arising from Excesses or Early Indiscretion,

attended with the following symptoms: Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, General Weakness, Horror of Disease, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Dreadful Horror of Death, Night Sweats, Cold Feet, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Languor, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, Often Enormous Appetite with Dyspeptic Symptoms, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Pallid Countenance and Eruptions on the Face, Pain in the Back, Heaviness of the Eyelids, Frequently Black Spots Flying before the Eyes, with Temporary Suffusion and Loss of Sight, Want of Attention, Great Mobility, Restlessness, with Horror of Society. Nothing is more desirable to such Patients than Solitude, and nothing they more dread, for fear of themselves; no remedy for Blotches, No Wrinkles, no speculation, but a hurried transition from one question to another.

THESE SYMPTOMS, IF ALLOWED TO GO ON—WHICH THIS MEDICINE INVARIABLY REMOVES — SOON FOLLOW LOSS OF POWER, FATUITY AND EPILEPTIC FITS, IN ONE OF WHICH THE PATIENT MAY EXPIRE.

During the Superintendence of Dr. Wilson at the Bloomingdale Asylum, this sad result occurred to two patients. Reason has for a time left them, and both died of epilepsy. They were of both sexes, and about twenty years of age.

Who can say that these excesses are not frequently followed by those direful diseases, Insanity and Consumption? The records of the Insane Asylums, and the melancholy deaths of Consumption, bear ample witness to the truth of these assertions. In Lunatic Asylums the most melancholy exhibitions appears. The countenance is actually sodden and quite destitute; neither mirth nor grief ever visits it. Should a sound of the voice occur it is rarely articulate.

"With woful measures wan despair
Low sullen sounds their grief beguile."

While we regret the existence of the above diseases and symptoms, we are prepared to offer an invaluable gift of chemistry for the removal of the consequences.

HELMBOLD'S

Fluid Extract of Buchu!

There is no tonic like it. It is an anchor of hope to the physician and patient. This is the testimony of all who have used or prescribed it.

Beware of counterfeits and those cheap decoctions called Buchu, most of which are prepared by self-styled doctors, from deleterious ingredients, and offered for sale at "less price" and "larger bottles," etc. They are unreliable and frequently injurious. Ask for Helmbold's. Take no other.

The Ku-Klux Klan.

We cannot enumerate the number of times we have seen the gentle term "a base Radical lie," applied by the Democratic press to the accounts in Republican papers of the doings of the Ku-Klux Klan in the South. In face of the constant reports from many sections, of terrorism and outlawry, of the mass of evidence collected by the Congressional investigating committee and of the confessions of actual members of the infamous order, even the leading Democratic papers have persistently denied the existence of the Klan as a political organization; and they still deny it, and inveigh against the action of Congress and the President as being but a political dodge in the interest of the Republican party. But the murderous Klans are now fairly taken by their throats, and the work of protecting the property and lives of men whose only offences are that they were not rebels and are Republicans, from the torches and the bullets of the ex-rebels,—a work that should have been begun long ago,—goes bravely on. The people of northern Georgia have awakened to the fact that the National Government will protect the citizens of that State unless the State does it, and the State courts have commenced a crusade against the Ku-Klux; Judge Bond has spread terror through the ranks of the Klan in the Carolinas, and many of the leading Democrats, including lawyers, doctors and even clergymen, have fled the State to escape the punishment due their crimes; the miscreants who have maintained a reign of terror by midnight assassinations, whippings and fire-raisings, have learned that the arm of the law strikes heavily at the last, though it is slow to move, and as a result of this newly acquired knowledge they are surrendering to the authorities and confessing their offences in hope of receiving more lenient treatment in consequence of such action. But the most remarkable result of the vigorous campaign against the Democratic Ku-Klux is the admission forced from ten of the leading Democrats of South Carolina, nine of them lawyers, who in a letter to Judge Bond not only admitted that the disclosures at the Ku-Klux trials in his court had proved all the charges against that organization to be true, (at which they professed to be astonished,) but that it was quite in the power of the Democratic leaders to suppress the illegal proceedings of the Klan if they so wished! For this latter admission was necessarily implied in their promise that they (the Democratic leaders) would effectually suppress the Klan, if Judge Bond would defer the trials of the rest of the members who had been caught, to another term.—Yet in spite of the overwhelming and daily accumulating mass of evidence against the Klan, we still find Democratic papers—and leading ones, which pride themselves on their highly moral tone—denying that such an organization exists. Well, let them; their denials now will not probably cost the life of another southern Unionist, and President Grant will not stop, now that the movement on the enemy's works is fairly inaugurated, until the bands of assassins known as the Ku-Klux Klan are thoroughly crushed; if he does falter, he will deceive both his friends and his enemies.

THE MICHIGAN STATE RELIEF COMMITTEE issue an urgent appeal to the people of the United States for instant and plentiful aid for the 13,000 to 15,000 people in the State of Michigan who have lost their houses, food, clothing, crops, horses and cattle. The fires are still burning, and new ones are springing up. The area of ruin and devastation is daily increasing, and much suffering exists.

IT IS THE BOAST of New Bedford that there is not an open bar in the city, and that every person, rich or poor, who has been found engaged in the liquor traffic, has been arraigned for so doing. Mayor Richmond said he would enforce the liquor law, and he has kept his word.

HON. L. M. SULLIVANT of Iroquois County, Illinois, raised six thousand acres of corn last year, is raising ten thousand this year, and proposes to raise sixteen thousand next year. His crop averages forty bushels to the acre at a cost of fifteen cents a bushel.

—Grace Greenwood in one of her recent letters said, "I drove a spike on the Denver and Rio Grand Railway." "It was a cruel tax," she says, "on my muscular Christianity." The newspaper report said that I 'drove the spike home triumphantly;' but I really tho't it 'wouldn't go home till morning.'"

THE WISCONSIN FIRE.—On Thursday, the 5th inst., Mr. J. G. Clement, formerly a painter at Fort Howard, late of Peshtigo, was married to Miss Trudell, daughter of Theo. Trudell, of Menominee. The bride's mother visited them at Peshtigo on Sunday, the 8th, and left at 4 P. M. When the fire struck Peshtigo, Mr. Clement took his wife in his arms and started for the river. They met a man with a buckboard, going to save his wife and family, but, seeing the task was hopeless, he started to go back. Mr. Clement asked him to save his wife and he would do the best he could for himself. The man took Mrs. C. and Clement ran behind, holding on the buckboard, but finally fell in the road and died from suffocation. The bride begged to be allowed to get out, but was held in and taken to the river, where she arrived unconscious, but was restored and saved. He was buried by the Odd Fellows at Menominee on Friday.

We met on Tuesday Mrs. John Williamson, one of the survivors from the Williamsonville fire. She informs us that nine of her family were burned to death around her, one only being saved. She was saved by throwing a wet blanket over her and tucking it tightly around her feet between two stones. She informs us that she saw the fire coming in the clouds about 9 1-2 o'clock in the evening, and that it was about 4 o'clock in the morning before it had died down so she was able to raise the blanket. She was partially stupefied, and it was some time before she could realize the terrible fact that nine of her family, including her husband, were burned to death within a few feet of her. The story is a sad one indeed. The loss of the mill and surrounding property swept away everything she had but a small house in Oshkosh, where she proposes, as soon as possible, to make her home, and we commend her to the tender care of the warm-hearted people of that city.—Green Bay Advocate.

PROF. HAYDEN, chief of the geological survey of the territories, has returned from an exploration of the valley of the upper Yellowstone River and Lake, and the sources of the Snake and Missouri rivers in southern Montana. The party with Professor Hayden numbered thirty-five and spent nearly seven weeks in this wonderful region. The Yellowstone Lake, eight thousand feet above the sea-level, the highest lake in the world except Titicaca, in Peru, was thoroughly sounded and explored, the districts in which are the remarkable hot springs carefully surveyed and the temperature of the waters recorded. In the Fire-Hole Basin, in the valley of the Fire-Hole river, are between one thousand and fifteen hundred of these hot springs, the temperature of which ranges from 180 to 195 degrees, the boiling point of water at that elevation being only 192. The "Grant" geyser throws a column of hot water eight feet in diameter to a height of over two hundred at a regular intervals of thirty-two hours, while others are almost in continuous operation. The geological formation of the valley is wholly volcanic. The soil is fertile, but unproductive, owing to its great elevation and low temperature.

THE SOUTH CAROLINA KU-KLUX.—Nineteen more of the Ku-Klux were placed in the Columbia jail on Saturday night, and sixty others are under arrest at Spartansburg, awaiting transportation thither. Seven hundred U. S. troops are now at Yorkville, S. C., and over two hundred arrests have been made. Over fifty dwellings and gin-houses have been burned in York and Spartansburg counties, and the better class of citizens fear that, in consequence of the presence and activity of the federal authorities, the incendiarism will be resumed, are leaving for other States.

THE GRAND JURY in New York found no bill against Mayor Hall but thought his official course merited censure and passed a vote to that effect.

A FIGHT at Los Angeles, California, on the 24th, resulted in the shooting of a white man and the hanging of fifteen Chinamen.

—The Norwich Bulletin says: "A well known Justice of the Peace subscribed five dollars to the relief fund yesterday, and returning to his office immediately received the amount for marrying a couple. Thus is virtue rewarded. Another man was requested to contribute, but declined, and within two hours heard that his mother-in-law had come to stay a month with him. Can any one hesitate which course to pursue?"

—At the inauguration of President Porter, at New Haven on Wednesday, one of the exercises was singing, by college voices, of the chorus: "Domine salvum fac præsidem nostrum!" "Lord save our president!" In one of the newspapers the reporter or the printer transformed this into "Domine calvum fac præsidem nostrum!" "Lord make our president bald!"

—The woman who is said to have been the means of starting the Chicago fire, says she did not go into the barn with a kerosene lamp, that she did not milk at night, and that she was asleep when the alarm was given, and had no knowledge of the origin of the fire.

—A little boy, when asked by a lady if he studied hard at school, said, "I do not hurt myself at it?" "Ah," said the lady, "you must study hard or you'll never be President of the United States." "No, ma'am," cried the boy, "but I don't expect to be,—I'm a Democrat."

BUSINESS NOTICES.

THE DOMESTIC SEWING MACHINE.—Since the Domestic Sewing Machine was awarded the "First Premium" at the late State Fair at Dover, the rush for them has been even greater than ever; Mr. E. A. Joy, the fortunate Agent, whose rooms are adjoining our office, is unable to set them up as fast as they are called for, notwithstanding he has lately employed an able assistant. Everybody who buys a "Domestic" seems happy. At the State Fair it was found to be the only Machine in the world having self adjusting tensions. It was in operation four days, using all kinds of thread on all sorts of goods, without any change of tensions. If you don't examine it before purchasing any other, you will wish you had.

IT IS SAID that if a puff of air were to be blown into a vein of an animal, death would instantaneously follow, because circulation would be stopped. The blood makes the entire circuit of the human body every seven minutes, and whenever this circulation is impeded or any of its channels are clogged by impurities which ought to be carried off, disease follows—fever or a disorder of liver or kidneys, or scrofula, or dyspepsia. To get at and remove the source of the difficulty use the old and infallible blood purifier, DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA VINEGAR BITTERS. o21 4w

A case of chronic rheumatism of unusual severity, cured by "Johnson's Anodyne Liniment," is noticed by one of our exchanges. A large bunch came out upon the breast of the sufferer, and appeared like part of the breast bone.

The sweetest word in our language is health. At the first indication of disease, use well-known and approved remedies. For dyspepsia or indigestion, use "Parson's Purgative Pills" For coughs, colds, sore or lame stomach, use "Johnson's Anodyne Liniment.

The Means of Escape.

The fall has many perils for the week and feeble, and its sudden atmospheric changes are trying to the constitutions of even the robust. The chilling temperature of the nights, as compared with the almost summer warmth of the days, necessarily exercises an unhealthy influence on all who are exposed to it. Hence dysentery, diarrhœa, intermittent fevers, billious attacks, and derangements of all the secretions, are common at this season. The true way to escape them is to meet the causes with a protective and invigorating medicine. HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS are designed for this exigency. This powerful vegetable specific relieves the system of all acrid humors, purifies the fluids, tones the secretive organs, promotes healthy evaporation through the pores, increases the activity of the digestive functions, cheers the spirits, and regulates the bowels. To do this is to make the whole body vigorous, and render it proof against the vicissitudes of temperature, and against malaria. A course of the great tonic and alterative is therefore in all cases advisable as a preventive at this season. If, on the other hand, the mischief is already done, and intermittent or remittent fever is actually present, or the liver, bowels, or stomach disordered, there is no medicine so certain to effect a quick and thorough cure as this harmless and agreeable preparation.

—Old Mr. A., at about 80 years of age, was so bold as to marry a young wife, and in due course of time was presented with a son. On the day of christening the nurse handed young master about, with the usual exclamation that he was the very image of his papa. "Very like, indeed," said a lady; "no hair, no teeth."

1871. LYCEUM COURSE. 1872

IN arranging the programme for a course of Popular Lectures, Readings, &c., to be given in the

Universalist Church

for the season of 1871—2, the committee believe this list has the largest number of distinguished names ever offered to the Portsmouth public, and that the Course will present attractions not surpassed in point of interest and variety. They will appear in the order announced:

NOV. 2, Maj. Gen. JUDSON KILPATRICK.
Subject: "The American Stump." A new, instructive and amusing lecture.

NOV. 9, Rev. W. H. H. MURRAY.
Subject: "Deacons." A new lecture.

NOV. 16, JAMES T. FIELDS.
Subject: "A Plea for Cheerfulness."

NOV. 23, GEORGE WILLIAM CURTIS.
Subject: "Women in the Old time and the New."

NOV. 30, REV. S. H. MCCOLLESTER.
Subject: "Athens and Greece."

DEC. 7, Rev. WILLIAM R. NICHOLSON, D. D.
Subject: "Civilization and Poverty."

DEC. 14, Rev. E. E. HALE.
Subject: "He Did his Level Best." A Story. This is an entirely new feature, arranged especially for Lyceums, and has proved to be an exceedingly attractive one.

Dec. 21, Mrs. MARY A. LIVERMORE,
Subject: "What shall we do with our Daughters?"

JAN. 4, PROF. MOSES T. BROWN, and DR. J. H. WILLCOX.
Entertainment: Organ Concert. Miscellaneous Readings, by Prof. Brown, from favorite authors, with some character sketches.
Organ Recitals by Dr. Willcox performed on the fine new organ recently placed in this church.

JAN. 11, Prof. C. H. HITCHCOCK.
Subject: "Life above the Clouds; or, Mt. Washington in Midwinter," illustrated with Stereoscopic Views of frost work, exhibited by the aid of a Stereopticon and Calcium Light.

The organ will be exhibited each evening.

TICKETS for this Course are now ready, at the stores of Messrs. Shores, Preston, Thacher and Hill.

PRICE $1.50 FOR THE COURSE.

No single evening tickets will be issued.

As the number to be sold is limited to the comfortable seating capacity of the church, those desiring to attend should secure their tickets without delay, as a large number are already taken up.

Ushers will be in attendance each evening.

Two Fashionable Weddings

Came off Wednesday evening, and Portsmouth's population is decreased by the departure of two of its fair daughters to distant homes. Of course the brides were dressed elegantly, the grooms behaved becomingly and everypassed thing off agreeably.

William C. Randall,

A young man employed at the Cod Liver Oil manufactory of Marvin Bros. & Bartlett, in attempting to climb on board of a fishing schooner, Tuesday, fell between the vessel and the wharf into deep water, and swam a considerable distance to get out from under the wharf. There was no one near at the time and his escape unaided from such a perilous situation was very remarkable.

Social Assembly.

The second social assembly of a series under the management of Messrs. Davis and Brown, takes place this (Thursday) evening in Congress Hall. The first assembly of this course was well conducted, and the managers propose that the others shall be, and that no unpleasant features shall intrude to mar the enjoyment of the patrons of these entertainments; and they have but to carry out this plan to ensure success. Harlow's Band furnishes the music, and the Grand March commences at 8 o'clock.

Our Distinguished Citizen

George Vandenhoff proposes to close his summer residence in this city after November 5th. There are many who wish to hear him read again and it will be more convenient for him to do so previous to that date. If a sufficient number of tickets can be subscribed for at 50 cts. each before Saturday evening next, Mr. Vandenhoff will read at the Temple Nov. 2d or 3d. Therefore those who wish to hear him will please leave their orders at Preston's drug store before Saturday evening next.

Communicated.

Mr. Moses' Concert.

I have had a special invitation to examine the magnificent Drop Curtain at the Temple, just completed by T. P. Moses, and confess my astonishment that it is the legitimate production of home. It must certainly take the public eye. It will be first exhibited at the musical, scenic and dramatic entertainment at the Temple on Tuesday evening, Oct. 31. The first sight at the curtain, and the scene from Mr. Moses' new opera, "Winona," will more than pay for a ticket. The Sunrise scene on the Sagamore is charming. I hope our art-loving citizens will turn out in force, pack the Temple to its utmost capacity, and give the industrious and persevering artist and musician the bumper benefit he deserves.

ALPHEUS.

"Washing Without Labor."

Messrs. Peirce, Frink, Odion & Co. have advertised in our columns the "Home" Steam Washer and Bleacher, an invention which promises to do washing without labor, and to "steam away the Monday's terror" of the ladies. We have not seen the machine at work, but a lady of our acquaintance, who is keenly alive to the worth of any invention which promises to do away with work and trouble, but equally solicitous that her household linen should be immaculate, after a trial of its merits informs us that it does all claimed for it; and she regards it as an excellent joke to put the "week's wash" in the new-fangled machine and have everything come out clean, without any manual labor and absolutely without wear and tear to the fabrics cleansed. We have great respect for this lady's opinion concerning labor saving inventions, and therefore feel satisfied that the horrors of "washing day" will be known only in history and by tradition, as soon as the Home Washer and Bleacher is generally introduced. Read the advertisement and then buy a Washer.

The Bank Case

Is thus explained by a correspondent of the Boston Journal:

The suit was brought by the bank to test the legality of the tax assessed on their real estate in this city. The bank claimed the tax assessed by the State on said bank was the only tax to which the bank was liable. The city claimed that the bank was liable to be taxed by the city for their real estate; that the tax assessed by the State was merely an excise or license for their doing business in the State as a bank. It appeared by the provisions of the charter that they had a right to invest a sum not exceeding $10,000 in a bank building for banking purposes. The trustees of the bank expended between $13,000 and $14,000 in the purchase of land and in fitting up a building for banking purposes, and for the erection and fitting of a dwelling house, and one of the lots so purchased has been offered for sale by the said bank and the upper stories and one room in the lower story are rented to Mr. Rand, one of the trustees, at a low rent. In this case, among other questions, will be settled one of the most important principles in regard to taxation of Savings Banks, and one which will affect all the Savings Banks in New Hampshire, if not in New England.* It is to be sent to the full bench for their determination.

The appearance of The Old Farmer's Almanac for 1872 reminds us that "Old Tempus is fudging" as Cal. Hayes hath it. It also teacheth that the New Year will open with Monday, that on a certain Wednesday we shall go "around the corner," that the Fourth of July will come on Thursday, that election day in New Hampshire is assigned for March 12th, that the Presidential election will occur Nov. 5th, that St. Paul was converted Jan. 25th, that Lent commences Feb. 18th and ends March 31st, that Julius Cæsar was assassinated March 15th, B. C. 44, that St. John was beheaded August 29th, and that there isn't an eclipse during the year worth observing.

In the Aldine for November, now before us, is a characteristic sketch by Emslie, "The Uninvited Guest." A small snake gliding swiftly along the table-cloth electrifies and disturbs a picnic party in the midst of their dinner. The variety of expression on the faces of the group is so carefully preserved in the engraving that the picture seems to have a fresh interest every time it is taken up. At the beginning of the year we heard many prophecies that there would (must) be a falling off in quality after a few issues. The publishers have answered that objection in the best possible way. They have proved the fear groundless, and we feel inclined to accept all their promises for the coming year, especially when backed by such guarantees as the picture just mentioned. A PLACE FOR THE LEAN!
Say, old boy, where shall we meet?
Why, at Garrety's, on Daniel Street,
He's such a jolly fellow;
His LAGER is always fresh and prime,
It never wants a "head" and is
Refreshing, cool and mellow!
You require, my boy, some filling out,
You're thin, and meagre-looking;
Lager would give you the proper size.
Look at the host, he once was scant,
His BEER has made of flesh no want,
Go thou and drink likewise.

Morning Chronicle.

Concluded from first page.

"Why, wat shel we—"

"Don't go on, my friend," sed Tweed, smilin a smile which for blandnis excelled the most delishus Joon morning, "its much better to hev the corrupshen denounced by us than by the enemy, particklerly as we know more definitely about it. And I would sejest that you hev a resoloushen, boldly challenging a comparison between the Republikin and Democratic administrations uv the State and city governments, and (and here he smiled with a blandnis wich wuz heavenly, ez he fingered a most gigantic diamond on the little finger uv his left hand and sipped a glass of champagne) any little thing wich you kin throw in ez to the necessity uv a return to the simplicity uv our Puritan fathers, wood be well."

The chairman was too affected to say a word, but he made necessary notes, and castin one look of astonishment at the greatness uv his cheef who sat their smilin blandly, retired from the presence.

But the great man's work was not yet done. He promptly telegraft every prominent Democratic editer and politician in the State to denounce him in the bitterest terms, and then tellin the convention who to nominate, and wat else to do, went home.

There is a greatness and grandeur in this man which I can't sufficiently admire. Some men wood be so puffed up with the possession uv the twenty-five millions wich he has made, ez to insist upon an indorsement by the party through wich he made it, but not so with Tweed. There ain't no vanity about him. So long ez he has control uv the party, he don't care a cent whether he is publicly recognized or not. Ez he remark to me, "Ef the way to my continuashen in power is in denunciashun of me, very good, denounce me. I kin stand it. I ain't the first man who, to get on, hez trampled over the dead body of his own reputashon. I'd jest ez soon pull the wires behind the curtain ez to manipulate the puppets in front of it. I ain't agoin to let personal vanity stand in the way uv the grand success I'm hopin for next year. I'm a rather heavy load for the party to carry jest now, and I'm goin to releeve em—till after the Presidenshul eleeshun?"

Then I saw wat motive wuz actooatin the Amerikin Napoleon, and I wuz agin lost in wonder. Whatever the Democratic nominee is, he will simply be a shadder, uv wich Tweed will be the subsiance. Tweed will be the power behind the throne, wich is greater than the throne itself. And wat a glorious prospect opens to us! Think uv a Democratic President in 1873, with Tweed behind him! Think uv Tweed makin collectors and assessors and postmasters, and all uv em bein responsible solely to him! Ef he is made of himself a Cresus, and his friends liekwise, out uv the revenues of one city, what will he do when he has the nashun to bleed?

I shel to-wunst cultivate pleasant relashens with Tweed.

PETROLEUM V. NASBY, P. M.
(wich wuz Postmaster.)

LETTER TO FARMERS.—Beloved Farmers:—Agrikultur is the mother ov farm produce; she iz also the step-mother ov garlic sass.

Rize at half-past 2 o'clock in the morning, bild up a big fire in the kitchen, burn out two pounds of kandles, and grease yure boots.

Wait pashunatly for da brake. When day doz brake, then commences tew stir up the greese and werry the hogs.

Too much sleep iz ruinous tew geese and the hogs. Remember yu kant git rich on a farm unless yu rize at 2 o'clock in the morning, and stir up the hogs and worry the geese.

The happiest man in the world iz the farmer; he rises at 2 o'clock in the morning; he watches for da lite tew brake, and when she does brake, he goes out and stirs up the geese and worrys the hogs.

What iz a lawyer? What iz a merchant? What iz a doktor? What iz a minister? I anser, nothing!

A farmer iz the nobless work ov God; he rises at 2 o'clock in the morning, and burns out a half a pound ov wood and then goes out tew worry the geese and stir up the hogs.

Beloved farmers adew.—Josh B.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.
R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs,
No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,
After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.
No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.
All necessity of a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.
TESTIMONIALS.
"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents.'
"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them as early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office, as EDWARD BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents.
"Mr. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in obtaining every case. Such name is a sufficient proof of great talent and ability on his part, and leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges.

A GREAT MEDICAL DISCOVERY!
DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA
VINEGAR BITTERS.
Hundreds of Thousands Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.
WHAT ARE THEY!
THEY ARE NOT A VILE FANCY DRINK, Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Root and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and a LIFE-GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to direction and remain long unwell, provided the bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.
For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been the most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.
DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia.
They invigorate the stomach and stimulate the torpid liver and bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities, and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.
FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effect.
Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins, cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.
PIN, TAPE and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. For full directions, read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French and Spanish.
FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal. ☞ Send for a circular.
They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs. 1yrdawlsebtf

The Cause and Cure of Consumption.
The primary cause of Consumption is derangement of the digestive organs. The derangement produces deficient nutrition and assimilation. By assimilation I mean that process by which the nutriment of the food is converted into blood, and thence into the solids of the body. Persons with digestion thus impaired, having the slightest predisposition to pulmonary disease, or if they take cold, will be very liable to have Consumption of the Lungs in some of its forms; and I hold that it will be impossible to cure any case of Consumption without first restoring a good digestion and healthy assimilation. The very first thing to be done is to cleanse the stomach and bowels from all diseased mucous and slime which is clogging them organs that they cannot perform their functions, and then rouse up and restore the liver to a healthy action. For this purpose I know of no medicine equal to SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS. These Pills cleanse the stomach and bowels of all the dead and morbid slime that is causing fermentation and decay in the whole system. They will clear out the liver of diseased bile that has accumulated there, and arouse it up to a new and healthy action, by which natural and healthy bile is secreted.
The stomach, bowels and liver are thus cleansed by the use of Schenck's Mandrake Pills; but there remains in the stomach an excess of acid, the organ is torpid, and the appetite is poor. In the bowels, the lacteals are weak, and requiring strength and support. It is in a condition like this that Schenck's Seaweed Tonic proves to be the most valuable remedy ever discovered. It is alkaline, and its use will neutralize all excess of acid, making the stomach sweet and fresh; it will give tone and strength to the important organ, and create a good, hearty appetite, and prepare the system for the first process of a good digestion, and ultimately make good, healthy, living blood. After this preparatory treatment, what remains to cure most cases of consumption is the free and persevering use of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup. The Pulmonic Syrup nourishes the system, purifies the blood, and is readily absorbed into the circulation, and thence distributed to the diseased lungs. There it ripens all morbid matters, whether in the form of abscesses or tubercles, and then assists Nature to expel all the diseased matter in the form of free expectoration, when once it ripens. It is then, by the great healing and purifying properties of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, that all ulcers and cavities are healed up sound, and my patient is cured.
The essential thing to be done in curing Consumption is to get a healthy appetite and a good digestion, so that the body will grow in flesh and get strong. If a person has diseased lungs, a cavity or abscess there, the cavity cannot heal, the matter cannot ripen, so long as the system is low par. What is necessary to cure is a new order of things, a good appetite, a good nutrition, a good blood, and then, if cut for, then Nature is helped, the cavities will heal, the matter will ripen and be thrown off in large quantities, and the person regains health and strength. This is the true and only plan to cure Consumption, and if a person is very bad, if the lungs are much wasted and destroyed, or even if one lung is entirely gone, if there is enough vitality left in the other to heal up, there is hope.
I have seen many persons cured with only one sound lung, given up by their friends and old physicians, and I have proved by the use of Schenck's medicines will do to cure Consumption. They will clean out the stomach, create a good and strong digestion, get a good digestion, and give Nature the assistance she needs to clear the system of all the disease that is in the lungs, whatever that form may be.
It is important that, while using Schenck's medicines, care should be exercised not to take cold from wet feet, wet clothes, cold and damp weather; avoid night air, and take all proper exercise only in a genial and warm sunshine.
I wish it distinctly understood that when I recommend a patient to be careful in regard to taking cold while using Schenck's medicines, it is for a special reason. A man who has but partially recovered from the effects of a bad cold is liable to take cold again, and those who have been entirely cured, and it is precisely the same in regard to consumption. So long as the lungs are not perfectly healed, just so long is there imminent danger or a full return of the disease. Hence it is that I so strenuously caution pulmonary patients against exposing themselves to an atmosphere that is not warm and pleasant. Confirmed consumptives' lungs are a mass of sores, which the least change of atmosphere will inflame. The great secret of my success with my medicines consists in my ability to subdue inflammation instead of provoking it, as many of the faculty do. An inflamed lung cannot with safety to the patient be exposed to the biting blasts of winter or the chilling winds of spring or autumn, but should be carefully shielded from all irritating influence. The utmost caution should be observed in this particular, as without it a permanent cure almost any circumstances is an impossibility.
The person should be kept on a wholesome and nutritious diet, and all the medicines continued until the body has restored to it the natural quantity of flesh and strength.
I was myself cured by this treatment of the worst kind of Consumption, and have lived to get fat and hearty three many years, with one lung mostly gone. I have cured thousands since, and very many have been cured by this treatment who I have never seen.
About the first of October I expect to take possession of my new building at the northeast corner of Sixth and Arch Streets, where I shall be pleased to give advice to all who may require it.
Full directions accompany all my remedies, so that a person in any part of the world can be readily cured by a strict observance of the same.

CHESAPEAKE & OHIOS — FIVE TWENTIES—CENTRAL PACIFICS.
BANKING OFFICE OF
FISK & HATCH,
No. 5 Nassau Street, New York.
September 25th, 1871.
Of the FIFTEEN MILLION CHESAPEAKE and OHIO SIX PER CENT. LOAN, but about $4,500,000 remain unsold, and this remainder will be taken up rapidly.
The five years' option having expired on all series of FIVE-TWENTY BONDS, except 1867s and 1868s, they are liable to be called in for payment. The redemption of 100 millions FIVE-TWENTIES in coin, and the purchases by the Government during the ensuing four months, with the premium thereon, will release about 150 millions of invested capital, independently of dividend and interest payments, the greater part of which must seek reinvestment.
The Chesapeake and Ohio Sizes
have absolutely 30 years to run; are especially desirable for steady investments, and can now be bought
17 per cent. less than Ten-forties.
20 per cent. less than Five-twenties,
25 per cent. less than Sixes of 1881,
and are equally sure to be paid principal and interest in gold coin. Their amount is limited by the Trust Deed to $15,000,000. Price (at present) 93 and accrued interest, that is, with coupon attached, payable Nov. 1.
$1,000 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $954.16.
$500 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $476.80.
$100 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $95.42.
Only a small amount of the latter denominations remains, and when these are sold, Bonds are in coupon or register form, same as Five-twenties.
This debt is created by the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad Company in order more speedily and effectually to extend and complete the main line of their Road to the Ohio River. This work —the most important Railroad improvement now progressing in the country—is rapidly approaching completion. It will establish a direct and shorter line of transportation between the Ohio and Mississippi valleys and the eastern cities; bringing ten millions of people, mainly producers, nearer to the centres of consumption in the Eastern States, and nearer to the political and commercial capitals of their country. Such is the commanding importance of this Trunk Line that the large cities of the West are projecting feeders to connect with it, so as to avail themselves of its unequalled facilities as soon as it is completed. Large tracts of valuable coal and iron lands along its route are passing into the hands of practical miners and iron manufacturers; a large city is springing up at the western terminus, the head of relative navigation on the Ohio, where it intersects 12,000 miles of river navigation, and will soon be in connection with 30,000 miles of railroad centers.
The CENTRAL PACIFIC SIX PER CENT. BONDS are as safe for investment as Government Bonds. Their amount fixed by act of Congress at $25,880,000, is secured by property worth four times their value; they can only be bought in the open market, and are becoming scarcer in consequence of their gradual absorption into strong hands and in Europe; they have a ready market in all the principal money-centres, and are sure to be paid years to run; the earnings of the road are steadily increasing, and have reached the present year $10,000,000 for the current year, affording a handsome surplus after payment of expenses and interest. Present price, 90 and accrued int.
When the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad is completed, in 1872, and the Bonds are dealt in at home and abroad, as the UNITED STATES 6s AND OHIO BONDS are specifically payable in gold coin in New York; the interest on the former being paid net perfectly healthy, and of the latter, May and November, corresponding with the two classes of Five-twenties.
We buy and sell FIVE-TWENTIES, TEN-FORTIES, TEN-TWENTY-ONES, and CENTRAL OF WESTERN PACIFICS, or receive them in payment for CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO BONDS at their current market prices.
Orders for Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds, accompanied with Drafts or Checks, may be forwarded by any responsible Express Company at our expense, and the Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds, in exchange, will be sent by return Express, charges paid, on receipt of the money.
P. S.—Accounts of Banks, Bankers and others received, on which we allow Four Per Cent. interest.
Certificates of deposit issued and collections made in all parts of the Union.

ARE YOU GOING TO PAINT?
—IF SO, USE THE—
AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINT.
It is Cheaper, Handsomer and more durable than the best of other Paints. One Thousand Gallons of it were used in Boston in the year 1870, and not one complaint has come from those who have used it; but all speak in its favor; it is easier put on than any other Paint, making a smooth, glossy surface for years, that can be cleaned with soap and water without injuring it. It is excellent for walls inside, in the place of paper.
I shall keep this season a large stock of Chemical Paints of all shades on hand, to accommodate customers with any amount, without delay in ordering it. Those who want to use the Chemical Paints and have had them misrepresented by other Linseed or Lead and Oil, are invited to call and examine my Paints that have been on Buildings two years, and you will find them as fresh as if laid but one month.

POLITICAL ARITHMETIC.—Within two weeks an important change has taken place in the attitude of woman suffrage in the politics of Massachusetts.

Woman suffrage is to-day the strongest of the three great reform questions which agitate the State, because it has become the connecting link between reform and temperance — in other words, woman suffrage is to-day the only common ground upon which all reformers can rally.

If these three forces can ever be combined, without conflicting with party prejudices, we shall govern the State of Massachusetts. How can this best be accomplished? Inside or outside of the republican organization?

This is a grave question, but it is not a question of principle. It is purely a a question of policy. More correctly speaking, it is a question of political arithmetic.

To illustrate: Here are we, the radicals of Massachusetts—woman suffragists, labor reformers, prohibitionists—divided more or less on the two last questions, but all substantially united on woman suffrage. The problem is—how to govern the State?

To-day, as a matter of fact, sixty men more progressive than the average, banded together as republicans, govern forty men less progressive on the average, banded together as democrats. The reformers, the radicals, always a minority, seek to control the State. In other words, we seek to govern the one hundred. How shall we do this? Inside or outside the republican organization?

We say, inside the republican organization. For the simple reason that in order to control the sixty republicans, only thirty-one votes are needed. A majority of an organization, for practical purposes, is as good as the whole. Thirty-one control sixty. And sixty control the hundred. In other words, to control the republican party is to control the State of Massachusetts. Working inside the republican organization, thirty-three per cent. of the voters of Massachusetts, united on a principle, can govern the State.

But in order to govern the State outside of the republican party, at least fifty-five votes will be needed. And these fifty-five, after all, will have to be mainly republican votes wrenched from their present party affiliations upon a single issue. A work frightfully difficult—well-nigh impossible.

We repeat it: Two courses of action are open to the radical reformers of Massachusetts. One is to form a woman suffrage party, with radical labor reform and temperance planks in its platform. The other, to remain in the republican organization. To convert it. To control it. To combine our forces as radical republicans (nonscience republicans, if you will), and to unite next year upon reform candidates and a reform platform.

Then let us go to the legislature next winter and demand legislation in behalf of woman suffrage. Mark the men who vote against us. Next year let us be radical republicans, organized and united, no longer suppliants but masters of the situation.—Woman's Journal.

—Some of the sensation reporters appear to have risen to the height of the ridiculous in writing of the Chicago fire. One of them tells us that "eastward the fire journeyed with its fevered stride, eating like a withering canker through the vitals of the city," and adds, "northward the hell angel strode to the emporium of rich produce it was longing for. Now it hung around a bank, burst open its doors, shivered its windows, scorched through its roof, and toiled and burned its fiercest till the great safe—ah, the safe! had succumbed to its blasting, melting breath." He goes on to inform us that the fire "snacked with its cremating arms the corn-stored elevators," and continues: "Would the willing wind never die? It did not fall, it only changed, as it had exhausted all the demon on thence it came, and then had called upon the north to send out its vandal breeze.

—Any item of news from Chicago is now of interest, so we quote the following: "I met a friend on Tuesday, walking thoughtfully around with a piece of lead pipe. As I approached and saluted him he stopped, slapped the lead pipe down on a brick wall, it smashed flat, and then said, 'Joe, that pipe's all I've got in the world; but I begin again to-morrow.' I met a man on the night of the fire who had lost first his store and then his handsome residence on Michigan avenue. He was lugging around a marble mantel with the heavy sides attached. He laughed as he saw me, and remarked, 'That's all there is now; but I'm going to see if I can't find another and build a house to fit.'"

—A La Crosse paper says: "The forests on the islands in the Mississippi are full of gray squirrels now moving west, and the captain of the ferry boat says the river is full of them, swimming to the Minnesota shore. The crop of nuts in Wisconsin is small, and these squirrels go where they may provide for the winter."

—The latest euphuism for red hair is Canandaigua color; Canandaigua being, as every New York railroad traveller knows, a little beyond Auburn.

BUCHU

[From Dispensatory of the United States.]

DIOSMA CRENATA — BUCHU LEAVES.

PROPERTIES.—Their odor is strong, diffusive and somewhat aromatic; their taste bitterish and analogous to mint.

MEDICAL PROPERTIES AND USES.—Buchu leaves are gently stimulant, with a peculiar tendency to the Urinary Organs.

They are given in complaints of the Urinary Organs, such as Gravel, Chronic Catarrh of the Bladder, Morbid Irritation of the Bladder and Urethra, Disease of the Prostrate Gland, and Retention or Incontinence of Urine, from a loss of tone in the parts concerned in its evacuation. The remedy has also been recommended in Dyspepsia, Chronic Rheumatism, Cutaneous Affections and Dropsy.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is used by persons from the ages of 18 to 25, and from 35 to 55, or in the decline or change of life; after Confinement or Labor Pains; Bed-Wetting in children.

In affections peculiar to Females, the Extract Buchu is unequalled by any other remedy, as in Chlorosis or Retention, Irregularity, Painfulness or Suppression of Customary Evacuations, Ulcerated or Schirrous State of the Uterus.

DISEASES OF THE BLADDER, KIDNEYS, GRAVEL AND DROPSICAL SWELLINGS.—This medicine increases the power of Digestion, and excites the Absorbents into healthy action, by which the Watery or Calcareous depositions and all Unnatural Enlargements are reduced, as well as Pains and Inflammation.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU has cured every case of Diabetes in which it has been given. Irritation of the Neck of the Bladder and Inflammation of the Kidneys, Ulceration of the Kidneys and Bladder, Retention of Urine, Diseases of the Prostrate Gland, Stone in the Bladder, Calculus, Gravel, Brick-Dust Deposit and Mucous or Milky Discharges, and for enfeebled and delicate constitutions of both sexes, attended with the following symptoms: Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Horror of Diseases, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Pain in the Back, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Eruption on the Face, Pallid Countenance, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, etc.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is Diuretic and Blood-Purifying, and cures all diseases arising from habits of dissipation, excesses and imprudences in life, impurities of the Blood, etc., superseding Copaiba and other Nauseous Compounds.

Beware of counterfeits. Ask for Helmbold's. Take no other.

Price $1.25 per Bottle, or 6 Bottles for $6.50.

MANHOOD

IN THE

Young and Rising Generation.

The vegetable powers of life are strong, but in a few years how often the pallid hue, the lack-lustre eye and emaciated form, and the impossibility of application to mental effort, show their baneful influence. It soon becomes evident to the observer that some depressing influence is checking the development of the body. Consumption is talked of, and perhaps the youth is removed from school and sent into the country. This is one of the worst movements. Removed from ordinary diversions of the ever-changing scenes of the city, the powers of the body, too much enfeebled to give zest to healthful and rural exercise, thoughts are turned inwardly upon themselves.

If the patient be a female the approach of the menses is looked for with anxiety as the first symptom in which nature is to show her saving power in diffusing the circulation and visiting the cheek with the bloom of health. Alas! increase of appetite has grown by what it is fed on. The energies of the system are prostrated, and the whole economy is deranged. The beautiful and wonderful period in which body and mind undergo so fascinating a change from child to woman, is looked for in vain. The parent's heart bleeds in anxiety, and fancies the grave but waiting for its victim.

TRY HELMBOLD'S

EXTRACT BUCHU

For Weakness Arising from Excesses or Early Indiscretion,

attended with the following symptoms: Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, General Weakness, Horror of Disease, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Dreadful Horror of Death, Night Sweats, Cold Feet, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Languor, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, Often Enormous Appetite with Dyspeptic Symptoms, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Pallid Countenance and Eruptions on the Face, Pain in the Back, Heaviness of the Eyelids, Frequently Black Spots Flying before the Eyes, with Temporary Suffusion and Loss of Sight, Want of Attention, Great Mobility, Restlessness, with Horror of Society. Nothing is more desirable to such Patients than Solitude, and Wishing they more dread, for fear of themselves; no repose of matter, no earnestness, no speculation, but a hurried transition from one question to another.

THESE SYMPTOMS, IF ALLOWED TO GO ON—WHICH THIS MEDICINE INVARIABLY REMOVES — SOON FOLLOW LOSS OF POWER, FATUITY AND EPILEPTIC FITS, IN ONE OF WHICH THE PATIENT MAY EXPIRE.

During the Superintendence of Dr. Wilson at the Bloomingdale Asylum, this sad result occurred to two patients. Reason has for a time left them, and both died of epilepsy. They were of both sexes, and about twenty years of age.

Who can say that these excesses are not frequently followed by those direful diseases, Insanity and Consumption? The records of the Insane Asylums, and the melancholy deaths of Consumption, bear ample witness to the truth of these assertions. In Lunatic Asylums the most melancholy exhibitions appears. The countenance is actually sodden and quite destitute; neither mirth nor grief ever visits it. Should a sound of the voice occur it is rarely articulate.

"With woful measures wan despair
Low sullen sounds their grief beguile."

While we regret the existence of the above diseases and symptoms, we are prepared to offer an invaluable gift of chemistry for the removal of the consequences.

HELMBOLD'S

Fluid Extract of Buchu.

There is no tonic like it. It is an anchor of hope to the physician and patient. This is the testimony of all who have used or prescribed it.

Beware of counterfeits and those cheap decoctions called Buchu, most of which are prepared by self-styled doctors, from deleterious ingredients, and offered for sale at "less price" and "larger bottles," etc. The ingredients are frequently injurious. Ask for Helmbold's. Take no other.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 27, 1871.

TAMMANY'S THIEVERY.—The New York Tribune publishes the evidence against Tweed. The fraudulent transactions, the subject of the contemplated [illegible] began in the passage of section 4 of the county tax laws of 1870, creating a board of audit and providing for the payment of claims and liabilities against the city and county. The board consisted of Mayor Hall, Controller Connolly and two others. The board never had but one meeting, which did not last fifteen minutes and the record was there made up of a minute and resolution, which resolution was drawn and read by Mayor Hall, and said to be in his handwriting. Instead of auditing claims or liabilities, the resolution, in plain violation of the law, provided that auditor Watson should collect together all the claims and that certificates of William M. Tweed, president of the board of supervisors, or Joseph B. Young, secretary of the same board, should be the evidence required to enable a claim to be paid. It is held by the attorney-general that the mayor must have advised his colleagues that this was the execution of their trust, whereas their duty was to investigate the accounts and find out what was due. The board had consequently no right to take the certification proposed by the resolution as conclusive.

The next step was the collection of warrants. Of the total of these warrants, $6,312,541.37, these dependents and tools of Tweed deposited $5,710,-913 98, and the New York Printing Company deposited $384,395.19, making $6,095,319.17. The further $103,648 68 is believed to have been deposited by Ingersoll in a different bank, so that the whole amount of audit except $113,583.52 was really collected by persons in connection with, or in collusion with Tweed. Ingersoll collected $3,-501,584 50 of the warrants, and received from Garvey out of his collection $47,748.68. Of that aggregate he paid over to Woodward $1,817,467.48, or a little more than half his whole receipts. Garvey deposited warrants amounting to $1,177,413.72. He paid to Woodward $731,971.01, or over two-thirds of the whole amount of his receipts. Woodward deposited $1,032,-715 76 and he received in checks from Ingersoll and Garvey enough of these collections to make the total $3,582,-054.26. Of this amount he paid over $923,858.50 to Tweed. Woodward was then, and is now deputy clerk to Young, of the board of supervisors, on whose certification, according to Mayor Hall's resolution as well as on that of Tweed the bills were to be paid. It is unknown to whom Woodward made the other payments, but these he made to Tweed are established beyond doubt.

The tickets accompanying the deposits are in the handwriting of Woodward, and the teller of the Broadway Bank swore that they were generally made by Woodward in person. Including $104,333.64, Tweed received the handsome aggregate of $1,037,-192.14. Elbert A. Woodward, the former clerk of the old board of supervisors, and joint agent with James Watson of the ring, recently disappeared, saying that he was going to Chicago. It proves that he transferred his property in Connecticut to his partner, Mr. Beatley. It is not very valuable and represents but a fraction of many millions stolen. His whole purchases of real estate since 1864 amount to $174,881, mostly since February, 1869; and his sales to $60,500. He has also loaned to parties in Norwalk $303,050, taking in each instance a mortgage on property in town. The complaint is accompanied by tables and schedules of the city warrants, tickets of deposits and other documents, endorsed by Tweed, the Woodwards, and others, showing how large sums of money have passed into their hands; and the correctness of these tables are certified to by affidavit from Samuel J. Tilden, who swears that he personally traced and examined them.

THE DESCENT into the hitherto unexplored pit in the Mammoth Cave, in Kentucky, was made recently by A. D. Babbitt, a telegraph operator from Michigan. He found bottom at a distance of 198 feet from the main avenue. The descent was witnessed by 200 guests of the hotel, who welcomed the daring young adventurer back with hearty cheers and congratulations. The rope with which he was lowered in the pit was dangerously cut in several places by the rocks which it had passed.

—In a libel suit against a newspaper, at Little Rock, Arkansas, for $50,000, the plaintiff obtained $1 in damages.

From the Newburyport Herald.

AT A MEETING of the Salisbury Thief Detecting Company, held at Union Hall, East Salisbury, Mass., October 14th, inst., the following article was agreed upon for publication:

In consequence of the controversy carried on through the press of late in reference to the characters and habits of some of the residents of South Seabrook, we, the citizens and land holders of the east part of the town of Salisbury, have been represented in some of those papers as not having suffered any loss by theft or trespass by that people.

As we have taken no part in the above named controversy, we feel it our duty in justice to ourselves and the public, to state some of the facts in the case—viz., that sundry persons have committed innumerable depredations on our property in Salisbury. Wood thieving has become so general that it is now believed there are from fifty to sixty families in South Seabrook that own no wood land, and buy little or no fuel, consequently their fires are principally supported from wood lands and fences of the adjoining town of Salisbury. The most part of the wood thus taken consists of young growing trees, too valuable to be cut by the owners for any purpose. The fences we are obliged to harvest in the fall, and rebuild them again in the spring. Apples, corn, and farming produce of every description must be gathered before they are matured, or plunder is the result—so much so that some have abandoned cultivating land within their reach. Our cord wood must be hauled about as soon as cut, or it is carried off, thereby causing extra expense. Our cows have been milked while in our pastures. Some have been personally threatened with death and stoned when we gave them no provocation, but were quietly at work on our own land. These depredations are committed very largely on the Sabbath, or under the cover of night. The damage annually done to our property is estimated at from $2000 to $2500.

In the fall of 1820 trespassing and thieving had increased to such a degree that the landholders of Salisbury formed themselves into a thief detecting company, consisting of fifty-nine members. Eleven of them are now living. A prosecuting committee was chosen and rewards offered, which held them in check for the time it continued, which was eleven years. In 1842 trespassing had become so bold and defiant that a second thief detecting company was formed of twenty-nine members, and continued nine years. The third thief detecting company was organized in 1864 with thirty-two members. The present company was organized in January, 1870, with thirty-two members. These companies have been very much embarrassed for want of adequate laws, so much so that they have sent two petitions to the Legislature for greater penalties for theft and trespass—one in the year 1858 with sixty-nine names, and the other in 1870 with upwards of a hundred signatures.

The present company applied to the selectmen of our town for an additional police force, which has been granted, and have also voted rewards, for the apprehension and conviction of persons committing the above named crimes, and adopted resolutions showing the determination of the company to prosecute the work vigorously in the future.

Furthermore, we respectfully request the town authorities of Salisbury and Seabrook, and also the good and law abiding citizens of South Seabrook, to co-operate with us in bringing to justice these offenders against the laws of the land and in defiance thereof.

We would also tender our thanks to Rev. Wm. A. Rand, pastor of the congregational church constituted in the village, for his fidelity and untiring zeal among that people, especially for his open and bold rebukes for the sin of stealing, believing that it is his honest endeavor to elevate and reform the people.

To the editors who have published communications on this subject, we request the publication of this article also.

A true copy.

ABEL MERRILL, Clerk Pro Tem.

THE FIRE IN CHICAGO had the curious effect of spoiling the "outsides" of nearly two hundred weekly newspapers which are published hundreds of miles from that city in Illinois, Iowa, Wisconsin and Minnesota. One of the leading printers of Chicago did a large business in printing these "outsides" in duplicate and sending them to different places, where the local publishers printed the news on the other side. The farmers who depended upon these sheets for their weekly supply of news must have been puzzled to know how the Chicago fire could have deprived them of their village newspaper while the home office remained intact.

THROUGH THE NOTCH.—At a meeting of the Portland and Ogdensburg Railroad, held in Portland on the 23d, a vote was passed authorizing the issuing of $3,300,000 bonds, including $800,000 issued in July, $2,500,000 to be applied to the completion of the railroad to the Connecticut River. The bonds are to be secured by a first mortgage of the road as located and to be located. This means the extension of the road through the White Mountain Notch.

THE DOMESTIC SEWING MACHINE.—Since the Domestic Sewing Machine was awarded the "First Premium" at the late State Fair at Dover, the rush for them has been even greater than ever; Mr. E. A. Joy, the fortunate Agent, whose rooms are adjoining our office, is unable to set them up as fast as they are called for, notwithstanding he has lately employed an able assistant. Everybody who buys a "Domestic" seems happy. At the State Fair it was found to be the only Machine in the world having self adjusting tensions. It was in operation four days, using all kinds of thread on all sorts of goods, without any change of tensions. If you don't examine it before purchasing any other, you will wish you had.

IT IS SAID that if a puff of air were to be blown into a vein of an animal, death would instantaneously follow, because circulation would be stopped. The blood makes the entire circuit of the human body every seven minutes, and whenever this circulation is impeded or any of its channels are clogged by impurities which ought to be carried off, disease follows—fever or a disorder of liver or kidneys, or scrofula, or dyspepsia. To get at and remove the source of the difficulty use the old and infallible blood purifier, DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA VINEGAR BITTERS. o21 4w

The Means of Escape.

The fall has many perils for the week and feeble, and its sudden atmospheric changes are trying to the constitutions of even the robust. The chilling temperature of the nights, as compared with the almost summer warmth of the days, necessarily exercises an unhealthy influence on all who are exposed to it. Hence dysentery, diarrhœa, intermittent fevers, billious attacks, and derangements of all the secretions, are common at this season. The true way to escape them is to meet the causes with a protective and invigorating medicine. HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS are designed for this exigency. This powerful vegetable specific relieves the system of all acrid humors, purifies the fluids, tones the secretive organs, promotes healthy evaporation through the pores, increases the activity of the digestive functions, cheers the spirits, and regulates the bowels. To do this is to make the whole body vigorous, and render it proof against the vicissitudes of temperature, and against malaria. A course of the great tonic and alterative is therefore in all cases advisable as a preventive at this season. If, on the other hand, the mischief is already done, and intermittent or remittent fever is actually present, or the liver, bowels, or stomach disordered, there is no medicine so certain to effect a quick and thorough cure as this harmless and agreeable preparation.

THE EMANCIPATION PROCLAMATION. A lady was reading to her servants an account of the Chicago fire. The incident of the burning of the emancipation proclamation, which cost that city $25,-000 for its Historical Society, arrested the attention of one old colored woman, a slave all her life, who viewed the proclamation much as the Israelites did the ark of the covenant.

"What dat," she said, "burned up?"

"Yes, aunty, burned up."

"Den what gwine come of us again?"

"I don't know; may be you'll be slaves as before."

"Den dis chile gwine to die right now."

And throwing up her hand in dismay, she left the presence of her mistress, visiting dire imprecations on the head of the man "what sot out dat fire."—Picayune.

1871. LYCEUM COURSE. 1872

IN arranging the programme for a course of Popular Lectures, Readings, &c., to be given in the

Universalist Church

for the season of 1871—2, the committee believe this list has the largest number of distinguished names ever offered to the Portsmouth public, and that the Course will present attractions not surpassed in point of interest and variety. They will appear in the order announced:

NOV. 2, Maj. Gen. JUDSON KILPATRICK.
Subject: "The American Stump." A new, instructive and amusing lecture.

NOV. 9, Rev. W. H. H. MURRAY.
Subject: "Deacons." A new lecture.

NOV. 16, JAMES T. FIELDS.
Subject: "A Plea for Cheerfulness."

NOV. 23, GEORGE WILLIAM CURTIS.
Subject: "Women in the Old time and the New."

NOV. 30, REV. S. H. MCCOLLESTER.
Subject: "Athens and Greece."

DEC. 7, Rev. WILLIAM R. NICHOLSON, D. D.
Subject: "Civilization and Poverty."

DEC. 14, Rev. E. E. HALE.
Subject: "He Did his Level Best." A Story This is an entirely new feature, arranged especially for Lyceums, and has proved to be an exceedingly attractive one.

Dec. 21, Mrs. MARY A. LIVERMORE,
Subject: "What shall we do with our Daughters?"

JAN. 4, PROF. MOSES T. BROWN, and DR. J. H. WILLCOX.
Entertainment: Organ Concert. Miscellaneous Readings, by Prof. Brown, from favorite authors, with some character sketches.
Organ Recitals by Dr. Willcox performed on the fine new organ recently placed in this church.

JAN. 11, Prof. C. H. HITCHCOCK.
Subject: "Life above the Clouds; or, Mt. Washington in Midwinter," illustrated with noted Stereoscopic Views of frost work, exhibited by the aid of a Stereopticon and Calcium Light.

The organ will be exhibited each evening.

TICKETS for this Course are now ready, at the stores of Messrs. Shores, Preston, Thacher and Hill.

PRICE $1.50 FOR THE COURSE.

No single evening tickets will be issued.

As the number to be sold is limited to the comfortable seating capacity of the church, those desiring to attend should secure their tickets without delay, as a large number are already taken up.

Reinstated.

At the meeting of the Board of Aldermen, Thursday evening, a report recommending the reinstatement of City Marshal Johnson was accepted and adopted.

Reasonable Apprehension.

A correspondent writes: "The local Democratic editor appears to be very much afraid of fire at a future day. His apprehensions are w—ell grounded, —there won't be enough of the Portsmouth Fire Department there to help him any."

Mr. Frank M. Varrell

Of this city has received the appointment of Paymaster's Clerk on board the Wyoming, a position which he is well qualified to fill. Mr. Varrell has many friends in this city, and is known as a quiet, unassuming and genial young gentleman.

New Dining Rooms.

Mr. Wm. B. Wentworth has opened an eating house on the corner of Chestnut and Congress Streets, the stand formerly occupied by Mr. C. W. Carter. The saloon has been very handsomely fitted up, and has a ladies' entrance on Chestnut Street. See advertisement.

Charity Festival.

A Festival in aid of the sufferers at the West will be held in Academy Hall at Greenland on Wednesday and Thursday evenings, Nov. 1 and 2. Music, charades, tableaux and dialogues will form part of the attractions, and refreshments in abundance will be provided, thus giving the hungry a chance to fill themselves and a prospective chance of feeding some one still more needy, at the same time. Tickets of admission, 25 cts.

Didn't See 'Em.

Rev. L. L. Harmon, of this city, who was in Wisconsin at the time of the destruction of Peshtigo and other places by "balls of fire from Heaven," did not see any of those destructive missiles, nor hear of them until he left the State. The general impression was that an earthly fire, driven by a furious gale through the dry woods and grasses, did the terrible mischief; "fire from Heaven" was not mentioned in connection with the disaster, so far as Mr. Harmon heard.

Naval.

The officers of the Wyoming have reported. They are as follows:—John L. Davis, Commander; R. S. Chew, D. C. Wordrow, Lt. Commanders; Chas. T. Hutchins, Lieut.; Henry M. Wells, Surgeon; W. H. McDonald, Asst. Surgeon; J. Linsley, Jr., Passed Asst. Paymaster; Geo. D. Emmons, Chief Engineer; R. W. Milligan, 2d Ass't Engineer; Clifford H. West, A. R. Conden, Masters; Robert G. Peck, James H. Bull, C. G. Calkins, Charles P. Kunhardt, E. M. Hughes, Midshipmen; William Long, Boatswain; J. A. McDonald, Gunner. It was the intention of the Commandant of the Yard to put the Wyoming in commission on Thursday, but as everything was not fully in readiness it was postponed to Friday.

Jonathan M. Foltz is appointed chief of the bureau of medicine and surgery in the navy department, in place of Dr. Wood, resigned.

Our Fire Department.

We have given up much of our space for a week past to communications on the Fire Department of the city and our facilities for extinguishing fires. The subject is one of great importance, and the discussion, if such it can be called, has been marked by evident good temper and real desire to benefit the city. But our local Democratic cotemporary says it has two communications from gentlemen of experience, observation and recognized good judgment, "in which the department is severely criticised," and that "our city is hourly in danger because the chief engineer and all his assistants are a mile away from their engines, on the navy yard."

Perhaps without its being so intended, the first of these statements is calculated to convey a very unjust impression concerning the fire department, to persons who are unacquainted with its actual condition. Severe criticism of the fire department necessarily implies that it is in a very bad state; yet we question if any city can produce a body of men who deserve credit for being not only active and energetic firemen but respectable citizens as well, more than do the fire department of Portsmouth. A drunken, quarrelsome or insubordinate member we believe would be at once expelled from any of the engine companies; from several of them we know he would. We can remember when an engine house was regarded as very much of a nuisance to a respectable neighborhood, from the carousings and Sunday card parties of the firemen; there is no suspicion even of anything of the kind now, that we ever hear of. There is rivalry enough between the various companies to make each anxious to excel in their legitimate duties as firemen, but the rivalry is manly and generous, and when entertainments are gotten up by one company the others are freely invited to participate as guests, and do so. The successful efforts of the Committee on Fire Department of the City Government, of the Board of Engineers and the officers and members of the engine companies, to elevate the moral tone of the department without impairing its efficiency, are worthy of all praise and should not be treated as fires are—have cold water thrown on them to prevent their further progress. Our firemen have demonstrated that rowdyism and efficiency are not synonymous terms, that a firemen's ball can be as well conducted as any other, and that a good time can be had at an engine-house supper without either ribaldry or drunkenness; and if nobody else in the city is proud of the department, we are.

The opinion expressed by our cotemporary that the employment of the Chief and Assistant Engineers on the navy yard is a serious objection to their holding such positions in the department, we regard as erroneous. At the navy yard, these men are but a few minutes' distance from the city, and the Chief Engineer carries (and has carried, ever since his appointment) in his pocket a standing order from the courteous Executive Officer of the yard, placing the ferry steamer at his instant disposal in case of an alarm of fire. We are thus absolutely certain that they will be on the ground in a very short time after an alarm is given,—which is what we could not be were they engaged in the city, for we have heard a former Assistant Engineer (not our correspondent "Ex-Engineer") remark that when he was in the department, under a Chief Engineer whose place of business was in the city, several fires occurred on different days, at not one of which was the Chief Engineer present! He happened on each occasion to be absent from the city on private business; but firemen from the navy yard were present on each occasion, and even assisted in taking their engine to the fires, although they had to pull across the river in row-boats after the alarms were given. Whether Mr. Marston is the best man we can get for the position of Chief Engineer, or not, we shall not attempt to decide; but we are sure that he has taken great interest in all the workings of his department, and has introduced valuable reforms and improvements, and has had no superior as Chief Engineer within the last fifteen years. The position of Chief Engineer is a thankless one at the best; we don't want it, and our candid, unbiased opinion is that the citizens of Portsmouth wouldn't want us to have it at more than one fire; but we fancy we could do a great deal more towards extinguishing or preventing the spreading of a conflagration if there was a full reservoir handy than if there was no water anywhere near,—and on this question of the immediate necessity of an abundant supply of water for fires we believe our heaviest tax-payers have the most decided opinions.

The Lady's Friend for November comes out with a beautiful new cover, designed and engraved expressly for it. The fine steel plate, "Is it Raining?" represents a lady stepping out upon a picturesque balcony, among trees and flowers. The Colored Fashions are tasteful and elegant, and the latest styles for dress in all its varieties are illustrated to the full satisfaction of feminine demands. Price $2 a year. Deacon & Peterson, Philadelphia,

Two Young Men of Saco went for an apple tree on which an apple was espied. Daniel Lowell clubbed his musket to knock the apple from the tree and in the attempt the gun was discharged and took effect in his leg, making quite a severe, though not dangerous wound.

A Queer Theft was committed in Warren, Conn., one day last week. Mr. Sherman W. Howard hung his pants, containing his wallet, on a chair. In the night his dog chewed up the pocket, wallet, money and all.

—A good instance of "sharp practice" is that of a man in Ohio, who was acquitted of murder on a plea of insanity. He had secured his lawyers by giving them a mortgage on his farm, but now repudiates the morgage on the ground that he was insane when he made it, according to the showing of these same lawyers.

—The ague is so bad in some parts of Connecticut that the victims are shaken out of bed.

New Subscribers who now pay in advance for the Daily Chronicle or N. H. Gazette for the year 1872, will receive either paper gratis until January. We will furnish the Gazette and the Concord Independent Statesman from this date to July 1, 1872, for $2 in advance to new subscribers.

☞ The New Hampshire Gazette for this week, is now ready for delivery, at the Chronicle Office. Each number contains all the reading matter of the week's Dailies. Price $2 a year; single copies 5 cents,—in wrappers for mailing, if desired. Six copies for $10 per year, to Clubs—per mail or city carrier.

Job and Card Printing.—We have made great additions to our jobbing facilities—a mammoth Hand Press (the largest in Portsmouth,) new Display Type, Borders of various styles, &c. —and are prepared to execute with neatness and dispatch, all orders for Full Sheet Posters, Dayslips, Pamphlets, Sermons, Addresses, Auction Bills, Constitutions, By Laws, Programmes, Handbills, Circulars, Orders Dances, Blanks, Bill Heads, Receipts, Tickets, Business, Marriage, Address and Visiting Cards, Labels, Tags, and in fact Printing of any Description, at Satisfactory Prices. His BEER has made of flesh no want,
Go thou and drink likewise.

Morning Chronicle.

THE INDESCRIBABLE SCENES.—There is little heart to write the tales of these sad and fearful times. Eye witnesses cannot describe them by word. The pen can only give an idea, and hardly even that, of the woe, the weeping, the homes ruined, the lives lost. Early Wednesday morning every available horse and wagon was brought into requisition for the purpose of reaching the sufferers in the different settlements within the range of the tornado of Sunday night's fire.

Too much credit cannot be given to the citizens of Oconto for the active sympathy displayed upon the occasion. The different supply teams reached their destination during the afternoon. Parties of men with axes were employed in advance of the teams to chop away the fallen trees and render the roads passable. The bridges, culverts, etc., were burned, and much time was taken up in actually building a way through.

We say we cannot describe the scene; we cannot. Infants clasped in mothers' arms; fathers, brothers, sisters, stiff in their embrace; actual lines of dead from the once happy farmhouse to the adjoining creek: charred groups, blackened corpses, crumbling bones, lacerated and torn members; the smiling babyhood a few hours past, the adolescent, the old, in one horrid heap of death, is all that is left of the country travelled over. The roadsides are strewn with dead horses, oxen, cows, swine, fowl. Even the untamed of the forest flew toward civilization for relief, but only to find death in their flight.

Deer, bear, rabbits, were discovered in profusion burned to a crisp. And all this within a few miles of our city. From the few left to tell the tale there can be little yet obtained in their half-crazed situation. We ourselves saw the father consign to their last resting-place all that was left of a family of six. We cared little about questioning, and he seemed to care as little about speaking. Having given him a few morsels of bread for necessary subsistence, we passed on, and saw the babe in it's mother's arms, the boy, the girl, in nakedness, the young woman, the mother, the father, in one sad group of death. Again, a family, apparently, for there was nothing left but the bones, and hardly bones at that. Yes, there was one of that family of which there was a little left. It was the baby. The poor mother, forgetful of herself, clung to her innocent offspring, and her last effort must have been to save her young one's life. The mother's hand, or the charred remains thereof, were on the babe's head; as if engaged in pressing it to the ground, face downwards, to save it from suffocation; the little face, that was all that was uninjured. A prominent young man was found with his throat cut, and his knife lying alongside him. He must have been crazed by tortures, or preferred immediate death to lingering agony. Hundreds of such cases could we cite, but what use? Let us merely take, if possible, into the mind's eye the desolation, suffering, death, poverty, want and loneliness, ruined homes, burnt corpses—perhaps happier than the living—and may the always wise Providence have mercy upon their souls.

It is the duty of us, who are yet safe, to fly with everything in our possession to the aid of our fellow-beings. A moment should not be lost, and no one should wait to be called upon. The smallest shred will cover its size of nakedness; the smallest morsel will, for a time, support life. It will be easy to deposit anywhere what we have to give. Anything left at our office will be reported to those charitable ladies and gentlemen who are so actively interesting themselves in this noble work of kindness.—Oconto Lumberman.

2. Turnips should be planted near the top of the ground, if yu want tew turn up good.

3. Egg plants iz good, sot under a stiddy hen will produce more chickens than they will tew plant them.

4. Potatoze are gennerally a healthy krop, but they are liable tew hav weak eyes.

5. Cowcumbers do the best in a lot bi themselfs; it ain't best tew cumber up a kitchen garden with cows.

6. Oats will gro on sun warm land; but tew yield well they have tew be thrasht; it is jiss so with beans, only beans has got to be poled fust, and thrasht afterwards.

7. Rye duz the best on a dry and thirsty sile, espeshally old rye; too much water will drown out old rye.

8. Tud stools will do well on a wet earth; so will tuds; but woodchucks must hav a gravelly sile.—Josh B.

—A certain beadle had fancied the manse housemaid; but at a loss for an opportunity to declare himself, one day—a Sunday—when his duties were ended, he looked sheepish, and said: "Mary, wad ye tak a turn, Mary?" He led her to the churchyard, and pointing with his finger, got out: "My fowk lie there, Mary; wad you like to lie there?" The grave hint was taken, and she became his wife, but does not yet lie there.

—A contemporary says that "The noble action of General Sheridan in the midst of the horrors of the Chicago calamity, is worthy of that distinguished soldier, and of the great Government for which he so promptly assumes to speak and act. There is no red tape about the act which commands one hundred thousand rations from St. Louis for suffering, starving Chicago! All honor to General Sheridan!"

A GREAT MEDICAL DISCOVERY!

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA

VINEGAR BITTERS.

Hundreds of Thousands Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.

WHAT ARE THEY!

THEY ARE NOT A VILE FANCY DRINK, Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Root and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and a LIFE-GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to direction and remain long unwell, provided the bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the stomach and stimulate the torpid liver and bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effect.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins, cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

PIN, TAPE and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. For full directions, read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French and Spanish.

FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal. ☞ Send for a circular.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs. 1yrdawfeb15

The Cause and Cure of Consumption.

The primary cause of Consumption is derangement of the digestive organs. This derangement produces deficient nutrition and assimilation. By assimilation I mean that process by which the nutriment of the food is converted into blood, and thence into the solids of the body. Persons with digestion thus impaired, having the slightest predisposition to pulmonary disease, or if they take cold, will be very liable to have Consumption of the Lungs in some of its forms; and I hold that it will be impossible to cure any case of Consumption with the first restoring a good digestion and healthy assimilation. The very first thing to be done is to cleanse the stomach and bowels from all diseased mucous and slime which is clogging these organs so that they cannot perform their functions, and then rouse up and restore the liver to a healthy action. For this purpose I know of no medicine so efficacious as SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS. These Pills cleanse the stomach and bowels of all the dead and morbid slime that is causing disease and decay in the whole system. They will clear out the liver of all diseased bile that has accumulated there, and arouse it up to a new and healthy action, by which natural and healthy bile is secreted.

The stomach, bowels and liver are thus cleansed by the use of Schenck's Mandrake Pills; but there remains in the stomach an excess of acid, the organ is torpid, and the appetite is poor. In the bowels, the intestals are weak, and requiring strength and support. It is in a condition like this that Schenck's Seaweed Tonic proves to be the most valuable remedy ever discovered. It is alkaline, and its use will neutralize all excess of acid, making the stomach sweet and healthy; it will give permanent tone to this important organ, and create a good, hearty appetite, and prepare the system for the first process of a good digestion, and ultimately make good, healthy, living blood. After this preparatory treatment, what remains to cure most cases of Consumption is the deep seated pervertedness of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup. The Pulmonic Syrup nourishes the system, purifies the blood, and is really the great blood and life circulation, and thence distributed to the diseased lungs. There it ripens all morbid matters, whether in the form of abscesses or tubercles, and then assists Nature to throw off the ripened matter. This is done by free expectoration, when once it ripens. It is then, by the great healing and purifying properties of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, that all abscesses and cavities are healed up sound, and my patient is cured.

The essential thing to be done in curing Consumption is to get up a good appetite and a good digestion, so that the body will grow in flesh and get strong. If a person has diseased lungs, a cavity or abscess there, the cavity cannot heal, the matter cannot ripen and throw off the system's fellow pat. What is necessary to cure is a new order of things, a good appetite, a good nutrition, and the system will grow in flesh and get fat; then Nature is helped, the cavities will heal, the matter will ripen and be thrown off in large quantities, and the person regains health and strength. This is the true and only plan to cure Consumption, and if a person is very bad, if the lungs are not entirely destroyed, or even if one lung is entirely gone, if there is enough vitality left in the other to heal up, there is hope.

I have seen many persons cured with only one second lung, live and enjoy life to a good old age. This is what Schenck's medicines will do to cure Consumption. They will clean out the stomach, give a hearty appetite, make a good digestion, and give Nature the assistance she needs to clear the system of all the disease that is in the lungs, whatever the disease may be.

It is important that, while using Schenck's medicines, care should be exercised not to take cold; keep in-doors in cold and damp weather; avoid night air, and be careful of door exercise only in a genial and warm sunshine.

I wish it distinctly understood that when I recommend a patient to be careful in regard to taking cold, I do not mean sufficient, I do not for a special reason. A man who has but partially recovered from the effects of a bad cold is far more liable to be taken sick than one who has been entirely cured, and it is precisely the same in regard to consumption. So long as the lungs are not perfectly healed, just so long is there imminent danger of a full return of the disease. Hence it is that I so strenuously caution pulmonary patients against exposing themselves to an atmosphere that is not perfectly mild and pleasant. Confirmed consumptives' lungs are a mass of sores, which the least change of atmosphere will cause to ulcerate. The great secret of my success with my medicines consists in my ability to subdue inflammation instead of provoking it, as many of the faculty do. An inflammation cannot be safely to the patient be exposed to the biting blasts of winter or the chilling winds of spring or autumn. It should be a cardinal principle with us to avoid inflaming influence. The utmost caution should be observed in this particular, as without it a cure under almost any circumstances is an impossibility.

The person should be kept on a wholesome and nutricious diet, and all the medicines continued until the body has restored to it the natural quantity of flesh and strength.

I was myself cured by this treatment of the worst kind of Consumption, and have lived to get the best of health for many years, and am now mostly gone. I have cured thousands since, and very many have been cured by this treatment who have not lived long.

About the first of October I expect to take possession of my new building at the northeast corner of Sixth and Arch Streets, where I shall be pleased to give advice to all who may require it.

Full directions accompany all my remedies, so that a person in any part of the world can be readily cured by a strict observance of the same.

CHESAPEAKE & OHIOS — FIVE TWENTIES—CENTRAL PACIFICS.

BANKING OFFICE OF

FISK & HATCH,

No. 5 Nassau Street, New York.

September 25th, 1871.

Of the FIFTEEN MILLION CHESAPEAKE and OHIO SIX PER CENT. LOAN, but about $4,150,000 remain unsold, and this remainder will be taken up rapidly.

The "gold option" having expired on all series of FIVE-TWENTY BONDS, except 1867s and 1868s, they are liable to be called in for payment. The redemption of 100 millions FIVE-TWENTIES in coin, and the purchases by the Government during the ensuing four months, with the premium thereon, will release about 150 millions of invested capital, independently of dividends and interest payments, the greater part of which must seek reinvestment.

The Chesapeake and Ohio Sixes

have absolutely 30 years to run; are especially desirable for steady investments, and can now be bought

17 per cent. less than Ten-forties.
20 per cent. less than Five-twenties,
25 per cent. less than Sixes of 1881,

and are equally sure to be paid principal and interest in gold coin. Their amount is limited by the Trust Deed to $15,000,000. Price (at present) 93 and accrued interest, that is, with coupon attached, payable Nov. 1st, 1871:

$1000 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $954.16.
$500 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $477.08.
$100 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $95.42.

Quite a small amount of the latter denominations remains, and no more can be made. Bonds are in coupon or register form, same as Five-twenties.

This debt is created by the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad Company in order more speedily and effectually to extend and complete the main line of their Road to the Ohio River. This work —the most important internal improvement now progressing in the country— is already in operation, and will place the English another and superior line of communication between the Ohio and Mississippi valleys and the ocean, bringing ten millions of people, mainly producers, nearer to the centres of consumption in the Eastern States, and nearer to the political and commercial capitals of their country. Such is the "commanding" importance of this Trunk Line that the larger cities of the West are projecting feeders to connect with it, so as to secure themselves of its unequalled facilities as soon as it is completed. Large tracts of valuable coal and iron lands along its route are passing into the hands of practical miners and iron manufacturers; a large city is springing up at the western terminus, the head of reliable navigation on the Ohio, where it intersects 12,000 miles of river navigation, and will be in connection with 30,000 miles of railroad carriage.

The CENTRAL PACIFIC SIX PER CENT. BONDS are as safe for investment as Government Bonds Their amount fixed by act of Congress at $25,885,000, is secured by property worth four times their value; they can only be bought in the open market, and are becoming rarer in consequence of their gradual absorption by investors here and in Europe; they have a ready market in Europe, and are sent there every week; they have twenty-four years to run; the earnings of the road are steadily increasing, and will probably reach $10,000,000 for the current year, affording a large surplus after payment of expenses and interest. Present price, 101½ to 102.

When the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad is completed, its First and Second Bonds are dealt in at the Stock Exchanges of the world, we have no doubt they will be equally popular with the CENTRAL PACIFIC. Both principal and interest of the CENTRAL PACIFIC and CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO BONDS are specifically payable in gold coin in New York; the interest on the former being paid semi-annually in New York, and of the latter, May and November, corresponding with the two classes of Five-twenties.

We buy and sell FIVE-TWENTIES, TEN-FORTIES, EIGHTY-ONES, and CENTRAL OR WESTERN PACIFICS, or receive them in payment for CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO BONDS at their current market price.

Orders for Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds, accompanied with Drafts or Checks, may be forwarded to us by mail. Bonds or money may be forwarded by any responsible Express Company at our expense, and the Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds, in exchange, will be sent by return Express, charges paid.

AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINT.

It is Cheaper, Handsomer and more durable than the best of other Paints. One Thousand Gallons of it were sold in Portland this City, last year 1870, and not one complaint has come from those who have used it; but all speak in its favor; it is backed, and has proved to be, the best article put on than any other Paint, making a smooth, glossy surface for years, that can be cleaned with scrubbing without injuring the work; it is excellent for walls inside, in the place of paper.

I shall keep this season a large stock of Chemical Paints of all shades on hand, to accommodate dealers with any amount, without delay in ordering it. Those who want to use the Chemical Paints and have had them misrepresented by those who deal in Lead and Oil, are invited to call and examine my Paints that have been on Buildings two years, and you will find them as fresh as if laid the present month.

TOOTHACHE.—In the treatment of toothache it is important to know that there are at least two common kinds of toothache arising from very different conditions, and requiring correspondingly different treatment. The first of these occurs when the tooth has decayed to the nerve or pulp, and the nerve in consequence has become inflamed. In this case there is no swelling of the face or gums, and little or no pain caused by striking the outside of the tooth, but any pressure into the decay or cavity or decay, whether produced by food or eating, or otherwise, causes great pain.

The second kind is connected with teeth whose nerves are dead. In this case the inflammation is on the outside of the root of the tooth, and not within, as in the former case. The tooth is apt to feel a little longer than the others, causing pain in closing the mouth, if there is a tooth opposite to meet it. It also generally seems a little loose. In severe cases, swelling of the jaw and face take place; and an abcess is likewise formed, containing a large amount of matter, that will in time, if not lanced, break and discharge; after which it will generally heal. It is, however, liable to return on taking the slightest cold. In less severe cases there may be but a slight swelling, which may subside without the formation of abscess. Where abscess has frequently formed, it may produce a sort of "caval," (?) for the almost constant discharge of ulcerated matter.

In the kind of toothache first described, a little creosote applied on cotton directly to the exposed nerve, will generally give temporary relief. In most cases, however, none but a dentist can properly apply it; for if it gets on the soft parts of the mouth, it will take the skin off, and the remedy may prove worse than the disease. Oil of cloves would be safer as a home remedy. Spirits of camphor, laudanum, chloroform, or ether, have each been used in the same way to advantage.

In the second kind of toothache described, the application of remedies to the hollow of the tooth is of no advantage whatever. Anodynes applied between the lips and jaw, about the roots of the teeth, may afford slight relief. Hot dry flannels, applied to the face, over the affected parts, and frequently renewed, often afford very great relief. Hot footbaths and purgatives may be used to advantage, for in severe cases of this kind, the whole system is often thrown into considerable fever.

CAN ANIMALS GENERALIZE?—Rev. Charles D. Nott, of St. Louis, sends to the "Independent" this story. A former pastor of mine told me the following: When a boy he had a fox which I regret to say, bore the reputation of possessing far more brain than personal piety. This fox was kept in the yard in a sort of a raised den, nicely sodded over, and was confined by a chain that allowed quite a generous circumference. One evening, in the fall, the farm wagon, returning from the field, with a load of corn, passed near the den, and by chance dropped an ear where the fox could reach it. He was seen to spring out, seize the corn and carry it quickly back into the den. What he wanted with it was a mystery, as corn formed no part of the gentleman's diet. The next morning, however, the mystery was solved, for the fox was observed, out of his den, and considerably within the length of his chain, nibbling off some of the corn and scattering it about in full view of the poultry, after which he took the remainder back into his den and awaited events. Sure enough, the chickens came; and while eating, out sprang the fox, nabbed his man, and quickly took his breakfast in his back parlor. Now it seems to me that this is pretty good "generalizing." The fox may not have reasoned upon the most sublime theme imaginable. But if he didn't evolve that chicken out of the depths of his own consciousness, then there is no such a thieg as logic.

HOROSKOPE FOR OKTOBER.—The male man ushered into existence this month will be ov an inquiring mind. The fust thing he will enquire for will be sum good cider. He will studdy divinity at fust, but will quit that and bekum a konduktor on a rale-rode; this pays better, and haz more perquisites. He will marry the woman ov his choice, which iz good, before he dies, but after he dyes he will hav black hair the rest of hiz days.

The woman born this month will be short ov stattue, and acquainted with grief. She will want a grate menny things, in this world, that ain't handy tew be got. She will marry just about the right time, and undertake tew liv with her mother-in-law, which iz a difficult kontrakt tew fill. The wimmin born this month are like a Rhode Island grening, ripen slow, and are most delightful away long into the winter.—Josh B.

—Croquet is said to be a more ancient game than most people suppose. It was introduced into England and France in 1630 under the name of pele mele. It was a favorite pastime of Charles II. and the Duke of York.

BUCHU

(From Dispensatory of the United States.)

DIOSMA CRENATA — BUCHU LEAVES.

PROPERTIES.—Their odor is strong, diffusive and somewhat aromatic; their taste bitterish and analogous to mint.

MEDICAL PROPERTIES AND USES.—Buchu leaves are gently stimulant, with a peculiar tendency to the Urinary Organs.

They are given in complaints of the Urinary Organs, such as Gravel, Chronic Catarrh of the Bladder, Morbid Irritation of the Bladder and Urethra, Disease of the Prostrate Gland, and Retention or Incontinence of Urine, from a loss of tone in the parts concerned in its evacuation. The remedy has also been recommended in Dyspepsia, Chronic Rheumatism, Cutaneous Affections and Dropsy.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is used by persons from the ages of 18 to 25, and from 35 to 55, or in the decline or change of life; after Confinement or Labor Pains; Bed-Wetting in children.

In affections peculiar to Females, the Extract Buchu is unequalled by any other remedy, as in Chlorosis or Retention, Irregularity, Painfulness or Suppression of Customary Evacuations, Ulcerated or Schirrous State of the Uterus.

DISEASES OF THE BLADDER, KIDNEYS, GRAVEL AND DROPSICAL SWELLINGS.—This medicine increases the power of Digestion, and excites the Absorbents into healthy action, by which the Watery or Calcareous depositions and all Unnatural Enlargements are reduced, as well as Pains and Inflammation.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU has cured every case of Diabetes in which it has been given. Irritation of the Neck of the Bladder and Inflammation of the Kidneys, Ulceration of the Kidneys and Bladder, Retention of Urine, Diseases of the Prostrate Gland, Stone in the Bladder, Calculus, Gravel, Brick-Dust Deposit and Mucous or Milky Discharges, and for enfeebled and delicate constitutions of both sexes, attended with the following symptoms: Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Horror of Disease, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Pain in the Back, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Eruption on the Face, Pallid Countenance, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, etc.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is Diuretic and Blood-Purifying, and cures all diseases arising from habits of dissipation, excesses and imprudences in life, impurities of the Blood, etc., superceding Copaiba and other Nauseous Compounds.

Beware of counterfeits. Ask for Helmbold's. Take no other.

MANHOOD

IN THE

Young and Rising Generation.

The vegetable powers of life are strong, but in a few years how often the pallid hue, the lack-lustre eye and emaciated form, and the impossibility of application to mental effort, show their baneful influence. It soon becomes evident to the observer that some depressing influence is checking the development of the body. Consumption is talked of, and perhaps the youth is removed from school and sent into the country. This is one of the worst movements. Removed from ordinary diversions of the ever-changing scenes of the city, the powers of the body, too much enfeebled to give zest to healthful and rural exercise, thoughts are turned inwardly upon themselves.

If the patient be a female the approach of the menses is looked for with anxiety as the first symptom in which nature is to show her saving power in diffusing the circulation and visiting the cheek with the bloom of health. Alas! increase of appetite has grown by what it is fed on. The energies of the system are prostrated, and the whole economy is deranged. The beautiful and wonderful period in which body and mind undergo so fascinating a change from child to woman, is looked for in vain. The parent's heart bleeds in anxiety, and fancies the grave but waiting for its victim.

TRY HELMBOLD'S

EXTRACT BUCHU

For Weakness Arising from Excesses or Early Indiscretion,

attended with the following symptoms: Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, General Weakness, Horror of Disease, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Dreadful Horror of Death, Night Sweats, Cold Feet, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Languor, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, Often Enormous Appetite with Dyspeptic Symptoms, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Pallid Countenance and Eruptions on the Face, Pain in the Back, Heaviness of the Eyelids, Frequently Black Spots Flying before the Eyes, with Temporary Suffusion and Loss of Sight, Want of Attention, Great Mobility, Restlessness, with Horror of Society. Nothing is more desirable to such Patients than Solitude, and nothing they more dread, for fear of themselves; no Repose of matter, no earnestness, no speculation, but a hurried transition from one question to another.

THESE SYMPTOMS, IF ALLOWED TO GO ON—WHICH THIS MEDICINE INVARIABLY REMOVES — SOON FOLLOW LOSS OF POWER, FATUITY AND EPILEPTIC FITS, IN ONE OF WHICH THE PATIENT MAY EXPIRE.

During the Superintendence of Dr. Wilson at the Bloomingdale Asylum, this sad result occurred to two patients. Reason has for a time left them, and both died of epilepsy. They were of both sexes, and about twenty years of age.

Who can say that these excesses are not frequently followed by those direful diseases, Insanity and Consumption? The records of the Insane Asylums, and the melancholy deaths of Consumption, bear ample witness to the truth of these assertions. In Lunatic Asylums the most melancholy exhibitions appears. The countenance is actually sodden and quite destitute; neither mirth nor grief ever visits it. Should a sound of the voice occur it is rarely articulate.

"With woful measures wan despair
Low sullen sounds their grief beguile."

While we regret the existence of the above diseases and symptoms, we are prepared to offer an invaluable gift of chemistry for the removal of the consequences.

HELMBOLD'S

Fluid Extract of Buchu.

There is no tonic like it. It is an anchor of hope to the physician and patient. This is the testimony of all who have used or prescribed it.

Beware of counterfeits and those cheap decoctions called Buchu, most of which are prepared by self-styled doctors, from deleterious ingredients, and offered for sale at "less price" and "larger bottles," etc. They are unreliable and frequently injurious. Ask for Helmbold's. Take no other.

ROMANISM AS IT IS. This entirely new, authentic book, of 750 pages, 105 engravings, is an exhaustive and standard work, eminently adapted to the times. It fully uncovers the whole Romish system, exposes its baseless pretenses, its frauds, its perentions, its gross immoralities, its opposition to our public schools, civil and religious liberty. CONN. Portsmouth, N. H.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 28, 1871.

The Sufferers at The West,

In the States of Wisconsin and Michigan, appeal to the people of the East for help. Their losses by the fire are but a s. ll part of the sacrifice. To-day they are hungering for food and shivering from cold. With plaintive cry they announce their destitution and woe. Grief stricken, hopeless, comfortless, without resource, they have a right to demand aid and no one has a right to refuse or neglect it, for it is next to a crime to do so. The humanity which has been roused within us as a people requires more exertion, less heedlessness. But one tithe has thus far been contributed by many in this community, and there are many we regret to say who have neglected their portion. How their consciences can allow them to forget their fellow beings is a mystery. The things of this life are temporary, the acts are more lasting. Rich and poor can carry none of their possessions with them at life's end, and they who neglect duty will regret it. To be utterly selfish is to be less humane. It is easy for many to give, but to all who make sacrifices there is certain compensation for the good they do. A little less luxurious living on the part of nearly every person may furnish the means of doing great good, perhaps of saving a life. A little trouble may be all the sacrifice necessary. Cast off garments may be found in every house. To the benevolently inclined, we suggest that a careful search will bring to light thousands of pieces of unused clothing in this city, every one of which might alleviate suffering. Do not postpone action, but commence immediately. All clothing donated will be received by Mr. A. H. Tucker, at No. 12 Market Street, and packed and promptly forwarded by the express lines. Mr. Tucker has shown great sympathy for the sufferers and has already despatched several cases of clothing to Chicago, showing a zeal which many young men should profit by. Every article left with him will be at once sent to its destination.

There are various ways in which the public may extend the much needed aid. Words of sympathy are but words, after all. A practical illustration of the old adage that "a friend in need is a friend indeed" is really wanted—and in this connection we hear that some of the amateur actors and actresses of Portsmouth are considering the matter of giving a benefit for the people of Wisconsin and Michigan who have so severely suffered of late. The only obstacle in the way is the reluctance of a few persons, who do not wish to appear again on the stage. We hope, however, that they will yield to the requests of friends and once more favor the public and help out the good cause.

Political.

At a Republican meeting in New York on the 25th, Wm. M. Evarts, who was counsel for Andy Johnson in the impeachment case, declared that the people would put down the Ring corruptionists by "bloody means" if they could not do so by peaceable measures, and when he treatened that if there was at the ensuing election a miscount of votes there would follow a fair count of bayonets, there was tremendous cheering.

The Detroit Post says the proposition of the Missouri Republican that the Democrats shall not nominate a candidate for President next year is only "a choice of deaths."

ANOTHER TERRIBLE COLLIERY disaster occurred near Newcastle, England, Thursday afternoon. An explosion took place in the Seaham mine, and thirty-three men were buried in the pit.

THE FIRE in Chicago was the work of "internationals," according to a sensational "confession" published in a paper of that city, and the statement is made that the incendiary work is to be continued in other cities.

WILLIAM B. STOKES, an ex-Congressman, and now supervisor of internal revenue for Tennessee, has been arrested in Washington charged with defrauding the government to the amount of $60,000.

AN UNKNOWN MAN was run over by a brick train on the Boston and Maine Railroad, near the Medford station on Wednesday afternoon, and had both his legs cut off.

IT IS BELIEVED that many of the persons burned at the Chicago fire were thieves engaged in plundering.

HON. THOMAS EWING of Ohio died on the 26th, aged 82 years. Gen. Sherman is his son-in-law.

THE LOUISVILLE COURIER-JOURNAL talks about the Democratic party in a strain of reckless levity that must grieve the souls of serious people like Greesbeck and Pendleton and Hendricks and Hoffman and Frank Blair and A. H. Stephens and the editors of the Boston Post, the New York World and the Mobile Register. Last week Senator Schurz delivered in Louisville one of his vigorous and suggestive speeches, and for a day or two the Courier-Journal appeared to be in a maze. Finally it came out with a long article defining its position, winding up in the following strain of facetious allegory:—

To simplify the thing by a common illustration, let us say that we are now riding in the old-fashioned Democratic carryall. We paid our fare and took a through ticket a good while ago. Well, it has jolted us right smartly. It has hauled over some pretty rough places. At times it looked as if we were going to upset. We know well enough that it is getting mighty rusty to look at, and likewise rickety. The fact is, the wheels have not been greased for some time, and now and then they do creak like the mischief. But, for all its age and battered condition, the old Democratic carryall is yet a vehicle. It ain't much for show. It ain't a fine and stylish vehicle. It ain't a gilt-edged chariot. But it'll go. It has wheels and a tongue; and, if we could get a couple of good wheel-horses, and stop the mouth of that infernal old baby down there in Georgia, we think there is some safe travelling in it even as it is. At all events, we see no other vehicle in sight except our little friend Grant's new-fangled coach-and-six, with the bob-tail ponies, and that doesn't suit us. Therefore we don't mean to get out of our carryall and take it afoot over an unknown country. Nor can we stop to help Carl Schurz make a new vehicle. We do not pretend to say that he will fail. We do not promise that his vehicle will not be stout and safe. We don't even know but that we shall be glad enough to be taken into it in case our old carryall breaks down. But, for the present, it seems to us best to stick to the cussed old critter, and to try and make it do. We'll take our chance at a run-and-jump if Carl Schurz's new drag catches up and is likely to get too far ahead of us. That old Georgia baby is a mighty nuisance, and we have two or three big brats here in Kentucky that keep up more noise than there's any use for. But when we get the horses hitched and started, and the old carryall begins to rattle along as if the wildcats were after it, they'll shut up, like little men. So, here's luck to Schurz—for we wish him well—and here's confusion to the coach-and-six with the bob-tailed ponies—and here's our best endeavors for the old carryall, till it breaks down or goes to smash!

New Hampshire Items.

Daniel Bailey, one of the sufferers by the Chicago fire, has arrived at his former home in Dunbarton. He lost fifty-four valuable horses by burning.

The State Teachers' Association met at Dover, Thursday, President French in the chair. G. H. Jenness, Esq., of Rye, was chosen chairman of the committee on resolutions. A discussion on the management of schools was participated in by Mr. T. W. H. Hursey, Principal of the High School of Nashua, Dr. N. Barrows, of the Kimball Union Academy, E. B. Philbrick of Rye, Mr. Welch of Dover, and Hon. T. J. Smith of Dover. In the evening a lecture upon "Practical Education" was delivered by Prof. E. T. Quimby of Dartmouth College, followed by a discussion upon "Compulsory Education."

THAT LIVELY PAPER, the Chicago Evening Mail again makes its appearance on our table, though rather shorn in its proportions. It is better printed than ever before and promises speedy enlargement to its old size. It says 600 new buildings are going up on the "north side" and asks "how is that for two weeks?"

THE PRESIDENT will appoint Thursday, November 23, as a day of national thanksgiving.

—The Pueblo (Colorado) Chieftain gives a funny account of a Chicago newspaper man who stopped in the flourishing young city of Greeley, and, being athirst, tried in vain to get a square drink. "He went up one street and down another, he turned the corners of alleys, he sprung over ditches, he explored sheds and out-houses, but the fluid for which his soul yearned could nowhere be found." He went haphazard into one building which he thought might be "a saloon," and encountered a prayer meeting. In another hall he found a Farmer's Club. Finally, he received trustworthy information that "there was not a drop of liquor in the place." He left, and wrote to his journal that the town of Greeley was "without habitants, without resources and without commerce."

JOB AND CARD PRINTING.—We have made great additions to our jobbing facilities—a mammoth Hand Press (the largest in Portsmouth,) new Display Type, Borders of various styles, &c.—and are prepared to execute with neatness and dispatch, all orders for FULL SHEET POSTERS, DATE SLIPS, PAMPHLETS, SERMONS, ADDRESSES, AUCTION BILLS, CONSTITUTIONS, BY LAWS, PROGRAMMES, HANDBILLS, CIRCULARS, ORDERS DANCES, BLANKS, BILL HEADS, RECEIPTS, TICKETS, BUSINESS, MARRIAGE, ADDRESS AND VISITING CARDS, LABELS, TAGS, and in fact PRINTING OF ANY DESCRIPTION, at SATISFACTORY PRICES. Orders received by mail, express, or at the CHRONICLE OFFICE will be promptly filled.

—The Columbus (Ohio) State Journal says: "A deformed chicken of common breed, the deformity resulting from a broken back, was entered at the Muskingum County Fair as a Hungarian cock of the 'Siavi Magyar breed,' just imported, and the sapient judges, after gravely inspecting it, awarded it the first premium over one of the finest poultry shows ever seen in the county."

—"Woodhulling" is what they call it now when a wife cuts her husband for an affinity.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

THE DOMESTIC SEWING MACHINE.—Since the Domestic Sewing Machine was awarded the "First Premium" at the late State Fair at Dover, the rush for them has been even greater than ever; Mr. E. A. Joy, the fortunate Agent, whose rooms are adjoining our office, is unable to settlem up as fast as they are called for, notwithstanding he has lately employed an able assistant. Everybody who buys a "Domestic" seems happy. At the State Fair it was found to be the only Machine in the world having self adjusting tensions. It was in operation four days, using all kinds of thread on all sorts of goods, without any change of tensions. If you don't examine it before purchasing any other, you will wish you had.

IT IS SAID that if a puff of air were to be blown into a vein of an animal, death would instantaneously follow, because circulation would be stopped. The blood makes the entire circuit of the human body every seven minutes, and whenever this circulation is impeded or any of its channels are clogged by impurities which ought to be carried off, disease follows—fever or a disorder of liver or kidneys, or scrofula, or dyspepsia. To get at and remove the source of the difficulty use the old and infallible blood purifier, DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA VINEGAR BITTERS. o21 4w

THE AMERICAN HOUSE, Boston, quiet and retired, with its large, airy rooms, has no superior in New England, its location on the elegant new Hanover Street, making it the centre of business and places of amusement.

Have you a severe wrench or sprain? Have you rheumatism in any form? Have you stiff neck, or bunches caused by rheumatic pains? If so, "Johnson's Anodyne Liniment" is a specific remedy, and is also the best pain killer in the world.

We often see large stocks of cattle which do not seem to thrive, and come out "spring poor," all for want of something to start them in the right direction. One dollars' worth of Sheridan's Cavalry Condition Powders, given to such as stock occasionally during the winter, would be worth more than an extra half ton of hay.

THE EUROPEAN QUESTION.

What is the European question to us? Let the crowned heads fight it out while we supply their armies with provisions.

Sinking Fast.

Pale, miserable, discouraged, without relish for food, without energy enough for exertion, yet with no acute pain, or other special indication of disease, how often do we see feeble invalids fading as it were out of life, without any apparent cause. We say of them that they are "sinking fast," or "sinking gradually," as the case may be. But there is no good reason why they should sink at all. Persons in this dead-alive state simply want invigorating and vitalizing. Nature, in a state of torpor, demands help. Bring out the reserve of vitality in the system, brace the nerves, tone the stomach, break up the morbid trance of body and mind with a course of HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS. It can be done. It has been done in thousands of instances. The effect upon the enervated frame is electric. Never give up, however languid and broken down. Remember that for the exhausted, the debilitated, the desponding, this powerful vegetable restorative is a genuine elixir. It is not a mere stimulant that provokes a transient flash of vigor in the system, and then leaves it in a more depressed condition than before. It removes the causes of debility by altering the secretion, and regulating the action of the internal organs, as well as reenforcing them. It is a particularly valuable medicine at this season, because it is an antidote to the malaria which produces intermittent fever, bilious colic and other disorders of the bowels prevalent in the fall.

Lyceum Lecture.
Second Sight—Mrs. Jewell.

Rev. Carlos Martyn

Has accepted the pastorship of the North Parish for one year.

Mr. John A. Yeaton,

Formerly of the firm of Deering & Yeaton of this city, died on Thursday night of chronic bronchitis. Mr. Yeaton will be remembered by many old ship-builders among us as one of the most capable riggers who ever stood on a ship's deck. He was a member of DeWitt Clinton Commandery of Knights Templar of this city, and will be buried by the Masonic bodies on Sunday.

A Change.

We regret to learn that Mr. Edwin O. Cole, the gentlemanly operator at the office of the International Telegraph Co. in this city, has tendered his resignation, to take effect November 1st. The ill health of Mr. Cole compels him to this course, as it is the opinion of physicians whom he has consulted that he has a very short lease of life if he continues at the business of manipulating the telegraph keys. Mr. Cole leaves with the best wishes of hosts of friends that he may speedily regain his health and find lucrative employment. He is succeeded by Mr. Wm. B. Junkins, who has been temporarily employed at that office for a few weeks past.

More Aid For Chicago.

A meeting of all the Lodges and Encampments of Odd Fellows of this city, was held Thursday evening. The meeting was called to order by Mr. Edmund M. Brown. The following officers were elected:—Edmund M. Brown, President; Hiram B. Lord, Rec. Sec.; Jos. H. Gardiner, Cor. Sec. The chair stated the meeting was called for the purpose of affording relief to distressed Brothers and their families in Chicago. It was voted that Joseph H. Gardiner be a committee to visit Boston, and consult the committee who have just returned from Chicago, in regard to the wants of the Brothers in that city. The Order in this city have raised about $1000, and we understand that the citizens' committee will wait to hear from him, before disposing of their funds. Seven thousand members of the Order are in needy circumstances.

City Marshal Johnson Vindicated.

We were not surprised that Mayor Adams on resuming his office suspended the City Marshal, as there had been previously no feelings of friendship between them. We were surprised however that the Mayor should make charges which tended to injure the reputation of a city official, and were considerably mystified at the delay of the committee in investigating them. The Marshal quietly yielded to superior authority and finding that no progress had been made in the matter, finally demanded an investigation, which came off on Thursday afternoon. Both members of the committee, Aldermen Wendell and Fernald, were originally opposed to the appointment of Mr. Johnson, but did not hesitate to do justice to a faithful and efficient officer by reporting that after hearing "the statements of several persons they find them to be conflicting, and believe that his Honor the Mayor would not have made the order suspending Marshal Johnson had all the facts in the case been known to him. We therefore recommend that Marshal Johnson be reinstated, and that he draw pay from the day he was suspended." The Board of Aldermen immediately reinstated Mr. Johnson—and we are heartily glad of it. Some one, who probably wants to be City Marshal, has started the rumor that Mr. Johnson will resign. We hope such will not be the case.

City Council, Thursday, Oct. 26.

Messrs. Raudall & Caswell asked for renewal of lease of the Spring Market; referred to Committee on City lands and buildings.

The Committee on Streets, to whom was referred the petition of Joseph H. Thacher and others for a common sewer in Bridge Street reported that J. R. Holmes offered to construct a sewer from the Academy to connect with the Hanover Street sewer for $350, provided there was no ledge, and for $550, if there should be considerable ledge, and that about $100 can be raised from abuttors. Voted; that the Mayor be authorized to lay the sewer when the abuttors shall raise $100 towards its construction.

Leave was granted Jacob Haddock to encumber Islington Street and Frank Jones to encumber Warren Street for building purposes.

The Committee who conferred with the Officers of Kearsarge Mills, reported that it was not practicable to connect a water pipe for the use of the City with the water pipe leading from the Pond to the Mill. The Committee on the Fire Department reported recommending the passage of a resolution that a pipe, one foot in diameter, be laid from the corner of Bridge and Deer Streets to a point below low water in the North Mill Pond. The report was accepted and the resolution laid on the table. The same Committee reported that Marston's Pond, south of South Road, would furnish a sufficient supply of water for the Fire Department, and is sufficiently elevated to be brought by subterranean pipes to any part of the City.

Voted, that the occupants of the lot on Pleasant Street occupied by Samuel Adams be requested to remove the fence to the line of the highway as established by the selectmen in 1814. Further time was asked for by the committee and granted for considering the further widening of Pleasant Street.

From the Portsmouth Journal.

....Efforts to revive the Portsmouth Philarmonic Society are to made. A meeting of all past members is to be held next week.

....Mr. James N. Tarlton and sons formerly of this city have opened a large grocery establishment in Middleton, Conn.

....Mr. Henry T. Chickering well known in this city, and connected with the Concord Railroad for twenty-seven years, has resigned his charge of the Concord freight yard. He is succeeded by W. W. Cochrane, for sixteen years station agent at Bellows Falls, Vt.

....Through the efforts of Mr. G. H Jenness, of Rye, a Lyceum course has been inaugurated there, and on Monday eve. the season opened with a lecture by Rev. George W. Bicknoll of this city,—subject "Enthusiasm." The house was filled, the speaker and this subject meeting with a hearty reception.

....THE LYCEUM.—The course which opens here next week has every appearance of being the most successful which has been presented to our citizens in many years. Gen. Kilpatrick is announced to open the course on Thursday evening, with his new lecture on "The American Stump," and the tickets are fast being taken up in anticipation of the event. Gen. Kilpatrick has engagements for this lecture amounting to over eight thousand dollars in New England alone. It is said to be not political, but a history of the origin of the "Stump," the ridiculous and serious, the prominent characters who made it an American institution, with anecdotes of the orators of the past and present and amusing descriptions of mass meetings and political campaigns. A large house will no doubt greet the eloquent speaker at this his first appearance among us. Several applications have recently been made for engagements in the course, but the list, as published, is definitely decided upon, and our lecture goers are presented with attractions such as must fill the house.

From the Philadelphia Press,

GENERAL JUSTIN DIMICK, U. S. A.—One by one the few remaining veterans of the old army, the men who serve to link the present with the past, the army of to-day with that of which Brown, Macomb, Scott, Gaines, Taylor, and Wool were among the leading spirits, are passing away, and ere long there will scarcely be a representative left to remind us of those gallant soldiers. The death of General Dimick, U. S. A., which took place in this city, on Friday last, the 13th inst., forcibly impresses these thoughts upon us, for he was a conspicuous member of that patriot band.

Justin Dimick was born in Connecticut, August 5, 1800, entered the Military Academy at West Point as a cadet October 18, 1816, and graduating July 1, 1819, was commissioned second lieutenant of Light Artillery. In 1821 he was transferred to the 1st Artillery and successively promoted first lieutenant May 1, 1824, brevet captain May 1, 1834, and captain April 6, 1835.

In the Florida war he was actively engaged in the field, and in a skirmish, May 8, 1836, in a personal encounter, killed two Indians. For gallant and meritorious conduct in that war he was brevetted major.

In Mexico, with the army of General Taylor, he was in the battles of Palo Alto and Resaca de la Palma, May 8 and 9, 1846. Subsequently joining the column of General Scott, he was engaged in the skirmish at La Hoya, June 20, 1847. In the battle of Contreras, August 19 and 20, following, he acted a gallant and distinguished part. On this occasion he was temporarily selected to command the brigade of General P. F. Smith, who himself had charge of all the troops engaged. In the despatches detailing these operations frequent references are made to the admirable manner in which he did his duty. For instance, General Smith, in describing a successful flank attack made by him upon a large body of the enemy, speaks of it as having been "done in the finest style," and in his "putting to rout of a superior force, displaying the skill of the commander as well as the bravery of the soldier." In the battle of Cherubusco, also, on the 20th of August, he was hotly engaged, and held his position with conspicuous ability and courage against a greatly superior force posted in a strongly entrenched position. At the storming of Chapultepec, September 13, in which he was wounded, and in the assault upon the city, on the 13th and 14th, General Smith speaks of him as having "set the most noble example of coolness and courage." For gallant and meritorious conduct at Contreras and Cherubusco he received the brevet of lieutenant colonel, and for Chapultepec that of colonel. April 1, 1850, he was promoted major 1st Artillery; October 5, 1857, lieutenant colonel.

The opening of the rebellion found him in command of the Artillery School of Practice-Fortress Monroe, and at this post it was that he was permitted to render to his country the most signal service of a long career. The most important military post in the country, requiring in time of war a garrison numbering almost as many men as were included in the entire army, its commander had at his disposal but three companies. In a country swarming with rebels, and a Legislature bent upon having possession of these works, it required no ordinary degree of vigilance, firmness, courage, and tact, to prevent by a coup de main the accomplishment of so untoward a result. Justin Dimick, however, possessed all of the qualities and took all the precautions demanded by the situation, and when the Legislature of Virginia sent a deputation of its members to him to see what he had done, was doing, and intended to do, they found him ready, and in no doubt about his duty. Had it been otherwise, had Fortress Monroe fallen thus early into the possession of our enemies, who could have foretold the probable duration or result of the war.

Retained here until October 19, 1861, he was on the 26th of the same month made colonel of his regiment, and on the same day placed in command of Fort Warren. There he remained until January 1, 1864, when, through the instrumentality of President Lincoln he was made governor of the Soldiers' Home, near Washington, which position he continued to fill until April 1, 1868. March 13, 1865, he received the well-earned and fitting brevet of brigadier general in consideration of "long, gallant, and faithful services to his country."

A truly meritorious soldier, an ever-faithful public servant, a Christian gentleman, he passed the last hours of a well-spent life calmly awaiting the end, and in the full faith of a better, a happier, a more glorious one to come. May his country ever cherish the memory of the men who have served her as he did, for it is right and proper for her so to do. H. C. B.

The funeral of Gen. Dimick was attended on Sunday, the 15th Oct., from the church of the Holy Trinity Philadelphia, the Rev. Dr. Davies of St. Peters, officiating. The remains were temporarily interred in Woodlands.

NEW SUBSCRIBERS who now pay in advance for the DAILY CHRONICLE or N. H. GAZETTE for the year 1872, will receive either paper gratis until January. We will furnish the GAZETTE and the Concord Independent Statesman from this date to July 1, 1872, for $2 in advance to new subscribers.

☞ THE NEW HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE for this week, is now ready for delivery, at the Chronicle Office. Each number contains all the reading matter of the Daily issues. Price $2 a year; single copies 5 cents,—in wrappers for mailing, if desired. Six copies for $10 per year, to Clubs—per mail or city carrier.

A PLACE FOR THE LEAN!
Say, old boy, where shall we meet?
Why, at Garrety's, on Daniel Street,
He's such a jolly fellow;
His LAGER is always fresh and prime,
It never wants a "head" and is
refreshing, cool and mellow!
You require, my boy, some filling out,
You're thin, and meagre-looking;
Lager would give you the proper size.
Look at the host, he once was scant,
His BEER has made of flesh no want,
Go thou and drink likewise.

GRAPES AND "WINE GROWING."—The editor of the Santa Clara Valley (California) Agriculturist, a monthly paper, commenced last May, says.—

We were once inclined to favor the wine interests of this State, as tending to decrease the use of ardent spirits. But fifteen years of close study and observation have thoroughly convinced us that wine is an insidious enemy. Its victims are too often the thoughtless youth of both sexes, and it starts on the road to ruin many with a fair prospect, who might, but for its blight of moral obligations, become useful and happy men and women. It is the first round, not in the ladder to fame, but to the lower defile of degradation and disgrace. Regarding it thus, how can we but renounce it?

The term wine growing, has become so common that one can seldom take up an agricultural paper without seeing it; as though wine making was a legitimate agricultural avocation! Should the farmer who raises barley be called a lager beer grower, or the one who sows rye a whiskey grower, there might be some consistency in this use of the term "wine growing." But wine is not an agricultural production. It does not exist in nature. It may be made from grapes and some other sorts of useful fruits; so may many other extracts and poisons.

The wine business may be as "profitable' as the beer or whiskey business, but we have statistics showing that here, as well as elsewhere, "wine is a mocker"; that for every ten that flourish in the business of wine making, five hundred are out of pocket, and at least fifty are forever ruined.

ROOTS IN THE HOUSE CELLAR.—Persons exposed to atmosphere tainted by decaying vegetables are generally supposed to be in more danger than if exposed to the odors of decaying animal matter.

A large collection of weeds, pulled from the fields and exposed during a damp and hot season, give off a sickening odor that is intolerable.

Sink-spouts that empty themselves into a rank growth of weeds at the back door, where some portion of the weeds are constantly decaying, are supposed to give rise to some of the most virulent forms of fever. In some cases nearly every member of a family has been prostrated with typhus fever in its worst form, where the cause has been supposed to arise from such pollution about the house.

So, decaying vegetables in the cellar, —turnips, cabbages, &c., may prove like "death in the pot." Their odor sometimes pervades the whole house, and is as disagreeable as it is pervading.

Our caution to all is, if vegetables must be in the cellar, to keep them in as low a temperature as possible and without freezing. Then give the cellar all the ventilation that can be had, and as frequently as the air can be safely admitted. At the earliest moment in the spring remove all vegetable matter, and cleanse the cellar as scrupulously as the good wife does her pantry.

Wherever there is a barn cellar, the cost would not be large to prepare room in one corner of it purposely for roots. This would probably be the cheapest course in the end.—N. E. Farmer.

BLOB.—Mr Blob edits a temperance paper somewhere in California, and he gushes as only orthodox temperance people can. "Oh, my friend," says Blob, and the more you read him the sadder you are and the more you think that life is a failure, unless one proposes to be an infernal fool. "Oh, brother," ejaculates Blob, in a recent gush, "why will ye, and why will ye not? Lo! the crystalline liquid drippeth from the rock, and wasteth upon the plain—and ye will not. The fiery poison moveth itself in the glass—and ye will. O, miserable and blind; there is no safety for thee but in our band of teetotlers! Come up and tee totle! Come and join thy thirsty spirit unto ours, even as a drop is joined unto its ocean!" This is attended to be after Gough, and it certainly is where it does not Gough the handle, to use a common expression; but the San Francisco News-Letter notices it thus irreverently:

Mr. Blob, as a philologer you are without a parallel; the verb "to teetotle" is the grandest conception of the age. Hereafter it shall be the dearest pleasure of our existence to visit the public schools and hear that delicious part of speech conjugated. Fancy the rapture of hearing from the rosy lips of some young thing such verbs! music as this; "I teetotle, you teetotle, he teetotles," etc., through all the moods and tenses! We have never teetotled any, but your touching picture of the water going to waste on that unappreciative prairie affects us to tears. We know at last why the ocean is called a "waste of water;" it was christened by a teetotler, who grieved because he could not drink it all.

Yes, the News-Letter, which is edited doubtless by a confirmed drunkard, goes further. "John Blob," it says, "if we had your mouth drawn over a pump spout and soldered water-tight about the edges, we should exalt and depress the handle of that useful machine with unwavering constancy until your skin should be equal in tension to the head of a drum. Then we should beat upon the same an exceedingly lively air."—Rochester Democrat and Chronicle.

—One of "our young girls," at an examination in grammar, recently, when asked why the noun "bachelor" was singular, blushingly answered;—"Because it is so very singular they don't get married." She went to the head.

A GREAT MEDICAL DISCOVERY!

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA

VINEGAR BITTERS.

Hundreds of Thousands Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.

WHAT ARE THEY!

THEY ARE NOT A VILE FANCY DRINK,

Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Root and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and a LIFE-GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to direction and remain long unwell, provided the bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the stomach and stimulate the torpid liver and bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effect.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

PIN, TAPE and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. For full directions, read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French and Spanish.

FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal. ☞ Send for a circular.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs. 1yrdawfeb16

The Cause and Cure of Consumption.

The primary cause of Consumption is derangement of the digestive organs. The derangement produces deficient nutrition and assimilation. By assimilation I mean that process by which the nutriment of the food is converted into blood, and thence into the solids of the body. Persons with digestion thus impaired, having the slightest predisposition to pulmonary disease, or if they take cold, will be very liable to have Consumption of the Lungs in some of its forms; and I think it will be impossible to cure any case of Consumption without first restoring a good digestion and healthy assimilation. The very first thing to be done is to cleanse the stomach and bowels from all diseased mucous and slime which is clogging these organs so that they cannot perform their functions, and then rouse up and restore the liver to a healthy action. For this purpose, the surest and best remedy is SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS. These Pills cleanse the stomach and bowels of all the foul and acrid slime that is causing disease and decay in the whole system. They will clear out the liver of all diseased bile that has accumulated there, and arouse it up to a new and healthy action, by which natural and healthy bile is secreted.

The stomach, bowels and liver are thus cleansed by the use of Schenck's Mandrake Pills; but there remains in the stomach an excess of acid, the organ is torpid, and the appetite is poor. In the bowels, the intestals are weak, and requiring strength and support. It is in a condition like this that Schenck's Seaweed Tonic proves to be the most valuable remedy ever discovered. It strengthens the stomach and bowels, rouses all excess of acid, making the stomach sweet and fresh; it will give permanent tone to this important organ, causes a good, hearty appetite, and prepares the system for the first process of a good digestion, and ultimately make good, healthy, living blood. After this preparatory treatment, which remains to one's most cases of consumption is the free and persevering use of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup. The Pulmonic Syrup is unlike the balsams, it scribes the blood, purifies it, is readily absorbed into the circulation, and thence distributed to the diseased lungs. There it ripens all morbid matter, dries up the cells of abscesses or tubercles, and then assists Nature to expel all the diseased matter in the form of free expectoration, when once it ripens. It is then, by the great healing and purifying properties of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, that all ulcers and cavities are healed up sound, and my patient is cured.

The essential thing to be done in curing Consumption is to get up a good appetite and a good digestion, so that the body will grow in flesh and get strong. If a person has diseased lungs, cavity or abscess there, the cavity cannot heal, the matter cannot ripen, so long as the system is behind, or behind, the cavities will heal, the matter will ripen and be thrown off in large quantities, and the person regains health and strength. This is the true and only plan to cure Consumption, that of a person who is very bad, if the lungs are not entirely destroyed, or even if one lung is entirely gone, if there is enough vitality left in the other to heal up and cicatrize.

I have seen many persons cured with only one sound lung, live and enjoy life to a good old age. This is what Schenck's medicines will do to cure Consumption. They will clean out the stomach, sweeten and strengthen it, get up a good digestion, and give Nature the assistance she needs to cure the system of all the disease that is in the lungs, whatever the form may be.

It is important that, while using Schenck's medicines, care should be exercised not to take cold; keep in-doors in cold and damp weather; avoid night air, and take out-door exercise only in a genial and warm sunshine.

I wish it distinctly understood that when I recommend a patient to be careful in regard to taking cold while using my medicines, I do so for a special reason. I do so because I have partially recovered from the effects of a bad cold is far more liable to a relapse than one who has been entirely cured, and it is precisely the same in regard to consumption. So long as the lungs are not perfectly healed, just so long is there imminent danger of a full return of the disease. Hence it is that I so strenuously caution my pulmonary patients against exposing themselves to an atmosphere that is not genial and pleasant. Suppose a person should have a mass of raw sores, which the least change of atmosphere will inflame. The grand secret of my success with my medicines consists in my ability to subdue inflammation instead of provoking it, as many of the faculty do. An inflamed lung cannot with safety to the patient be exposed to the biting blasts of winter or the changeable weather of autumn. It should be carefully shielded from all irritating influence. The utmost caution should be observed in this direction, as without it a cure under almost any circumstances is an impossibility.

The person should be kept on a wholesome and nutritious diet, and all the medicines taken until the body has restored to it the natural quantity of flesh and strength.

I was myself cured by this treatment of the worst kind of Consumption, and have lived to get fat and hearty these many years, with one lung mostly gone. I have cured thousands since, and very many have been cured by this treatment whom I have never seen.

About the first question I expect to take possession of my new building at the northeast corner of Sixth and Arch Streets, where I shall be pleased to give advice to all who may require it.

Full directions accompany all my medicines, so that a person in any part of the world can be readily cured by a strict observance of the same.

CHESAPEAKE & OHIOS — FIVE TWENTIES—CENTRAL PACIFICS.

BANKING OFFICE OF

FISK & HATCH,

No. 5 Nassau Street, New York.

September 25th, 1871.

Of the FIFTEEN MILLION CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO SIX PER CENT. LOAN, but about $4,500,000 remain unsold, and this remainder will be taken up rapidly.

The five years' option having expired on all series of FIVE-TWENTY BONDS, except 1867s and 1868s, they are liable to be called in for payment. The redemption of 100 millions FIVE-TWENTIES in coin, and the purchases by the Government during the ensuing four months, with the premium thereon, will release about 100 millions of invested capital, independently of dividend and interest payments, the greater part of which must seek reinvestment.

The Chesapeake and Ohio Sizes

have absolutely 30 years to run; are especially desirable for steady investments, and can now be bought

17 per cent. less than Ten-forties,
40 per cent. less than Five-twenties,
25 per cent. less than Sixes of 1881,

and are equally sure to be paid principal and interest in gold coin. Their amount is limited by the Trust Deed to $15,000,000. Price (at present) 90 and accrued interest; that is, with coupon attached, payable Nov. 1.

$1000 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $934.08.

$500 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $477.08.

$1,000 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $935.42.

Only a small amount of the latter denominations remains, and no more can be made. Bonds with coupon or register form, same as Five-twenties.

This debt is created by the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad Company to enable it more speedily and effectually to extend and complete the main line of their Road to the Ohio River. This work is the most important and valuable improvement now progressing in the country. It is rapidly approaching completion. It will establish another and superior line of communication from the Atlantic to the Mississippi valleys and the eastern cities; bringing ten millions of people, mainly producers, nearer to the centres of consumption in the Eastern States, and nearer to the political and commercial capitals of their country. Such is the commanding importance of this Trunk Line that the larger cities of the West are projecting feeders to connect with it, so as to avail themselves of its unequalled facilities as soon as it is completed. Large tracts of valuable coal and iron lands along its route are rapidly being brought into the hands of practical miners and iron manufacturers; a large city is springing up at the western terminus, the head of reliable navigation on the Ohio, where it intersects 12,000 miles of river transit, and will soon be in connection with 30,000 miles of railroad carriage.

The CENTRAL PACIFIC SIX PER CENT. BONDS are as safe for investment as Government Bonds Their amount fixed by act of Congress at $25,000,000, to be secured by property worth four times their value; they can only be bought in Company market, and are becoming scarcer in consequence of their gradual absorption by investors here and in Europe; they are the most ready means in all the principal money-centres, and have twenty-four years to run; the earnings of the road are steadily increasing, and net to Mar. bly reach $10,000,000 for the current year, affording a handsome surplus after payment of expenses and interest. Present price, 90 and int.

When the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad is completed, in 1872, and the Bonds are dealt in at the Stock Exchanges of the world, we have no doubt they will be equally popular in the Commercial Pacific. Both principal and interest of the CENTRAL PACIFIC 10 and CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO BONDS are specifically payable in gold in New York; the interest on the former being paid January and July, and of the latter, May and November, at the corresponding with the two classes of Five-twenties.

We buy and sell FIVE-TWENTIES, TEN-FORTIES, EXPORT BONDS, and CENTRAL and PACIFIC CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO BONDS at their current market price.

Orders for Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds, accompanied with Drafts or Checks, may be forwarded to us by mail. Bonds or money may be forwarded by any responsible Express Company at our expense, and the Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds, in exchange, will be sent by return Express, charges paid. FISK & HATCH.

☞ Accounts of Banks, Bankers and others received, on which we allow Four Per Cent. Interest.

Certificates of deposit issued and collections made in all parts of the Union.

ARE YOU GOING TO PAINT?

—IF SO, USE THE—

AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINT.

It is Cheaper, Handsomer and more durable than the best of other Paints. One Thousand Gallons of it were sold in this City, in the year 1870, and not one complaint has come from those who have used it; but all speak in its favor; it is mixed ready for application, and is much easier put on than any other Paint, making a smooth, glossy surface for years, that can be cleaned with hot soda without injuring it. It is excellent for walls inside, in the place of paper.

I shall keep this season a large stock of Chemical Paints of all shades on hand, to accommodate customers with any amount, without delay in order to paint. Those who want to use the Chemical Paints and have had them misrepresented by those who deal in Lead and Oil, are invited to call and examine my Paints that have been on Buildings two years, and you will find them as fresh as if laid but onemonth.

I am prepared to do Painting by Contract, or by the day, using the Chemical Paint, or furnishing good experienced workmen by the day at very low wages. B. NORTON, only Agent for selling the SLAUGHTERING HOGS.—An experiment in killing a ferocious hog some years ago, led us to consider the modes adopted for taking the life of the poor beasts in preparation for dressing them. The animal was purchased from a drove, was one of the long-legged and long-snouted kind, probably born in the woods, and as long as kept in the drove, was, in some degree, manageable; but when seperated, about as ferocious as a tiger.

No amount of good food feeding and coaxing seemied to mollify his wild nature, for he was always ready to dash at any person who was indiscreet enough enter his domain.

By dint of corn meal, boiled sweet apples, and sundry gatherings from the kitchen, the beast grew up so as to weigh about 300 pounds. Owing him a spite for his bad behavior, and believing "discretion a better part than valor," we concluded not to enter his domicile, knife in hand, but to allure him by some dainty morsels up to his trough and then plant a pistol ball between his ears and see what the effect would be. It was excellent. All his former rashness in a moment was gone. He lay before us instantly as "dead as a mallet." There was no racing and frightening, no squealing, nor deadly thrust of the knife into the poor beast's throat. There was evidently no pain felt, as no limb moved or muscle quivered.

Now has come the hog-butchering season, and the country round will resound with the screams of dying hogs, making the women faint, and the children in the family, with their fingers in their ears, run into the cellar, or into the depths of some closet, to get away from sounds which they will never forget though they may live to be old people.

It is an age of liberality; let it, also, be an age of humanity. If it be a crime, punishable by law, to starve or overwork a poor horse, let it also be a crime to put a creature to needless pain, which we have sheltered and fed and constantly cared for during a twelve-month.

We have given several old horses their quietus with a gun, and so sudden and completely were all the powers paralyzed, that there was not the slightest evidence that any pain was experienced. They fell slowly forward, without noise or struggle. So it was with the hog.

Will not the reader, then, see to it that no animal of his shall be hunted down, caught and bound, and then die under the torture of the knife, this year.

A pistol will be found most convenient, but if a gun is used it should be with a small charge of powder, and a plug of hard wood three-fourths of an inch long and half as thick through will answer as well as a ball. In taking this course the head is not disfigured so as to be noticeable, and in every respect it is preferably to the old inhuman mode of killing a hog.

Will the "Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals," notice this and "govern themselves accordingly?"

"FRANK" TOOK THE RIGHT TRAIN.—A Marshfield (Mo.) dog had been decoyed to and chained at Springfield (Mo.) by some teamsters.

Mr. Abbott, the owner, hearing of the whereabouts of his missing dog, sent word immediately to Springfield to release him, which was accordingly done. "Frank" at once made straight for the depot, and patiently remained there until train time. This fact was particularly noticed by the railroad employees of that place.

After waiting there for several hours, two trains came thundering along, one bound east, and the other west. Frank's tail now gave evidence of unbounded joy, and without going through with the usual ceremony at the ticket office jumped aboard of the eastern-bound train, determined to "deadhead" it if possible. Upon arrival at Marshfield, without making any inquiries as to what place it was, he bounded off the train, and made his way home, seemingly "the happiest dog alive." Whatmakes it remarkable is the fact that he came alone, and was the only passenger that got off the train at that point, and that he should get on the right train at Springfield, even when the western-bound train started a few minutes before the eastern. We hear his master intends to appoint him as travelling agent. He is now being trained for that purpose.—Marshfield Citizen.

—Nobody can say now that the Chicago Journal is not enterprising. Some charitable firm in Ohio having sent Mayor Mason a ten horse-power engine to be used for the benefit of the Chicago press, the Journal man heard of it, rushed to the depot, seized the engine and set it up in his own press room, and is thereforeable to continue publication. As the Journal has not had the grace to say "thank you," in behalf of the fraternity we hereby do so for it. Now hasn't somebody a press to give away?—Chicago Mail.

BUCHU

[From Dispensatory of the United States.]

DIOSMA CRENATA — BUCHU LEAVES.

PROPERTIES.—Their odor is strong, diffusive and somewhat aromatic; their taste bitterish and analogous to mint.

MEDICAL PROPERTIES AND USES.—Buchu leaves are gently stimulant, with a peculiar tendency to the Urinary Organs.

They are given in complaints of the Urinary Organs, such as Gravel, Chronic Catarrh of the Bladder, Morbid Irritation of the Bladder and Urethra, Disease of the Prostrate Gland, and Retention or Incontinence of Urine, from a loss of tone in the parts concerned in its evacuation. The remedy has also been recommended in Dyspepsia, Chronic Rheumatism, Cutaneous Affections and Dropsy.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is used by persons from the ages of 18 to 25, and from 35 to 55, or in the decline or change of life; after Confinement or Labor Pains; Bed-Wetting in children.

In affections peculiar to Females, the Extract Buchu is unequalled by any other remedy, as in Chlorosis or Retention, Irregularity, Painfulness or Suppression of Customary Evacuations, Ulcerated or Schirrous State of the Uterus.

DISEASES OF THE BLADDER, KIDNEYS, GRAVEL AND DROPSICAL SWELLINGS.—This medicine increases the power of Digestion, and excites the Absorbents into healthy action, by which the Watery or Calcareous depositions and all Unnatural Enlargements are reduced, as well as Pains and Inflammation.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU has cured every case of Diabetes in which it has been given. Irritation of the Neck of the Bladder and Inflammation of the Kidneys, Ulceration of the Kidneys and Bladder, Retention of Urine, Diseases of the Prostrate Gland, Stone in the Bladder, Calculus, Gravel, Brick-Dust Deposit and Mucous or Milky Discharges, and for enfeebled and delicate constitutions of both sexes, attended with the following symptoms: Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Horror of Diseases, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Pain in the Back, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Eruption on the Face, Pallid Countenance, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, etc.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is Diuretic and Blood-Purifying, and cures all diseases arising from habits of dissipation, excesses and imprudences in life, Impurities of the Blood, etc., superceding Copaiba and other Nauseous Compounds.

Beware of counterfeits. Ask for Helmbold's. Take no other.

Price $1.25 per Bottle, or 6 Bottles for $6.50.

MANHOOD

IN THE

Young and Rising Generation.

The vegetable powers of life are strong, but in a few years how often the pallid hue, the lack-lustre eye and emaciated form, and the impossibility of application to mental effort, show their baneful influence. It soon becomes evident to the observer that some depressing influence is checking the development of the body. Consumption is talked of, and perhaps the youth is removed from school and sent into the country. This is one of the worst movements. Removed from ordinary diversions of the ever-changing scene of the city, the powers of the body, too much enfeebled to give zest to healthful and rural exercise, thoughts are turned inwardly upon themselves.

If the patient be a female the approach of the menses is looked for with anxiety as the first symptom in which nature is to show her saving power in diffusing the circulation and visiting the cheek with the bloom of health. Alas! increase of appetite has grown by what it is fed on. The energies of the system are prostrated, and the whole economy is deranged. The beautiful and wonderful period in which body and mind undergo so fascinating a change from child to woman, is looked for in vain. The parent's heart bleeds in anxiety, and fancies the grave but waiting for its victim.

TRY HELMBOLD'S

EXTRACT BUCHU

For Weakness Arising from Excesses or Early Indiscretion,

attended with the following symptoms: Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, General Weakness, Horror of Disease, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Dreadful Horror of Death, Night Sweats, Cold Feet, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Languor, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, Often Enormous Appetite with Dyspeptic Symptoms, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Pallid Countenance and Eruptions on the Face, Pain in the Back, Heaviness of the Eyelids, Frequently Black Spots Flying before the Eyes, with Temporary Suffusion and Loss of Sight, Want of Attention, Great Mobility, Restlessness, with Horror of Society. Nothing is more desirable to such persons than Society, and anything they more dread, for fear of themselves; no repose of matter, no earnestness, no speculation, but a hurried transition from one question to another.

THESE SYMPTOMS, IF ALLOWED TO GO ON—WHICH THIS MEDICINE INVARIABLY REMOVES — SOON FOLLOW LOSS OF POWER, FATUITY AND EPILEPTIC FITS, IN ONE OF WHICH THE PATIENT MAY EXPIRE.

During the Superintendence of Dr. Wilson at the Bloomingdale Asylum, this sad result occurred to two patients. Reason has for a time left them, and both died of epilepsy. They were of both sexes, and about twenty years of age.

Who can say that these excesses are not frequently followed by those direful diseases, Insanity and Consumption? The records of the Insane Asylums, and the melancholy deaths of Consumption, bear ample witness to the truth of these assertions. In Lunatic Asylums the most melancholy exhibitions appears. The countenance is actually sodden and quite destitute; neither mirth nor grief ever visits it. Should a spur of the voice occur it is rarely articulate.

"With woful measures wan despair
Low sullen sounds their grief beguile."

While we regret the existence of the above diseases and symptoms, we are prepared to offer an invaluable gift of chemistry for the removal of the consequences.

HELMBOLD'S

Fluid Extract of Buchu.

There is no tonic like it. It is an anchor of hope to the physician and patient. This is the testimony of all who have used or prescribed it.

Beware of counterfeits and those cheap decoctions called Buchu, most of which are prepared by self-styled doctors, from deleterious ingredients, and offered for sale at "less price" and "larger bottles," etc. They are unreliable and frequently injurious. Ask for Helmbold's. Take no other.

MONDAY, OCTOBER 30, 1871.

THE WAR against Tammany progresses. On Friday, Tweed was arrested on a charge of defrauding the city government, and admitted to bail in the sum of $2,000,000. The result of the investigations of the citizens' committee was made known Friday, and [illegible] to the enormous amount of nearly $[illegible],000,000 are shown.

GENERAL ROBERT ANDERSON, the hero of Fort Sumter died at Nice, France, Oct. 26th. He was born in Kentucky in 1806, graduated at West Point in 1825, and soon after joined the artillery. He was inspector of the Illinois volunteers during the Black Hawk war, and in 1835 went back to West Point as assistant instructor and inspector of the academy, remaining in that position two years. During the Indian war in Florida he was aide-de-camp to General Scott. In the Mexican war he particularly distinguished himself at the battle of El Molino del Rey, and was rewarded by promotion to the rank of Major. When Fort Sumpter was built Major Anderson was given its command and of all the works around Charleston, S. C. Anticipating hostilities on the spread of the secession movement, he concentrated his forces within Fort Sumter. On April 12, 1861, the war of the rebellion was begun by a bombardment upon his stronghold, which was continued for two days, after which he capitulated. He was made a brigadier-general on the 15th of the following month. Subsequently he was in command of the department of Kentucky and of the department of the Cumberland, and on the 27th of October, 1853, retired from active service from disability resulting from long and faithful service and wounds and disease contracted in the line of duty. Not long after he went to France for his health, and has since resided there with his family. His remains will be brought home by a United States vessel.

RECOGNIZED.—It is said that the clothing of the lady killed at the Revere Railroad accident, whose identity was for a long time unknown, has been recognized by a Mrs. Washburn of Lowell as that of a woman named [illegible] Locke, who for three years past had resided in Lowell. She left the residence of Mrs. Washburn about five o'clock on the evening of the disaster to visit an aunt in Lynn, and has not since been heard from.

Political.

In Texas, Clarke, republican, received the certificate of election to Congress from the third district, the vote of Limestone and Freestone counties having been thrown out by the court at Austin. Connor is said to be the only democrat who will receive a certificate of election. Degener, republican, refuses to accept a certificate in the fourth district on the ground that Hancock, democrat, received a majority of the votes.

Official returns from Ohio show Noyes's majority for governor to be 20,186. The total vote of the State was 450,462.

New Hampshire Items.

Frederic C. Low, late postmaster at Randolph, charged with robbing the mail, not appearing at Court in Exeter on Thursday, goes at large under $3000 bail.

WHY DID CHICAGO BURN SO RAPIDLY?—The extraordinary rapidity with which fire flew from house to house and from block to block, during the terrible conflagration in Chicago, has evoked many theories—some of them very absurd—but that inferable from an article which appeared in Chambers' Edinburgh Journal, published on September 30, several days before the fire, has some degree of plausibility. This article says that in the Joliet stone, with which Chicago is largely built, there is a large proportion of petroleum oil. Buildings constructed of this oliferous lime-stone "after a while present a smeary appearance from the exudation of the oil. The least thickness of the mass (at Joliet) is thirty-five feet, and it has been estimated from experiment that each square mile of it contains seven and three-quarters million barrels, each of forty gallons, of petroleum. As a means of comparison, we mention that the total produce of the great Pennsylvania oil region from 1860 to 1870 was twenty-eight million gallons. Four square miles of the Chicago lime-stone contain a larger quantity." The author of this statement is Dr. Sterry Hunt of Montreal, and its importance is very great at this time, as it is probable that the same material may be intended for use in reconstructing the burned city, and proof of the incendiary quality of the stone should be made by such tests as will either recommend or condemn it. If it is as above stated, it is quite a wonder that Chicago did not go up in a flash long ago.—Boston Times.

OLD TIME CHRONICLES, No. 39.

BY UNCLE JOSEPH.

Reminiscences of the Baptist Church in Brentwood.—Brentwood was formerly a part of Exeter and was incorporated in 1742. Benning Wentworth was the Provincial Governor. In 1767 the census was taken by the Selectmen and the population was 1064. Eight years later it was taken again and it was 1100. It has never been so great since. Last year it was 105 less than in 1775. A Congregational church was formed in 1652 and Rev. Nathaniel Trask ordained. He was pastor to his death, 37 years.

The Baptist church was organized in 1771 and having completed a century, its centennial was celebrated Oct. 19. From the Historical Address and other sources a few chronicles of old affairs are given. About the year 1763 a meeting house was erected toward the northwest part of the town. It is presumed those of Baptist sentiments were especially interested in this. In the year named, an article was inserted in the Town Meeting Warrant to see if 25 persons, whose names were given, should be excused from paying a ministerial tax. It was negatived. The year after the church was constituted, it was acted upon again. It was declared by the Moderator not a vote. A poll was demanded, and it was ordered that those for it stand on the side where the seats for old men were; those against it where the seats for aged women were. It was decided in the affirmative.

In the early history of the church great importance was attached to the members attending the stated meetings, especially on the Sabbath. It was regarded as a matter of censure if any staid away, who could attend. And at a business meeting some came late and were admonished in almost sharp terms for tardiness. Some, who perhaps thought they might sometime be in the same fault, were dissatisfied and censured those who had thus admonished those who came late. But on the whole the effect was good as there was great promptness for a time.

The first pastor was Dr. Samuel Shepard, a native of Salisbury, Mass. Before he began to preach he was a physician in Stratham. For 12 years he was a member of the Congregational church but was led to change his sentiments and become a Baptist. He was pastor in Brentwood 44 years, and died in 1815.

Within 40 years the claims of Education, Temperance, Sabbath Schools and Anti-Slavery have been presented to most churches. Some few in Brentwood hesitated. Some thought the usages in Dr. Shepard's time were the best of any. And less than 30 years ago one withdrew from the Baptist meeting because a Sabbath School was established. But the heavens did not fall and the sun continued to rise and set.

Dr. Shepard's pastorate was 44 years, for 12 years there were supplies. In the 44 years since there have been 15 pastors. Two were in charge 8 years each, but several but two or three years.

—A justice of the peace, down in Kentucky, sentenced a reporter who had severely criticized his decisions to be flogged and imprisoned one week on bread and water.

—In Savannah, the other day, a rooster enjoyed a ride through the streets on the back of a runaway horse which had been frightened by the perching of the fowl upon him.

—The Mississippi River has never been so low as it is now within the memory of living men. Herds of cattle bask in the sunshine on the dry bed of the great river, ten or fifteen feet below the level where the waters, a few months ago, bore great fleets of steamboats.

CANADA THISTLES.—Thistles here do not go deeply into the sub-soil; it is level, rather wet land, and the sub-soil does not seem invitihg to them,. Often in ploughing I have chanced to run the plough just over or under a long line of thistle roots, somtimes exceeding ten feet in length. On careful examination I found the roots to strike upward or sideways, never downwards, or rarely so. I also found by transplanting some of these roots, and entirely removing them from their original bed, that numbers died and became rotten, especially when severed from the parent stem; whereas if allowed to be simply turned over by the plough, and not removed, but severed from the parent stem, they alway throve splendidly and increased wonderfully. especially after fall ploughing, I therefore abandoned ploughing in the fall altogether, as being worse than useless where thistles existed and summer fallow was intended the following spring; and by leaving the ploughing until about the fore part of June, or even later, the thistles had obtained complete mastery and a most rank growth, many of them showing for flower, and all several feet high. I now went at them with vengence, my strength increasing as their power of resistance increased. They had fulfilled their mission, or nearly so, and were in flower and bearing seed, and so far were decreasing in vitality or power of recuperation. The land was rather hard and turned up rough, and one day's ploughidg in hot dry weather in June destroyed millions. Some however, lived on, but the ploughing (without harrowing) totally cleared a field of twenty seven acres. I was then quite satisfield that to destroy Canada thistles you must not plough in the fall or early spring, but wait until the thistles were in bloom, and the ploughing as roughly as possible, and never harrowing until after the second ploughing, thus keeping the land as rough as possible, to admit of the greatest quanity of surface exposure to the sun and dry wind. This course completely eradicated the thistles in that field. Afterwards I grew barley, the year following sowed wheat after the fallow in which I killed the thistles, and to this day that field is clear of these pests.—Canada Farmer.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

THE DOMESTIC SEWING MACHINE.—Since the Domestic Sewing Machine was awarded the "First Premium" at the late State Fair at Dover, the rush for them has been even greater than ever; Mr. E. A. Joy, the fortunate Agent, whose rooms are adjoining our office, is unable to set them up as fast as they are called for, notwithstanding he has lately employed an able assistant. Everybody who buys a "Domestic" seems happy. At the State Fair it was found to be the only Machine in the world having self adjusting tensions. It was in operation four days, using all kinds of thread on all sorts of goods, without any change of tensions. If you don't examine it before purchasing any other, you will wish you had.

IT IS SAID that if a puff of air were to be blown into a vein of an animal, death would instantaneously follow, because circulation would be stopped. The blood makes the entire circuit of the human body every seven minutes, and whenever this circulation is impeded or any of its channels are clogged by impurities which ought to be carried off, disease follows—fever or a disorder of liver or kidneys, or scrofula, or dyspepsia. To get at and remove the source of the difficulty use the old and infallible blood purifier, DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA VINEGAR BITTERS. o21 4w

Have you a severe wrench or sprain? Have you rheumatism in any form? Have you stiff neck, or bunches caused by rheumatic pains? If so "Johnson's Anodyne Liniment" is a specific remedy, and is also the best pain killer in the world.

We often see large stocks of cattle which do not seem to thrive, and come out "spring poor," all for want of something to start them in the right direction. One dollars' worth of Sheridan's Cavalry Condition Powders, given to such as stock occasionally during the winter, would be worth more than an extra half ton of hay.

Sinking Fast.

Pale, miserable, discouraged, without relish for food, without energy enough for exertion, yet with no acute pain, or other special indication of disease, how often do we see feeble invalids fading as it were out of life, without any apparent cause. We say of them that they are "sinking fast," or "sinking gradually," as the case may be. But there is no good reason why they should sink at all. Persons in this dead-alive state simply want invigorating and vitalizing. Nature, in a state of torpor, demands help. Bring out the reserve of vitality in the system, brace the nerves, tone the stomach, break up the morbid trance of body and mind with a course of HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS. It can be done. It has been done in thousand of instances. The effect upon the enervated frame is electric. Never give up, however languid and broken down. Remember that for the exhausted, the debilitated, the desponding, this powerful vegetable restorative is a genuine elixir. It is not a mere stimulant that provokes a transient flash of vigor in the system, and then leaves it in a more depressed condition than before. It removes the causes of debility by altering the secretion, and regulating the action of the internal organs, as well as reenforcing them. It is a particularly valuable medicine at this season, because it is an antidote to the malaria which produces intermittent fever, bilious colic and other disorders of the bowels prevalent in the fall.

—Weston made one of the most brilliant of his highly successful series of failures, in Cincinnati. Then he burst into tears and explained to the people how if he had trained a little closer and had saved his strength on the first mile or two, and hadn't got sleepy, and hadn't sprained his ankle, and had run like a scared mule on the last half, and hadn't dislocated his hip, he would have probably succeeded.

—A young Californian, hearing of the marriage of his lady-love to somebody else, resorted to unlimited gin-sling. Failing to deaden his sorrow by this, he took a header into a thirty-foot shaft, but came up with only a few scratches, and yet pineth.

—The driver of the hearse heard Mr. James Hickey of Birmingham, Pennsylvania, kick his coffin lid just as his funeral procession entered the cemetery, and in accordance with his wishes the last sad rite was changed to a right-about.

Extending.

The Dover Gazette has a rumor that Hon. Frank Jones of this city has purchased the Meserve pasture at Dunn's Bridge, Dover, for the purpose of erecting an extensive brewery.

THE EASTERN RAILROAD DOUBLE TRACK.—Gangs of workmen are rapidly completing the double lines of rail from Boston to Newburyport. The old "Rust" estate at the Wenham station, so long encroaching on the track with its buildings, has at length been moved away, and about half the line of the second track to Ipswich has been graded and tied, and the rails laid; and as soon as the first bridge beyond Wenham can be prepared, the line will be pushed forward rapidly towards the Merrimac. The new branch road to Essex, which leaves the main line at Wenham, is also going forward vigorously—about one mile of rails being already put down and fastened. Probably by spring the whole distance of five miles will be completed and in working order. This enterprise has been long needed and talked of, and bids fair, when consummated, to add not only to the transportation facilities of that comparatively isolated portion of the county, but to its prosperity in a marine as well as commercial point of view. Not a few Boston people will make this their Mecca during the warm weather of years to come, we reckon. —Lynn Transcript.

TWO WEEKS.—It is now two weeks since the flames ceased their terrible work of devastation, and the situation is far more cheerful and hopeful than would seem possible. Men begin to wear a smiling look; the jokers remember their witticisms; laborers whistle at their work and business finds some moments devoted to pleasure. The heavens have smiled on the work of rebuilding, and the air has been as soft as that of spring. Mountains of ruins have been carted away, hundreds of buildings have sprung up, as if by magic, on the appalling waste; the sentitive pulse of finance has well-nigh resumed its wonted beat; the generous heart of the nation has provided against suffering and cold; the various branches of business, so suddenly thrown out of their accustomed haunts, have found temporary abiding places, and the sublime courage and faith which made Chicago have shown themselves equally ready for its restoration.

With a heavy load of sorrow for all that is gone; with a heavier load of toil to be assumed, to make good the loss, there is still but one voice and belief—Chicago must be rebuilt; and the eye of faith looking forward but a few years, sees the whole desolate waste again covered with stately structures and business pouring along the streets, now filled high with ruins. The faith which removes mountains is showing its power here in prostrate Chicago.—Mail.

A Night of Terror.
From the Detroit Post.

Allison Weaver, who reached Detroit from Fort Huron on Wednesday, had a narrow and curious escape from being roasted alive in the North Woods. Weaver is a single man, about fifty years old, and served all through the war in an Ohio regiment of infantry. Up to two weeks ago he was at work for a man named Bright, ten miles from Forestville, as fireman for a shingle mill. Two or three days before the approach of the flames, which eventually destroyed that section, Bright and his family left for Forestville, and the next day all the men employed about the place either followed his example or made haste to reach their homes.

On leaving, Bright informed his men that the fire would sweep that way, and warned them to lose no time in making their escape. Having no property to lose or family to care for, Weaver determined, as he says, "to stay and see the circus out"—meaning that he intended saving the mill if possible. He has a stubborn sort of a spirit, and the fact that everybody else went induced him to stay.

As soon as the men left he set to work and buried all the provisions left in the house, and during the day buried the knives and other light machinery of the mill, as well as a stove and a quantity of crockery ware. There was a plenty of water in the vicinity of the mill, and he filled several barrels full, besides wetting down house, mill, stock and everything which would burn, scattering several hundred pailfuls of water on the grounds around the buildings.

When night came, and the fire had not appeared, he began to jeer his absent comrades. But his self-conceit soon left him. About ten o'clock the heavens were so light that he could see the smallest objects around him, and there was a roaring in the forests, which sounded like the waves beating against the rocks on the shore. He began to suspect that he would soon receive the visit predicted, and accordingly made preparations for it. In levelling up the ground around the shingle mill earth had been obtained by digging here and there, and Weaver went to work and dug one of these pits deep enough for him to stand up in.

He then filled it nearly full of water, and took care to saturate the ground around it for a distance of several rods. Going to the mill he dragged out a four-inch plank, sawed it in two, and saw that the parts tightly covered the mouth of the well. "I calkelated it would be tech and go," said he, "but it was the best I could do." At midnight he had everything arranged, and the roaring then was awful to hear. The clearing was ten or twelve acres in extent, and Weaver says that for two hours before the fire reached him there was a constant flight across the ground of small animals. As he rested a moment from giving the house another wetting down, a horse dashed into the opening at full speed, and made for the house, where he stopped and turned toward the fire. Weaver could see him tremble and shake in his excitement and terror, and felt a pity for him. After a moment the animal gave utterance to a snort of dismay, ran two or three times around the house, and then shot off into the woods like a rocket.

Not long after this fire came. Weaver stood by his well, ready for the emergency, yet curious to see the breaking in of the flames. The roaring increased in volume, the air became oppressive, a cloud of dust and cinders came showering down, and he could see the flame through the trees. It did not run along upon the ground, nor leap from tree to tree, but it came on like a tornado, a sheet of flame reaching from the earth to the tops of the trees. As it struck the clearing he jumped into his well and closed over the planks. He could no longer see, but he could hear. He says that the flames made no halt whatever, nor ceased their roaring for an instant, but he had hardly got the opening closed before the house and mill were burning like tinder, and both were down in five minutes. The smoke came down to him powerfully, and he den was so hot that he could hardly breathe.

He knew that the planks above him were on fire, but remembering their thickness he waited till the roaring of the flames had died away, and then with his head and hands turned them over and put out the fire by dashing up water with his hands. Although it was a cold night, and the water had at first chilled him, the heat gradually warmed it up until he says he felt very comfortable.

He remained in his den until daylight, frequently turning over the planks and putting out the fire, and then the worst had passed. The earth around was on fire in spots, house and mill were gone, leaves, brush, and logs were swept clean away as if shaved off and swept with a broom, and nothing but soot and ashes were to be seen.

After the fire had somewhat cooled off, Weaver made an investigation of his caches, and found that considerable of the property buried had been saved, although he lost all his provisions, except a piece of dried beef, which the fire had cooked as in an oven without spoiling it. He had no other resource than to remain around the place that day, during the night, and the greater part of the next day, when the ground had cooled enough so that he could pick his way to the site of the burned village. He was nearly twelve hours going the twelve miles, as trees were falling, logs were burning, and the fallen timber had in some places heaped up a breastwork, over which no one could climb.

WHAT CIDER DID FOR BELLINGER.—A Chicago letter gives the following: One more building that remains, an oasis in a bleak and black Sahara, is a small, white, wooden cottage on Lincoln place. A policeman named Bellinger lived here. He hauled up the sidewalk, raised up the leaves and burnt them, hewed down the fence and carried it into the house. The fire advanced and gave battle. It flung torches into his porch, it hurled them through the windows, it began and kept up a hot bombardment of flaming shot upon the roof. He met it at every point, with hands and boots, with water and wet blankets, and finally as the last wave of fire enveloped the building in a sirocco and whirled through the crackling tree tops and gyrated madly over the adjacent walls and wavered and whirled over the smoking roof, Bellinger cast his pail into his cistern and it was dry. The blankets were on fire. Then the Bellinger genius rose triumphant. He assaulted his cider barrels, and little by little, emptied their contents on the roof. It was a coup de guerre. It gave him victory. His blankets were scorched, his hands blistered, his boots distorted, and his cider spilled, but his house was saved. And Bellinger has gone to taking boarders.

—Mr. Gray discovered a non-explosive illuminating fluid. To show how safe the new compound was, he invited a number of his friends to meet him in his rooms, whither he had brought a barrel of the fluid, which he at once proceeded to stir with a red-hot poker. As he went through the roof of his house, accompanied by his friends, he endeavored to explain to his nearest compagnon de voyage that the particular fluid in the barrel had too much benzine in it; but the gentleman said he had an engagement higher up, and could not wait for the explanation. Mr. Jones, informed him that there was no necessity for him to go up higher, as everybody was coming down; so Mr. Gray started back to be with the party. Mr. Gray's widow offers for sale the secret for the manufacture of the non-explosive fluid at a reduced rate, as she wishes to raise money enough to buy a silver-handled coffin, with a gilt plate, for the late Mr. Gray. No cards.

—Griswold of Cincinnati lectured in a Minnesota village for the benefit of the Chicago sufferers, but the audience was so small that he didn't pay expenses, and the sufferers are $2.75 in debt to him.

A PLACE FOR THE LEAN!
Say, old boy, where shall we meet?
Why, at Garrety's, on Daniel Street,
He's such a jolly fellow;
His LAGER is always fresh and prime,
It never wants a "head" and is
Refreshing, cool and mellow!
You require, my boy, some filling out,
You're thin, and meagre-looking;
Lager would give you the proper size.
Look at the host, he once was scant,
His BEER has made of flesh no want,
Go then and drink likewise.

Morning Chronicle.

THE HORRORS OF PESHTIGO.—A correspondent of the New York Tribune gives an account of the burning of Peshtigo, from which we extract the following:—

There is no diversity in general experience; all heard the first inexplicable roar; some aver that the earth shook, while a credulous few avow that the heavens opened, and the fire rained down from above. Moved by a common instinct, for all knew that the woods that encircled the town were impenetrable, every habitation was deserted to the flames, and the gasping multitude flocked to the river. On the west the mad horde saw the bridge in flames in a score of places, and, turning sharply to the left, with one accord, plunged into the water.

Three hundred people wedged themselves in between the rolling booms, swayed to and fro by the current, where they roasted in the hot breath of flame that hovered above them, and singed the hair on each head momentarily exposed above the water. Here despairing men and women held their children till the cold water came as an ally to the flames, and deprived them of strength. Meanwhile the eastern bank was densely crowded by the dying and the dead. Rushing to the river from this direction the swirling blasts met the victims full in the face and moved a swath through the fleeing throng. Inhalation was annihilation. Scores fell before the first blast. A few were able to crawl to the pebbly flats, but so dreadfully disfigured that death must have been preferable. All could not reach the river; even the groups that fell prone on the grateful damp flats suffered excruciating agony.

The fierce blaze playing in tremendous counter currents above them on the higher ground, was sufficiently strong to set the clothes aflame, and the flying sand, heated as by a furnace, blistered the flesh wherever it fell. All that could break through the stifling simoon had come to the river, in the red glare they could see the sloping bank covered with the bodies of those that fell by the way. Few living on the back streets succeeded in reaching the river, the hot breath of the fire cutting them down as they ran. But here a new danger befel. The cows, terrified by smoke and flame, rushed in a great lowing drove to the river brink. Women and children were trampled by the frightened brutes, and many losing their holds on the friendly logs, were swept under the water.

The tornado was but momentary, but was succeeded by maelstroms of fire, smoke, cinders and red hot sand. Wherever a building seemed to resist fire, the roof would be sent whirling into the air, breaking into clouds of flame as it fell. The shower of sparks, cinders and red hot sand fell in continuous and prodigious force, and did quite as much in killing the people as the first terrible sirocco that succeeded the fire. The wretched throng, neck deep in the water, and the still more hapless beings stretched on the heated sands, were pierced and blistered by these burning particles.

They seemed like lancets of red hot steel, penetrating the thickest covering. The evidence now remains to attest the incredible force of the slenderest pencils of darting flame. Hard iron-wood plough-handles still remain, perforated as though by Minie-balls, and for the main part unburned. When the hapless dwellers in the remote streets saw themselves cut off from the river, groups broke in all directions in a wild panic of flight and terror. A few took refuge in a cleared field bordering on the town. Here, flat upon the ground, with faces pressed in the sand, the helpless sufferers lay and roasted. The next day revealed a picture exceeding in horror any battle-field.

Mothers with children hugged closely lay in rigid groups, the clothes burned off and the poor flesh seared to a crisp. One mother, solicitous only for her babe, embalms her unutterable love in the terrible picture left on these woful sands. With her bare fingers she had scraped out a pit, as the soldiers did before Petersburg, and pressing the little one into this, she put her own body above it as a shield, and when the daylight came both were dead—the little baby's face unscarred, but the mother burnt almost to cinders.

Long after the flames had died out, when there was no more to feed on, the hot sands rendered moving about an exquisite torture, and long into the dismal midday the survivors were confined to the narrow circuit near the river. As the day wore on, help came in slowly from the northward. Several railroad gangs had escaped annihilation, and one gang, led by ex-prize-fighter named Mulligan, came with promptness and efficiency to the rescue through miles of burning prairie and blockaded roads.

On Sunday night something over two thousand people were assembled within the confines of this industrious, prosperous city; the dreadful morning light came upon a haggard, maniacal multitude of less than seven hundred. When the work of rescue began, it was found that a great number had escaped by the bed of the river and the northern road to the port, and, as the day advanced, half-naked stragglers, unkempt and blackened, began to stream into the sparse settlement.

As the molten sands cooled off, the woful work of recognition began. Peering into blackened faces, mothers, fathers, brothers tremblingly sought out missing ones. Some, in the inmeasurable anguish of the moment, had dashed themselves against the sands and let out the life with their own hands that the licking flames coveted. Men, too distant from the river to hope for rescue or safety, had cut the throats of their choking children, and were found in groups, sometimes unscarred by the flames. In the streets, full twenty corpses were found with no apparent injury or abrasion.

The ravages of the one night's tornado left unmistakable traces on every hand. Through the solid growth of timber a clean swath of blackened stumps and roots marked the course of the fiery tempests. The roads were cumbered with roasted cattle, and frequently with the carcasses of bears and deer, while the ditches and cleared fields were strewn with smaller game and wild birds. Nearing the vicinity sadder relics were found, for those who penetrated outward through the wall of flame met equally fierce flames in the clearest places.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity of a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents.'

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents.

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend all inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges. A GREAT MEDICAL DISCOVERY!

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA

VINEGAR BITTERS.

Hundreds of Thousands Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.

WHAT ARE THEY!

THEY ARE NOT A VILE FANCY DRINK, Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restoratives," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Root and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and a LIFE-GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to direction and remain long unwell, provided the bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the stomach and stimulate the torpid liver and bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effect.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins, cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health or the system will follow.

PIN, TAPE and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. For full directions, read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French and Spanish.

FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal. ☞ Send for a circular.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs. 1yrdawfeb16

The Cause and Cure of Consumption.

The primary cause of Consumption is derangement of the digestive organs. The derangement produces defident nutrition and assimilation. By assimilation I mean that process by which the nutriment of the food is converted into blood, and thence into the solids of the body. Persons with digestion thus impaired, having the slightest predisposition to pulmonary disease, or if they take cold, will be very liable to have Consumption of the Lungs in some of its forms; and I hold that it will be impossible to cure any case of Consumption without first restoring a good digestion and healthy assimilation. The first thing to be done is to cleanse the stomach and bowels from all diseased mucous and slime which is clogging these organs so that they cannot perform their functions, and then cease to eat, and store the liver to a healthy action. For this purpose, the surest and best remedy is SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS. These Pills cleanse the stomach and bowels of all the dead and morbid slime that is causing disease and decay in the whole system. They will clear out the liver of all diseased bile that has accumulated there, and arouse it up to a new and healthy action, by which natural and healthy bile is secreted.

The stomach, bowels and liver are thus cleansed by the use of Schenck's Mandrake Pills; but there remains in the stomach an excess of acid, the organ is torpid, and the appetite is gone. In this condition the system will now be requiring strength and support. It is in a condition like this that Schenck's Seaweed Tonic proves to be the most valuable remedy we have covered. It is alkaline, and its use will neutralize all excess of acid, making the stomach sweet and fresh; it will give permanent tone to this important organ, and produce a good, healthy appetite, and prepare the system for the first process of a good digestion, and ultimately make good, healthy, living blood. After this preparatory treatment, what remains to cure most cases of consumption is the free and persevering use of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup. This Syrup ripens up nourishes the system, purifies the blood, and is readily absorbed into the circulation, and thence distributed to the diseased lungs. There it ripens all morbid matters, which are in the form of abscesses or tubercles, and then assists Nature to expel all the diseased matter in the form of a free expectoration, which now it ripens. It is then, by the great healing and purifying properties of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, that all ulcers and cavities are healed up sound, and my patient is cured.

The essential thing to be done in curing Consumption is to get up a good appetite and a good digestion, so that the body will grow in flesh and get strong. If a person with diseased lungs, a cavity or abscess there, the cavity cannot heal, the matter cannot ripen, so long as the system is below par. What is necessary to cure is a new order of things, a good appetite, a good nutrition, the body to grow in flesh and get fat; then Nature is helped, the cavities will heal, the matter will ripen and be thrown off in large quantities, and the person regains health and strength. This is the true and only plan to cure Consumption, as if a person has not flesh, the lungs are not entirely destroyed, or even if one lung is entirely gone, if there is enough vitality left in the other to heal up, they will be cured.

I have seen many persons cured with only one sound lung, live and enjoy life to a good old age. This is what Schenck's medicines will do to cure Consumption. They will clean out the stomach, sweeten and strengthen it, get up a good digestion, and give Nature the assistance she needs to enable the system to do the work that is in the lungs, whatever the form may be.

It is important that, while using Schenck's medicines, care should be exercised not to take cold; keep in-doors in cold and damp weather; avoid night air, and take out-door exercise only in a genial and warm atmosphere.

I wish it distinctly understood that when I recommend a patient to be careful in regard to taking cold while using my medicines, I do so for a special reason, and it is not that I am partially recovered from the effects of a bad cold is far more liable to a relapse than one who has been entirely cured, and it is precisely the same in regard to consumption. The lungs are healed, but not perfectly healed, just so long is there imminent danger of a full return of the disease. Hence it is that I so strenuously caution pulmonary patients against exposing themselves to an atmosphere that is not genial and pleasant. Consumption is a disease of the lungs and tissues, sores, which the least change of atmosphere will inflame. The grand secret of my success with my medicines consists in their ability to subdue inflammation instead of provoking it, as many of the faculty do. An inflamed lung cannot with safety to the patient be exposed to the biting winds of spring or the chilling winds of spring or autumn. It should be carefully sheltered from all irritating influence. The utmost caution should be observed in this particular, as without it no cure under almost any circumstances is an impossibility.

The person should be kept on a wholesome and nutritious diet, and all the medicines continued until the body has restored to it the natural quantity of flesh and strength.

I was myself cured by this treatment of the worst kind of Consumption, and have lived to get fat and hearty these many years, with one lung mostly gone. I have cured hundreds since, and very many have been cured by this treatment whom I have never seen.

About the first of October I expect to take possession of my new building at the northeast corner of Sixth and Arch Streets, where I shall be pleased to give advice to all who may require it.

Full directions accompany all my remedies, so that a person in any part of the world can be readily cured by a strict observance of the same.

September 25th, 1871.

OF THE FIFTEEN MILLION CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO SIX PER CENT. LOAN, but about $4,500,000 remain unsold, and this remainder will be taken up rapidly.

The five years' option having expired on all series of FIVE-TWENTY BONDS, except 1867s and 1868s, they are liable to be called in for payment. The redemption of 100 millions FIVE-TWENTIES in coin, and the purchase by the Government during the coming four months, of the 194 millions thereon, will release about 150 millions of invested capital, independently of dividend and interest payments, thus greater part of which must seek reinvestment.

The Chesapeake and Ohio Sixes

have absolutely 30 years to run; are especially desirable for steady investments, and can now be bought

17 per cent. less than Ten-forties.
20 per cent. less than Five-twenties,
25 per cent. less than Sixes of 1881,

and are equally sure to be paid principal and interest in gold coin. Their amount is limited by the Trust Deed to $15,000,000 (at present 9?3 and accrued interest, that is, with coupon attached, payable Nov. 1.

$1000 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $954.46.

$500 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $477.08.

$100 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $95.42.

Only a small amount of the latter denomination remains, and no more can be issued. Bonds are in coupon or register form, same as Five-twenties.

This debt is created by the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad Company in order more speedily and effectually to extend and complete the main line of their Road to the Ohio River. This work is the most important and superior improvement now progressing in the country—is rapidly approaching completion. It will establish shortest and superior line of communication between the Ohio and Mississippi valleys and the eastern cities; bringing ten millions of people, mainly producers, nearer to the centres of consumption in the Eastern States, and nearer to the political and commercial capitals of their country. Such is the commanding importance of this Trunk Line that the larger portions of the West are projecting feeders to connect with it, so as to avail themselves of its unequalled facilities as soon as it is completed. Large tracts of valuable coal and iron lands along its route are passing into the hands of practical miners and iron manufacturers; a large city is springing up at the western terminus, the head of relative navigation on the Ohio, where it intersects 12,000 miles of river transit, and will soon be in connection with 30,000 miles of railroad centres.

The CENTRAL PACIFIC SIX PER CENT. BONDS are as safe for investment as Government Bonds Their amount fixed by act of Congress at $25,000,000, is less than the Government bonds issued during four times their value; they can only be bought in the open market, and are becoming scarcer in consequence of their gradual absorption by investors here and in Europe; they have a ready market in all the principal money-centres, and have twenty-four years to run; the earnings of the road are now exceeding its interest, and probably reach $10,000,000 for the current year, affording a handsome surplus after payment of expenses and interest; they represent FIRST-CLASS RAILROAD.

When the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad is completed, in 1872, and the Bonds are dealt in at the Stock Exchanges of the world, no doubt they will be equally popular with the Central Pacific. Both principal and interest of the CENTRAL PACIFIC and CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO BONDS are specifically payable in gold coin in New York; the interest on the former being paid January and July, and of the latter, May and November, corresponding with the two classes of Five-twenties.

We buy and sell FIVE-TWENTIES, TEN-FORTIES, SIXES of 1881, and CENTRAL or WESTERN PACIFICS, or receive them in payment for CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO BONDS at their current market price.

Orders for Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds, accompanied with Drafts or Checks, may be forwarded to us by mail. Bonds or money may be forwarded by any responsible Express Company at our expense, and the Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds, in exchange, will be sent by return Express, free of expense. FISK & HATCH.

P. S.—Accounts of Banks, Bankers and others received, on which we allow Four Per Cent. interest.

ARE YOU GOING TO PAINT?

—IF SO, USE THE—

AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINT.

It is Cheaper, Handsomer and more durable than the best of other Paints. One Thousand Gallons of it were sold in this City, in the year 1870, and not one complaint has come from those who have used it; but all speak in its favor; it is mixed ready for application, and is much easier put on than any other Paint. It dries with a smooth, glossy surface for years, that can be cleaned with hot suds without injuring it. It is excellent for walls inside, in houses and stores.

I shall keep this season a large stock of Chemical Paints of all shades on hand, to accommodate customers with any amount, without delay in ordering it. Those who want a good Chemical Paints and have had them misrepresented by those who deal in Lead and Oil, are invited to call and examine my Paints that have been out of buildings two years, and you will find them as fresh as if laid but one month.

I prepared to do Painting by Contract, or by the day, using the Chemical Paint, or furnishing good experienced workmen by the day at very low wages. B. NORTON, only Agent for selling the

THE REMOTE CAUSE OF FIRES.—Mr. Charles Barnard, in the N. Y. Evening Post, says; Chicago has burned down and whole square miles of Western land are burnt up. That misguided cow and unhappy lamp have been belated enough. If the barn had been wet with recent rains perhaps the fire had gone no further. Certain is it that if the roof-tops had not been baked dry by a summer's drought, Chicago would not have mourned her lost children and ruined homes.

Had not those Wisconsin fields been as ashes in the dry wind, had plentiful rains drenched the Michigan woods, the country would have been happier today. Everything there was as dry as tinder, say all the papers.

Now whose fault was it? People with more piety than wisdom may say in a horrified way: "What a question! Do you arraign the acts of Providence?" No. There has been blame somewhere. We are not inclined to shift it upon Heaven. Men, not Providence, brought this calamity upon us. It is we who have created these dry summers. Had there been no drought there had been no such wide rain. The time was when such long-continued dry seasons were not known. Men can and do change the character of climates. We can cause the rain to fall or drive away the clouds. Men have altered the temperature and moved the dew-point. The farmers of the Northern States are in a measure responsible for the series of dry summers that have prevailed for the last ten years.

This is not a new untried idea. Artificial woods are no longer a novelty in Europe. This whole matter is well understood. In parts of the Continent foresters are appointed by Government. It is their duty to inspect all standing forests. Schools of arboriculture are established. The habits of the trees are considered, the soil examined, the tree-planting carried on over hundreds of square miles. For every tree cut down one or more new ones must be set. Nurseries, producing millions of young trees, do thriving business in supplying this material. Under the advice of the foresters the new forests extend year by year. On the rocky hills of Scotland the oak, maple and chestnut are planted; the willow is set out by the million on the marsh-like "polders" of Holland; about Utrecht, and on the sandy plains of Zelderland, near Arnheim, the traveller passes artificial pine forests by the hour.

In view of these Western fires it is high time we prepare to imitate our transatlantic friends.

Meteorology is beginning to take a high position. We have mapped the winds and can signal the coming storm to the sailor and farmer. The laws of the weather are no longer a matter of guess-work. Cause and effect are as sure in the clouds as on the ground. Observing the effect we can trace the cause. Given this series of dry summers, science points to the cause—our denuded forests.

In our foolish American haste we have wastefully cut down the trees, dried up the springs, raised the temperature, so that precipitation of moisture is reduced, and have driven the rain away in useless clouds or invisible vapor over the Atlantic. Chicago is burned down and we are solemnly saying, "How heavy is the hand of Heaven upon us." We have prayed for rain one day of the week, and driven it away with an axe on six.

The mischief is done, and the best thing we can now do is to examine the matter with a view to future prevention. How shall we bring back the rain? How restore our forests? Simply by planting our woods anew.

SICK OF IT.—Judge ——, a man of high standing and character beyond reproach, who years ago was elected to a judicial position in San Francisco, met a friend who had received nomination for a municipal office in a late campaign, and said he was sorry he could not congratulate him on his success. "Why," said the happy candidate, "I was nominated; I have won my fight in the convention; I have not lost it." "Aye," replied the judge, "that is exactly what I regret. I had rather go down to the city front, and crawl up one of the filthiest sewers, than to run for office again. It is now over five years since I ran for a judgeship, and I give you my word that to this day I can scarcely appear on the streets that I am not 'struck' by some bummer or ward politician, who wants money for having supported me five years ago."

—Here is a new field for rivalry: A Zanesville man, eighty-seven years old, was born when his father was seventy-eight, and wants to know if there is another man living whose father was born one hundred and sixty-five years ago.

—A young lady swooned in a Wisconsin church, and the doctors gave her up for dead. At the funeral she arose and gave reasons for postponing the ceremony, which were agreed on by all the mourners to be convincing.

—A contemporary says of Alexander H. Stephens that he never stops writing an editorial article until the office runs out of type.

BUCHU

[From Dispensatory of the United States.]

DIOSMA CRENATA — BUCHU LEAVES.

PROPERTIES.—Their odor is strong, diffusive and somewhat aromatic; their taste bitterish and analogous to mint.

MEDICAL PROPERTIES AND USES.—Buchu leaves are gently stimulant, with a peculiar tendency to the Urinary Organs.

They are given in complaints of the Urinary Organs, such as Gravel, Chronic Catarrh of the Bladder, Morbid Irritation of the Bladder and Urethra, Disease of the Prostrate Gland, and Retention or Incontinence of Urine, from a loss of tone in the parts concerned in its evacuation. The remedy has also been recommended in Dyspepsia, Chronic Rheumatism, Cutaneous Affections and Dropsy.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is used by persons from the ages of 18 to 25, and from 35 to 55, or in the decline or change of life; after Confinement or Labor Pains; Bed-Wetting in children.

In affections peculiar to Females, the Extract Buchu is unequalled by any other remedy, as in Chlorosis or Retention, Irregularity, Painfulness or Suppression of Customary Evacuations, Ulcerated or Schirrous State of the Uterus.

DISEASES OF THE BLADDER, KIDNEYS, GRAVEL AND DROPSICAL SWELLINGS.—This medicine increases the power of Digestion, and excites the Absorbents into healthy action, by which the Watery or Calcareous depositions and all Unnatural Enlargements are reduced, as well as Pains and Inflammation.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU has cured every case of Diabetes in which it has been given. Irritation of the Neck of the Bladder and Inflammation of the Kidneys, Ulceration of the Kidneys and Bladder, Retention of Urine, Diseases of the Prostrate Gland, Stone in the Bladder, Calculus, Gravel, Brick-Dust Deposit and Mucous or Milky Discharges, and for enfeebled and delicate constitutions of both sexes, attended with the following symptoms: Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Horror of Diseases, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Pain in the Back, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Eruption on the Face, Pallid Countenance, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, etc.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is Diuretic and Blood-Purifying, and cures all diseases arising from habits of dissipation, excesses and imprudences in life, impurities of the Blood, etc., superceding Copaiba and other Nauseous Compounds.

Beware of counterfeits. Ask for Helmbold's. Take no other.

Price $1.25 per Bottle, or 6 Bottles for $6.50.

MANHOOD

IN THE

Young and Rising Generation.

The vegetable powers of life are strong, but in a few years how often the pallid hue, the lack-lustre eye and emaciated form, and the impossibility of application to mental effort, show their baneful influence. It soon becomes evident to the observer that some depressing influence is checking the development of the body. Consumption is talked of, and perhaps the youth is removed from school and sent into the country. This is one of the worst movements. Removed from ordinary diversions of the ever-changing scenes of the city, the powers of the body, too much enfeebled to give zest to healthful and rural exercise, thoughts are turned inwardly upon themselves.

If the patient be a female the approach of the menses is looked for with anxiety as the first symptom in which nature is to show her saving power in diffusing the circulation and visiting the cheek with the bloom of health. Alas! increase of appetite has grown by what it is fed on. The energies of the system are prostrated, and the whole economy is deranged. The beautiful and wonderful period in which body and mind undergo so fascinating a change from child to woman, is looked for in vain. The parent's heart bleeds in anxiety, and fancies the grave but waiting for its victim.

TRY HELMBOLD'S

EXTRACT BUCHU

For Weakness Arising from Excesses or Early Indiscretion,

attended with the following symptoms: Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, General Weakness, Horror of Disease, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Dreadful Horror of Death, Night Sweats, Cold Feet, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Languor, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, Often Enormous Appetite with Dyspeptic Symptoms, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Pallid Countenance and Eruptions on the Face, Pain in the Back, Heaviness of the Eyelids, Frequently Black Spots Flying before the Eyes, with Temporary Suffusion and Loss of Sight, Want of Attention, Great Mobility, Restlessness, with Horror of Society. Nothing is more desirable to such Patients than Solitude, and nothing they more dread, for fear of themselves; no repose of matter, no earnestness, no speculation, but a hurried transition from one question to another.

THESE SYMPTOMS, IF ALLOWED TO GO ON—WHICH THIS MEDICINE INVARIABLY REMOVES — SOON FOLLOW LOSS OF POWER, FATUITY AND EPILEPTIC FITS, IN ONE OF WHICH THE PATIENT MAY EXPIRE.

During the Superintendence of Dr. Wilson at the Bloomingdale Asylum, this sad result occurred to two patients. Reason has for a time left them, and both died of epilepsy. They were of both sexes, and about twenty years of age.

Who can say that these excesses are not frequently followed by those direful diseases, Insanity and Consumption? The records of the Insane Asylums, and the melancholy deaths of Consumption, bear ample witness to the truth of these assertions. In Lunatic Asylums the most melancholy exhibitions appears. The countenance is actually sodden and quite destitute; neither mirth nor grief ever visits it. Should a sound of the voice occur it is rarely articulate.

"With woful measures wan despair
Low sullen sounds their grief beguile."

While we regret the existence of the above diseases and symptoms, we are prepared to offer an invaluable gift of chemistry for the removal of the consequences.

HELMBOLD'S

Fluid Extract of Buchu.

There is no tonic like it. It is an anchor of hope to the physician and patient. This is the testimony of all who have used or prescribed it.

Beware of counterfeits and those cheap decoctions called Buchu, most of which are prepared by self-styled doctors, from deleterious ingredients, and offered for sale at "less price" and "larger bottles," etc. They are unreliable and frequently injurious. Ask for Helmbold's. Take no other.

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 31, 1871.

VOTING IN CALIFORNIA. — Our extremely virtuous cotemporary beyond the custom house recently published an account of the manner in which Republicans at work at Mare Island Navy Yard were furnished with a peculiar kind of tickets to deposit in the ballot box at the recent election, but neglected to mention the little game practised by the Democratic leaders at the State capital. Mr. Charles E. Shillaber, a Portsmouth boy, writes us as follows from Cordelia, California:

Some person has sent me a Stars & Bars of the 29th ult., which I have no literary use for. It contains an article on the manner of voting by employees of the Mare Island Navy Yard. I have failed to see or hear of a Democratic paper which takes to task the sweet set at the State Capital. The Democratic bosses there had the tickets numbered from one upwards, the ticket given to each was known and of course would be known when counted out. As for instance, Mike O'Flaggerty was given a sweet scented Democratic ticket, No. 204. When the votes were counted if No. 204 didn't come out or came out scratched Mr. Michael lost his scalp, instanter. This is true to the very letter, and proof could be adduced, if necessary. If you have the space in your columns and feel disposed, you may publish this, not as an excuse for this action at Mare Island but to show that some of the democracy lack more than wings to be angels.

Our Democratic friends in California doubtless borrowed the trick from their allies in New Hampshire, for every Democrat and Assistant Democrat (dubbed Labor Reformers) in the New Hampshire House of Representatives was numbered, last June, in the same manner, for fear he might sell out. The Democratic leaders thought their followers too susceptible to outside influence, we judge, and showed their want of faith by their works.

THE MORMONS.—It is stated in official circles that Brigam Young left Salt Lake City on Tuesday evening for the South. It is doubtful whether he will appear for trial. Delegate Hooper has gone to Washington to see the President and endeavor to effect some basis for a compromise, by which the United States authorities, judicial and executive, will be restrained or removed. The church is in the greatest ferment. Something mysterious is in the wind and ominous silence reigns in Mormon quarters. Mayor Wells is practically at the head of the community.

Elder Cannon has arrived from San Francisco and preached in the Tabernacle to an audience numbering at least 10,000. He counselled his hearers to abstain from any act of violence and to submit to the law. Elder Pratt was not so conservative, and did not want any whining judge to say to him as to Hawkins, "I am sorry for you." He wanted no sympathy from any federal official. He was ready to go to jail twenty years, but did not want any pity from such a source. He predicted that God would totally overthrow and annihilate the present persecutors of the Mormon people.

Hawkins, convicted of polygamy, was sentenced to three years' imprisonment and to pay a fine of $500.

Daniel H. Wells, Mayor of Salt Lake City, Hosea Stout, formerly Attorney-General of the Territory, and William Belden of Kimball's Hotel, Parley Canon, were arrested on Saturday by United States Marshal Patrick upon an indictment of the grand jury charging them with murder. The prisoners were taken to Camp Douglas. The alleged crime consists in the killing of Richard Yates and a man named Becky, several years ago. Warrants are out for the arrests of Brigham Young and his son Joseph A. Young, on a charge of murder, in having ordered the killing of Richard Yates. The indictments on all these murder cases are understood to be founded upon the testimony of Bill Hickman, who was once what is termed by the Gentiles, a Danite, or secret agent of the Mormon authorities. Yates visited the Mormon camp during the rebellion ostensibly to sell powder. The Mormons regarded him as a spy, and some weeks afterwards arrested him and placed him in the custody of Hickman to be taken to Salt Lake City. Daniel Wells then commanded the Mormon troops, and Hosea Stout was the judge advocate. On the way to Salt Lake City he killed Yates. As Hickman says: "My orders were from Brigham Young and Joseph A. Young, and at the instigation of Daniel Wells and Stout." Hickman is also confined at Camp Douglas. He went with the officers to Echo Canon, and, after pointing out where he had buried Yates, assisted them in disinterring his remains.

How to Make Good Cider.

Some time ago we requested Mr. G. H. Jenness of Rye to communicate to us for publication, his secret for making cider. The thousands in this vicinity who have tasted his famous cider will bear witness to its unrivaled excellence and purity, and will be gratified to read the following communication:

Messrs. Editors:—Agreeably to your request I proceed to impart to you "What I Know About" making cider. I think I can convince you that there is no "secret" about it. Of the countless thousands of barrels of cider annually made, comparatively little is fit to drink, because farmers who are carefully exact in everything else, are extremely careless in this. Those who want good bread, send good corn to the mill. It is a rule among manufacturers that good material is necessary to make a good article. Does not the same principle hold good in making cider? The old-fashioned way of mixing equal parts of windfalls, worms and dirt, and putting the resulting liquid compound into a ten-year-old musty cask, must necessarily result in a miserable apology for cider. Three things I consider essential to have it pure and nice—good apples, cleanliness and care. Select your best apples instead of the meanest. None are too good. I have frequently used the best No. 1 varieties when they were selling for $3 or $4 per barrel. I shall use the few that I have this year for the same purpose. See that your apples are clean and sound; if you find one specked with rot throw it away. Make your cider in cold weather, to avoid rapid fermentation. It made early, extra care must be taken. The last half of November is a good time, although many will lose patience as they see their pile diminish by the rot. It will also take more apples to make a given quantity at the latter part of the season, but the quality will be much improved in consequence of the delay.

Take the apples to mill and grind them fine, the kind of mill known as the "Grater" being preferable, I think. To heighten the color, let the pomace remain in the trough a few hours, frequently stirring it in order to bring every part of it in contact with the air. Press out and strain directly from the press through two thicknesses of flannel cloth, hung up tight and put in a cool, dark cellar in a fresh cask. The old way of "working" with the bung left out is fatal to good cider, as in that case only the coarse and filthy scum is thrown out while the finer sediment settles to the bottom of the cask. At the same time the most valuable part of the cider escapes in the form of a sort of gas. It is this that gives it the "life" and sparkle, which is so much admired by judges of good cider. "You know how it is yourselves."

I never "vent" a cask except to save it from bursting, which is of rare occurrence, inasmuch as the most of the sediment is extracted and the fermentation diminished, by the preliminary straining from the press. If, however, the weather should be warm, and the fermentation rapid, just "vent" the cask an instant merely, to relieve the pressure. A gill of pure alcohol to a barrel will be found beneficial and assist in "clearing" the cider. Let it remain from two to four weeks, according to the weather, and pack off, and strain again into another fresh cask. Taste and opinions will differ concerning the kind of a cask. My own preference is for a port wine or a Santa Cruz rum cask. Brandy or gin next, and whiskey last. I now approach a delicate part of my subject. Almost every one has his pet theory about how to keep cider good after it is made right. With each I will have no quarrel, as I am only giving my own opinions, drawn from my own observation and experience. My advice is to avoid all quack nostrums and experiments. Cider is just like Jeff Davis, it wants to be "let alone." I know that some use sulphite of lime, mustard seed, beets, sweet oil, isinglass, and various other things to "keep" it, but they are all worthless, and the most of them positively injurious. The less cider is "doctored" the better. The only thing that will at all improve it is sugar. Ten or fifteen pounds to the barrel is sufficient. After the casks have been filled for the final campaign, care should be taken to seal them perfectly tight so as to exclude the air. Put them in a dark, cool cellar and let them remain until you want to bottle off the cider, which will be fit for that process after it has remained in the barrel three or four months. In bottling, if the cider has had no sugar put in the cask, and if it is found to be a trifle too sour to the taste, put a tablespoonful of white sugar in the bottle. This will give it a famous "bead." Cork up with the best quality "velvet" cork, wire them securely, and lay them on the side, to prevent the escape of the "gas" through the pores of the cork. By using corks considerably too large and then squeezing them in an instrument made for the purpose, much of this danger can be avoided. If the presure is likely to be too strong, set the bottles up for a week or two and afterwards lay them down again. Cider made and cared for in this manner, will be found nearly equal to champagne, will constantly improve in quality, and is, I firmly believe, a beneficial and healthy drink when used in moderation. There are but few so "temperate" as to refuse it; and I may add confidentially that I have seen many staid people surround a glass of it without manifesting much of a struggle during the operation. A moderate use of cider often cures dyspepsia and other complaints where a vegetable acid is required as a remedy. Nearly all children crave it, and many children of larger growth do not hanker to take a "new departure" from it. These are all the "secrets" I know about making cider. If they shall be of any practical benefit to any one, I shall not regret having committed them to paper.

G. H. JENNESS.

New Hampshire Items.

A Rochester man was the victim of a funny act of absent-mindedness one day recently. He was on his way to leave town and when he got to the station he happened to think that he had left his watch behind. He instantly took his watch from his pocket to see if he had time to return and get it.

Political.

A western newspaper says that "If the Democratic party in Indiana can stand the 'New Departure,' the 'Buckeye' revelations, the Sentinel-Bright-State-Printing exposure, the Tammany New York frauds, the defeat of the Railroad Repeal act, and the record in general of the Democratic majority in the last Legislature, it must be a very robust polical organization, and with a very strong stomach."

A proposition is made to close all the stores in New York, election day, and generally suspend business.

Sinking Fast.

Pale, miserable, discouraged, without relish for food, without energy enough for exertion, yet with no acute pain, or other special indication of disease, how often do we see feeble invalids fading as it were out of life, without any apparent cause. We say of them that they are "sinking fast," or "sinking gradually," as the case may be. But there is no good reason why they should sink at all. Persons in this dead-alive state simply want invigorating and vitalizing. Nature, in a state of torpor, demands help. Bring out the reserve of vitality in the system, brace the nerves, tone the stomach, break up the morbid trance of body and mind with a course of HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS. It can be done. It has been done in thousand of instances. The effect upon the enervated frame is electric. Never give up, however languid and broken down. Remember that for the exhausted, the debilitated, the desponding, this powerful vegetable restorative is a genuine elixir. It is not a mere stimulant that provokes a transient flash of vigor in the system, and then leaves it in a more depressed condition than before. It removes the cause of debility by altering the secretion, and regulating the action of the internal organs, as well as reinforcing them. It is a particularly valuable medicine at this season, because it is an antidote to the malaria which produces intermittent fever, bilious colic and other disorders of the bowels prevalent in the fall.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

THE DOMESTIC SEWING MACHINE.—Since the Domestic Sewing Machine was awarded the "First Premium" at the late State Fair at Dover, the rush for them has been even greater than ever; Mr. E. A. Joy, the fortunate Agent, whose rooms are adjoining our office, is unable to set them up as fast as they are called for, notwithstanding he has lately employed an able assistant. Everybody who buys a "Domestic" seems happy. At the State Fair it was found to be the only Machine in the world having self adjusting tensions. It was in operation four days, using all kinds of thread on all sorts of goods, without any change of tensions. If you don't examine it before purchasing any other, you will wish you had.

IT IS SAID that if a puff of air were to be blown into a vein of an animal, death would instantaneously follow, because circulation would be stopped. The blood makes the entire circuit of the human body every seven minutes, and whenever this circulation is impeded or any of its channels are clogged by impurities which ought to be carried off, disease follows—fever or a disorder of liver or kidneys, or scrofula, or dyspepsia. To get at and remove the source of the difficulty use the old and infallible blood purifier, DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA VINEGAR BITTERS. o21 4w

Have you a severe wrench or sprain? Have you rheumatism in any form? Have you stiff neck, or bunches caused by rheumatic pains? If so "Johnson's Anodyne Liniment" is a specific remedy, and is also the best pain killer in the world.

We often see large stocks of cattle which do not seem to thrive, and come out "spring poor," all for want of something to start them in the right direction. One dollars' worth of Sheridan's Cavalry Condition Powders, given to such as stock occasionally during the winter, would be worth more than an extra half ton of hay.

1871. LYCEUM COURSE. 1872

IN arranging the programme for a course of Popular Lectures, Readings, &c., to be given in the

Universalist Church

for the season of 1871—2, the committee believe this list has the largest number of distinguished names ever offered to the Portsmouth public, and that the Course will present attractions not surpassed in point of interest and variety. They will appear in the order announced:

NOV. 2, Maj. Gen. JUDSON KILPATRICK. Subject: "The American Stump." A new, instructive and amusing lecture.

NOV. 9, Rev. W. H. H. MURRAY. Subject: "Deacons." A new lecture.

NOV. 16, JAMES T. FIELDS. Subject: "A Plea for Cheerfulness."

NOV. 23, GEORGE WILLIAM CURTIS. Subject: "Women in the Old time and the New."

NOV. 30, REV. S. H. MCCOLLESTER. Subject: "Athens and Greece."

DEC. 7 Rev. WILLIAM R. NICHOLSON, D. D. Subject: "Civilization and Poverty."

DEC. 14, Rev. E. E. HALE. Subject: "He Did his Level Best." A Story. This is an entirely new feature, arranged especially for Lyceums, and has proved to be an exceedingly attractive one.

Dec. 21, Mrs. MARY A. LIVERMORE, Subject: 'What shall we do with our Daughters?'

JAN. 4, PROF. MOSES T. BROWN, and DR. J. H. WILLCOX.

Entertainment: Organ Concert, Miscellaneous Readings, by Prof. Brown, from favorite authors, with some character sketches.

Organ Recitals by Dr. Willcox performed on the fine new organ recently placed in this church.

JAN. 11, Prof. C. H. HITCHCOCK.

Subject: "Life above the Clouds; or, Mt. Washington in Midwinter," illustrated with noted Stereoscopic Views of frost work, exhibited by the aid of a Stereopticon and Calcium Light.

The organ will be exhibited each evening.

TICKETS for this Course are now ready, at the stores of Messrs. Shores, Preston, Thacher and Hill.

PRICE $1.50 FOR THE COURSE.

No single evening tickets will be issued.

As the number to be sold is limited to the comfortable seating capacity of the church, those desiring to attend should secure their tickets without delay, as a large number are already taken up.

Ushers will be in attendance each evening.

The Friends

Of Mr. Jeff. C. Rowe have presented him with an easy chair. His Boston friends have raised $300 for him. Now what is the Eastern Railroad to do for him?

Navy Yard Matters.

Mr. William Tarlton was taken sick while at work, Monday, and died an hour after, of heart disease, at Kittery.

U. S. S. Speedwell and Port Fire were taken into the dock, Monday.

Dancing.

A course of assemblies is advertised in another column by Mr. J. G. Anthoine, with free instruction in fancy dancing to holders of course tickets. The first assembly comes off this evening at Irving Hall.

Merited Promotion.

At a meeting of the Directors of the National Mechanics & Traders Bank at their Banking Room on Monday, Mr. George W. Butler was unanimously elected Cashier to fill the vacancy caused by the death of the late Cashier, James F. Shores, Esq.

Mr. Moses' Concert

At the Temple, this evening, we hope will draw a crowded house. A look at the new Drop Curtain is worth the price of admission, and the persevering and pains-taking artist deserves a genuine benefit. The scene on the Sagamore is said to be very beautiful, and the public know what kind of concerts Mr. Moses gets up with his advanced classes. Turn out, and give a hard worker a generous recognition.

The First Lecture

In the Lyceum course will be given next Thursday evening, Nov. 2d, by Maj. Gen. Kilpatrick, his subject being "The American Stump." Doors open at quarter past 7 o'clock; lecture commences at quarter to 8. Ushers will be in attendance each evening. No single evening tickets will be sold, but the extremely low price of course tickets,—$1.50 for ten entertainments, by some of the deepest thinkers and most brilliant speakers in the land,—warrants a belief that none will be left over. See advertisement.

A Remarkable Coincidence.

Many years ago we worked on a farm, and had occasionally to look after a gaunt, long-legged swine, which unhappy animal we cordially despised for his ill-temper, no one being able to look at him without his bristling up and snorting most ferociously. But he was quite harmless, with all his terrible demonstrations, for he never managed to hurt anybody. One day when he was more than usually noisy we threw a stone against his sty, and the result was a sudden silence; he was evidently surprised at our audacity. We threw a second missile at the unlucky swine himself, and hit him hard, which had the effect of making him tear furiously around his sty and spatter its contents in every direction.

"History repeats itself." We threw a stone at the Manchester Public Forum, and a dead silence ensued; we hit its animating spirit, and he frantically dashes around, breathing dire destruction to all creation, harmlessly splashes mud in all directions, and then plaintively asks, "What more can we do?" We give it up; we never had the least idea that he could do anything else.

The Municipal Election

Will occur in four weeks and the Republican committees are vigorously canvassing the various wards, knowing that "a stitch in time saves nine." No one doubts that with every vote polled the Republicans have a large majority in this city, and efforts will be made to bring out the entire strength of the party. To do so, the strongest available candidates must be nominated. The executive committee of the 2d ward have passed a resolution requiring the polls to be open from two o'clock until seven on the afternoon of the day for which caucuses are called. This is a much needed improvement, and we hope the committees of the other wards will agree to the arrangement. By no other means can a full and fair expression of opinion be so satisfactorily given. It allows no reason for bolting by those whose candidates may not have been selected. Let our friends discuss the claims of those who are willing to serve the city and unite in nominating experienced men to conduct municipal affairs, who are not so bound by party ties as to neglect the duties of citizens, or so blind as representatives of citizens as to neglect their duty to their partizan friends.

Base Ball.

The Sawyer club of Dover walloped a nine from this city and Kittery on Monday, 33 to 17.

The case of Michael Howard, indicted for murder in the 2d degree, was commenced, Monday. The defendant's counsel claims that the victim, David Cronin, fell off and was not pushed off a load of hay, by which means his death occurred. Hon. Gilman Marston of Exeter and Hon. Henry Carter of Newburyport appear for Howard. Messrs. Clarke and Frink appear for the State.

Portsmouth

Has always enjoyed the reputation of listening to some of the best preaching in New England, and many famous divines have occupied its pulpits. Within the past fifteen years great changes have been wrought throughout the country and the vagaries of the past are not the belief of the present. The teachings from our pulpits have notably changed. Enlarged views have grown from more liberal counsel, and the changes which have come have occurred and are occurring almost imperceptibly, yet irresistibly. Denunciation has given away to wiser words and wiser action. The dogma of sect seems half forgotten in the more important efforts at encouragement to poor sinners. We were led to a mention of this matter, by listening to a very interesting discourse on "Gentleness," by an eloquent doctor of divinity, recently, in which the speaker remembered that the greatest of all virtues is charity. The people who can obtain the services of a teacher who forgets generalities and deals with his fellow beings as one of them, not "holier than thou," are fortunate and have a new element of success. Frightful descriptions of absurd contingencies, which work upon the fears of mankind, and at best serve only to keep them from evil through dread of punishment, cannot have the elevating effect which the gentler teachings of charity and brotherly love inspire. Blessed are they who preach brotherly love, charity and common sense, and who deal practically with the sins of the world, for they are doing righteous service—reaping harvests when others bigotedly sow discord.

National Thanksgiving Proclamation.

The process of the season has again enabled the husbandmen to garner the fruits of successful toil. Industry has been generally well rewarded. We are at peace with all nations and tranquility, with few exceptions, prevails at home. Within the past year we have been in the main free from ills which elsewhere have affected our kind. If some of us have had calamities there should be an occasion of sympathy with the sufferers, of resignation on their part to the will of the Most High, and of rejoicing to the many who have been more favored. I therefore recommend that, on Thursday, the 30th day of November next, the people meet in their respective places of worship, and there make the usual acknowledgments to Almighty God for the blessings he has conferred upon them for the merciful exemption from evils and invoke his protection and kindness for their less fortunate brethren, whom, in His wisdom, he has deemed it best to chastise. In faith, whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

A PLACE FOR THE LEAN!
Say, old boy, where shall we meet?
Why, at Garrety's, on Daniel Street,
He's such a jolly fellow;
His LAGER is always fresh and prime,
It never wants a "head" and is
Refreshing, cool and mellow!
You require, my boy, some filling out,
You're thin, and meagre-looking;
Lager would give you the proper size,
Look at the heat, he once was scant,
His BEER has made of flesh no want,
Go then and drink likewise.
Lager tapped for excursion parties by the Keg. M. GARRETY.

Morning Chronicle.

IMAGINATIVE REPORTING.—The Chicago Post thus discusses the enterprise of the special reporters and artists by whom the great fire was so wonderfully depicted:—

The special correspondents have done "excellent well," but it cannot be said that truth invariably abounded at the bottom of the well in question. Indeed, a modern Oxenstiern might find in contemporaneous literature an excuse for the exclamation, "See, my son, with how little accuracy the world is reported." Jenkins, like Job's war horse, has scented the battle from afar, the thunders of the insurance agents and the shouting, and adjusting his literary hurdy-gurdy with the agony stops, he has outdone himself, Munchausen, Ananias, and all else, baptized or infidel, lies in history, sacred or profane. The New York correspondents have displayed an artistic and circumstantial mendacity commendable in the highest degree, and which shines the more brightly by contrast with the crudities of the rural press. It is to a New York journal that we owe the picture of a little girl, with long, golden hair all ablaze, curvetting through Clark street. It was a New York special who tenanted the lamp-posts so thickly with burglars and incendiaries that in the smoke and confusion the inadvertent traveller bumped against a corpse at every other step. A New Yorker propped Messrs. Barney Aaron and Dudot Heinrich against a wall, and ruthlessly mowed them down with musketry. And to a New York journalist we are indebted for the rarely accomplished feat of shrivelling up a man during his passage through the burning air from the roof of a building to the sidewalk, which he reached in a rarified state. Compared with this artistic mendacity, how pitiful and coarse are the achievments of the Iroquis journalist who smothered eight hundred men in Washington street tunnel, and left thirteen hundred prisoners to suffocate in the new Bridewell! And yet, perfection is after all imperfect. To shrivel a man is successful and commendable, but how much more effective would it have been had the letter-press been accompanied by an illustration, showing the gradual resolving of the man into thin air as he passed each story, from two hundred pounds' weight at the attic, to the size of a baby at the first floor, and an impalpability at the basement.

Most noticeable, too, has been the amiable rivalry of artists, who have endeavored to express with pencil and graver the inaccuracy which the correspondents have compassed with adjective and exclamation point. Frank Leslie's draughtsmen, like another Sampson, tore down the two wings of the courthouse ere he permitted it to burn. Harper's was not to be outdone, and transported bodily a flour mill and a block of wholesale stores across Lake street bridge to Randolph street. Stimulated by success, this man soared from the achievments of Orlando Furioso or Hercules maddened by an illy-fitting shirt, to those of Joshua, and changed the wind on the night of the fire so as to waft hot destruction into the west division, an error for which he subsequently stoned by uprooting Union park and planting it on the north side. Another artist, in the same paper, gives a view of the conflagration as seen from the prairie, which rivals Mr. Ward's Desert or Hogarth's picture of the passage of the Red Sea, wherein the sea alone remained, the Israelites having crossed it and the Egyptians having been drowned. Still, these pictures relate to the Chicago fire, and the papers which contain them will sell. The times are hardly ripe, as yet, for the "conflagration corn plaster," the "calamity cathartic," or the "Chicago fire cravat," in flame color clouded with smoke.

NOT BAD FOR THE "HEATHEN CHINEE."—The contributions given by the Chinese merchants of San Francisco, in aid of the Chicago sufferers, amount to $1,290. In one case an intelligent merchant said to the collectors: "Me leadee in Alta Melican man town all same hap gone—bursee up. Melican man wantee dollas; sometime poor Melican man strikee Chinaman with bilks; Chinaman no care. Allee people Chicago losee everything—wife and children burn out. Chinaman say allee same my countree people—wantee help. How muchee dollas you wantee? Hundled dollas? Allee light; you not find enough money, comee me again, give another hundled." These Chinese are but an inferior race of heathen, have no rights which white men are bound to respect, and of course are not expected to set such a worthy example as the Christian white men of California—who have just been mobbing and murdering the heathen without let or hindrance.

THE LAST RAIL of the Knox & Lincoln Railroad was laid at Rockland, Me., Sunday, and an engine passed over the road which was welcomed at Rockland by a large concourse of enthusiastic people. Trains will commence running on Wednesday, and will consist of three passenger trains each way daily, besides freights. The completion of this road supplies a want the citizens of Rockland and the traveling public is generally have long felt connecting Rockland with the West via Bath.

Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the probability of inventions.

All necessity of a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents.

"Mr. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges.

A GREAT MEDICAL DISCOVERY!

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA

VINEGAR BITTERS,

Hundreds of Thousands Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.

WHAT ARE THEY!

THEY ARE NOT A VILE FANCY DRINK, Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Roots and Herbs of California, free from all alcoholic stimulants.

They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and a LIFE-GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to direction and remain long unwell, provided the bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the stomach and stimulate the torpid liver and bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effect.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins, cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

PIN, TAPE and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. For full directions, read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French and Spanish.

FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal. ☞ Send for a circular.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, passessing also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Viscera of digestion. lyrdawfebl8

The Cause and Cure of Consumption.

The primary cause of Consumption is derangement of the digestive organs. The derangement produces deficient nutrition and assimilation. By assimilation I mean that process and which the nutriment of the food is converted into blood, and thence into the solids of the body. Persons with digestion thus impaired, having the slightest predisposition to pulmonary disease, or if they take cold, will be very liable to have Consumption of the Lungs in some of its forms; and I hold that it will be impossible to cure any case of Consumption without first restoring a good digestion and healthy assimilation. The very first thing to be done is to cleanse the stomach and bowels from all diseased mucous and slime which is clogging these organs so that they cannot perform their functions, and then rouse up and restore the liver to a healthy action. For this purpose, the surest and best remedy is SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS. These Pills cleanse the stomach and bowels of all the diseased mucous and slime that is causing disease and decay in the whole system. They will clear out the liver of all diseased bile that has accumulated in it, rouse it up to a new and healthy action, by which natural and healthy bile is secreted.

The stomach, bowels and liver are thus cleansed by the use of Mandrake Pills; and now but there remains in the stomach an excess of acid, the organ it torpid, and the appetite is poor. In the bowels, the lacteals are weak, and wanting strength and support. It is in a condition like this that Schenck's Seaweed Tonic proves to be the most valuable remedy ever discovered. It is alkaline, and its use will neutralize all excess of acid, making the stomach sweet and fresh; it will give permanent tone to this important organ, and create a good, healthy appetite, and prepare the system for the first process of a good digestion, and ultimately make good, healthy, living blood. After this preparatory treatment, what remains to cure most cases of consumption is the free and persevering use of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup. The Pulmonic Syrup ripens the sputum, purifies the blood, and is readily absorbed into the circulation, and thence distributed to the diseased lungs. There it ripens all morbid matter, and heals the ulcers; it ripens all mucous or tubercles, and then assists Nature to expel all the diseased matter in the form of free expectoration, when once it ripens. It is then, that the great healing and purifying properties of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, that all ulcers and cavities are healed up sound, and my patient is cured.

The essential thing to be done in curing Consumption is to get up a good appetite and a good digestion, so that the body will grow in flesh and get strong. If a person has discharged lungs, or is ty or abscess there, the cavity cannot heal, the matter cannot ripen, so long as the system is below par. What is necessary to cure is a good, healthy appetite, a good digestion, and nutrition, the body to grow in flesh and get fat; then Nature is helped, the cavities will heal, the matter will ripen and be thrown off in large quantities, and the person regains health and strength. This is the true and only plan to cure Consumption, and if a person is very far gone, if the lungs are not entirely destroyed, or even if one lung is entirely gone, if there is enough vitality left in the other to heal up, there is hope.

I have cured many persons cured with only one sound lung, live and enjoy life to a good old age. This is what Schenck's medicines will do to cure Consumption. They will clean out the stomach, sweeten and strengthen it, get up a good digestion, and give Nature the assistance she needs to do her work. The great secret is, that it is in the lungs, whatever the form may be.

It is important that, while using Schenck's medicines, care should be exercised not to take cold; keep in-doors in cold and damp weather; avoid night air, and take out-door exercise only in a genial and warm sunshine.

I wish it distinctly understood that when I recommend a patient to be careful in regard to taking cold while using my medicines, I do so for a special reason. A man who has had his lungs sounded, and pronounced to be a bad cold is far more liable to a relapse than one who has been entirely cured, and it is precisely the same in regard to consumption. So long as the lungs are not perfectly healed, just so long is there imminent danger of a full return of the disease. Hence it is that I am strenuously cautious of pulmonary patients against exposing themselves to an atmosphere that is not genial and pleasant. Confirmed consumptive lungs are a mass of sores, and which the least change of atmosphere will inflame. The grand secret of my success with my medicines consists in my ability to subdue inflammation instead of provoking it from stomach of the faculty do. An inflamed lung cannot with safety to the patient be exposed to the biting breath of winter or the chilling winds of spring or autumn. It should be carefully shielded from all irritating influence. The utmost caution should be used in this direction, and I have no doubt of a cure under almost any circumstances in an impossibility.

The person should be kept on a wholesome and nourishing diet, and the use of medicine continued until the body has restored to it the natural quantity of flesh and strength.

I was so perfect cured by this treatment of the worst kind of Consumption, and have lived to get fat and hearty these many years, with one lung mostly gone. I have cured thousands since, and very many have been cured by this treatment whom I have never seen.

About the first of October I expect to take possession of my new Store, on the northeast corner of Sixth and Arch Streets, where I shall be pleased to give advice to all who may require it.

Full directions accompany my medicines, so that a person in any part of the world can be readily cured by a strict observance of the same.

CHESAPEAKE & OHIOS — FIVE TWENTIES—CENTRAL PACIFICS.

BANKING OFFICE OF

FISK & HATCH,

No. 5 Nassau Street, New York.

September 25th, 1871.

Of the FIFTEEN MILLION CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO SIX PER CENT. LOAN, but about $4,500,000 remain unsold, and this remainder will be taken up rapidly.

The five years' option having expired on all series of FIVE-TWENTY BONDS, except 1865s and 1868s, they are likely to be called in for payment. The redemption of 100 millions FIVE-TWENTIES in coin, and the purchases by the Government during the ensuing four months, with the premium thereon, will release about 150 millions of invested capital, independently of dividend and interest payments, the greater part of which must seek reinvestment.

The Chesapeake and Ohio Sixes

have absolutely 30 years to run; are especially desirable for steady investments, and can now be bought

17 per cent. less than Ten-forties.
40 per cent. less than Five-twenties.
23 per cent. less than Sixes of 1881,

and are equally sure to be paid principal and interest in gold coin. Their amount is limited by the Trust Deed to $15,000,000. Price to-day 93 and accrued interest, that is, with coupon attached, payable Nov. 1.

$1000 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $946.

$500 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $473.08.

$100 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $95.42.

Only a small amount of the latter denominations remains, and no more can be made. Bonds can be sent coupon or register form, same as Five-twenties.

This debt is created by the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad Company in order more speedily and effectually to extend and complete the main line of their Road to the Ohio River. This work is the most important national improvement now progressing in the country—is rapidly approaching completion. It will establish another and superior line of communication between Ohio and Mississippi valleys and the eastern cities; bringing ten millions of people, mainly producers, nearer to the centres of consumption in the Eastern States, and nearer to the political and commercial capitals of their country. Such is the commanding importance of this Trunk Line, that the larger cities of the West are projecting feeders to connect with it, so as to avail themselves of its unequalled facilities as soon as it is completed. Large tracts of valuable coal and iron lands along its route are passing into the hands of practical miners and iron manufacturers; a large city is springing up at the western terminus, the head of reliable navigation on the Ohio, where it intersects 12,000 miles of river transit, and will soon be in connection with 30,000 miles of railroad carriage.

THE CENTRAL PACIFIC SIX PER CENT. BONDS are safe for investment as Government Bonds. Their amount fixed by act of Congress at $25,000 per mile, secured by patent, cannot ever limit their value; they can only be bought in the open market, and are becoming scarcer in consequence of their gradual absorption by investors here and in Europe; they have a ready market in all the principal money-centres, and have twenty-four years to run; the earnings of the road are steadily increasing, and will probably reach $10,000,000 for the current year, affording a handsome surplus after payment of expenses, interest, and dividends. Price 105 and int.

When the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad is completed, in 1872, and the Bonds are dealt in at the whole Atlantic seaboard, and in Europe, no doubt they will be equally popular with the Central Pacifics. Both principal and interest of the CENTRAL PACIFIC and CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO BONDS are specifically payable in gold coin in New York; the interest on the former being paid January and July, and of the latter, May and November, corresponding with the two classes of Five-twenties.

We buy and sell FIVE-TWENTIES, TEN-FORTIES, SIXES, 1881s, and GENERAL of WESTERN PACIFICS, or receive them in payment for CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO BONDS at their current market price.

Interest on Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds, accompanied with Drafts or Checks, may be forwarded to us by mail. Bonds or money may be sent by express, at our risk, when we make the payment at our expense, and the Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds, in exchange, will be sent by return Express, charges paid.

P. S.—Accounts of Banks, Bankers and others received, on which we allow Four Per Cent. interest.

Certificates of deposit issued and collections made in all parts of the Union.

ARE YOU GOING TO PAINT?

—IF SO, USE THE—

AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINT.

It is Cheaper, Handsomer and more durable than the best of other Paints. One Thousand Gallons of it were sold in this City, in the year 1870, and not one complaint has come to the Company that it has not been satisfactory, that can be cleaned with hot soda without injuring it. It is excellent for walls inside, in place of paper.

I shall keep this season a large stock of Chemical Paints of all shades on hand, to accommodate customers with any amount, without delay in ordering it. Those who want to use the Chemical Paints and have had them misrepresented by those who deal in Lead and Oil, are invited to call at my Chemical Paint Store, Nos. 1 and 2 Boylston Buildings two years, and you will find them as fresh as if laid but one month.

I am prepared to do Painting by Contract, or by the day, using the Chemical Paint, or furnishing good experienced workmen by the day at very low wages. B. NORTON, only Agent for selling the

A POOR INVESTMENT.—Not long since I was talking with Don Salvio Pacheco, of Contra Costa county, who was a Spanish soldier at the Presidio of San Francisco, in 1810, and afterward a Mexican soldier until 1825, subsequently filling many positions of honor and trust in the territory of Alta California, until the Americans came and demanded—very impolitely and rudely, he assured me—the keys of the public records at San Jose, of which he was then the custodian, in 1846 or 1847. When he left the army he was acquainted with a widow lady—Spanish like himself, of course—aged 57 years, with considerable money, a consumptive tendency and no incumbrances. She was considerably his senior, but the chances were all in his favor, notwithstanding, and he married her. Would you believe it, that ungrateful woman lived to keep him out of the enjoyment of the estate just fifty-seven years longer, and only left him two years since, with apparent reluctance, at the moderate age of 114 years! He is still a hearty, active man, and to any guarded question as to his age—it is impolite to ask a Spaniard his age outright, and they always resent it—he answered, with a shrug of his shoulders: "I concede to eighty years, senor."—California Letter.

THE EFFECT OF HEATS upon animals have recently been the subject of a number of curious experiments made in France by Claude Bernard. Heat, it appears, when it reaches to a high degree, operates like poison, destroying feeling and motion, arresting the action of the heart and circulation, and thus necessarily producing death. The degree of heat which must not be exceeded is from 115 to 120 degrees Fahrenheit for cold-blooded animals, 129 to 131 degrees for mammalia, and 140 to 144 degrees for birds. In each separate case the maximum differs by a few degrees only from the normal temperature of the animals. The precise action of the heat upon the blood is thus described:

The blood of an animal killed by heat becomes black, and the oxygen it contains is rapidly transformed into carbonic acid, and finally disappears. This change, however, is not a true toxical action, but rather an excitement of the vital properties of the red particles. The black blood of a rabbit killed by heat is still living, will absorb oxygen by contact with the air, and again will become ruddy. Between 107 and 190 degrees, however, the blood coagulates, loses its vital properties, and cannot again become red. Above a certain degree heat kills the muscles without killing the blood. The chemical character of the poisoning of the muscles by heat has not been ascertained, and the phenomena accompanying the muscular rigidity and abolition of motion remain to be analyzed.

—The Kennebec Journal contains the following incident: An old farmer in the vicinity of Augusta, about twenty years ago, after concluding a "trade" for a large bill of goods with an Agusta dealer in furniture, as he was about to drive off, hailed the furniture dealer with, "If yer will throw in a looking-glass, I will bring yer down a barrel of nice apples." The mirror was "thrown in," and this was the last seen of the farmer until a few days since, when an aged farmer backed his "apple cart" up to the sidewalk opposite the furniture store, now occupied by sons of the former owner, opened the door and shouted, "Here's your apples!" The surprise of the sons was great; but the father, who was present, remembered the circumstances of the trade and heartily greeted his old acquaintance, who, after a lapse of twenty years, had not forgotten his promise.

—John Gilvie, of Decatur, helped to get a safe out of the ruins on South Water Street, near the Union depot, Chicago. Some men had got the safe nearly up on the side, when it slipped back. This man came along and asked what was the matter, and one of them said it had slipped off the rollers. He said, "Get out of my way," and seizing it like Samson lifted it up, walked to the wagon with it, ten or twelve feet, and threw it on the wagon. The proprietor said it weighed 2,464 pounds. The man then offered to bet $500 that he could lift and carry 3,000 pounds. He is about five feet, ten or eleven inches high, weighs, perhaps, 260 pounds, is built like a Hercules, and about thirty-eight years old. He is a boss bricklayer.

—A correspondent who was at the Bangor railway celebration, describes how the rations gave out, and at a way station how all hands made a rush for a small restaurant. Twelve ex-Congressmen got some clam-chowder, whereupon a newspaper man, "who did not fear punishment after death," shouted "all aboard." The congressmen ran for the train; the newspaper man for the chowder. He also describes how on this occasion, Hon. George Washington Warren, President of the Bunker Hill Monument Association, breakfasted on one cracker and eleven gallons of water.

—The Louisville Ledger calls Butler "Our Later Jonas," because "he is entirely swallowed up by the fish business."

BUCHU

[From Dispensatory of the United States.]

DIOSMA CRENATA — BUCHU LEAVES.

PROPERTIES.—Their odor is strong, diffusive and somewhat aromatic; their taste bitterish and analogous to mint.

MEDICAL PROPERTIES AND USES.—Buchu leaves are gently stimulant, with a peculiar tendency to the Urinary Organs.

They are given in complaints of the Urinary Organs, such as Gravel, Chronic Catarrh of the Bladder, Morbid Irritation of the Bladder and Urethra, Disease of the Prostrate Gland, and Retention or Incontinence of Urine, from a loss of tone in the parts concerned in its evacuation. The remedy has also been recommended in Dyspepsia, Chronic Rheumatism, Cutaneous Affections and Dropsy.

In affections peculiar to Females, the Extract Buchu is unequalled by any other remedy, as in Chlorosis or Retention, Irregularity, Painfulness or Suppression of Customary Evacuations, Ulcerated or Schirrous State of the Uterus.

DISEASES OF THE BLADDER, KIDNEYS, GRAVEL AND DROPSICAL SWELLINGS.—This medicine increases the power of Digestion, and excites the Absorbents into healthy action, by which the Watery or Calcareous depositions and all Unnatural Enlargements are reduced, as well as Pains and Inflammation.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU has cured every case of Diabetes in which it has been given. Irritation of the Neck of the Bladder and Inflammation of the Kidneys, Ulceration of the Kidneys and Bladder, Retention of Urine, Diseases of the Prostrate Gland, Stone in the Bladder, Calculus, Gravel, Brick-Dust Deposit and Mucous or Milky Discharges, and for enfeebled and delicate constitutions of both sexes, attended with the following ing symptoms: Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Horror of Diseases, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Pain in the Back, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Eruption on the Face, Pallid Countenance, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, etc.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is Diuretic and Blood-Purifying, and cures all diseases arising from habits of dissipation, excesses and imprudences in life, impurities of the Blood, etc., superceding Copaiba and other Nauseous Compounds.

Beware of counterfeits. Ask for Helmbold's. Take no other.

Price $1.25 per Bottle, or 6 Bottles for $6.50.

MANHOOD

IN THE

Young and Rising Generation.

The vegetable powers of life are strong, but in a few years how often the pallid hue, the lack-lustre eye and emaciated form, and the impossibility of application to mental effort, show their baneful influence. It soon becomes evident to the observer that some depressing influence is checking the development of the body. Consumption is stealing off, and perhaps the youth is removed from school and sent into the country. This is one of the worst movements. Removed from ordinary diversions of the ever-changing scenes of the city, the powers of the body, too much enfeebled to give zest to healthful and rural exercise, thoughts are turned inwardly upon themselves.

If the patient be a female the approach of the menses is looked for with anxiety as the first symptom in which nature is to show her saving power in diffusing the circulation and visiting the cheek with the bloom of health. Alas! increase of appetite has grown by what it is fed on. The energies of the system are prostrated, and the whole economy is deranged. The beautiful and wonderful period in which body and mind undergo so fascinating a change from child to woman, is looked for in vain. The parent's heart bleeds in anxiety, and fancies the grave but waiting for its victim.

TRY HELMBOLD'S

EXTRACT BUCHU

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is used by persons from the ages of 18 to 25, and from 35 to 55, or in the decline or change of life; after Confinement or Labor Pains; Bed-Wetting in children.

For Weakness Arising from Excesses or Early Indiscretion,

attended with the following symptoms: Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, General Weakness, Horror of Disease, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Dreadful Horror of Death, Night Sweats, Cold Feet, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Languor, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, Often Enormous Appetite with Dyspeptic Symptoms, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Pallid Countenance and Eruptions on the Face, Pain in the Back, Heaviness of the Eyelids, Frequently Black Spots Flying before the Eyes, with Temporary Suffusion and Loss of Sight, Want of Attention, Great Mobility, Restlessness, with Horror of Society. Nothing is more desirable to such Patients than Solitude, and nothing they more dread, for fear of themselves; no repose of matter, no earnestness, no speculation, but a hurried transition from one question to another.

THESE SYMPTOMS, IF ALLOWED TO GO ON—WHICH THIS MEDICINE INVARIABLY REMOVES — SOON FOLLOW LOSS OF POWER, FATUITY AND EPILEPTIC FITS, IN ONE OF WHICH THE PATIENT MAY EXPIRE.

During the Superintendence of Dr. Wilson at the Bloomingdale Asylum, this sad result occurred to two patients. Reason has for a time left them, and both died of epilepsy. They were of both sexes, and about twenty years of age.

Who can say that these excesses are not frequently followed by those direful diseases, Insanity and Consumption? The records of the Insane Asylums, and the melancholy deaths of Consumption, bear ample witness to the truth of these assertions. In Lunatic Asylums the most melancholy exhibitions appear. The countenance is actually sodden and quite destitute; neither mirth nor grief ever visits it. Should a sound of the voice occur it is rarely articulate.

"With woful measures wan despair
Low sullen sounds their grief beguile."

While we regret the existence of the above diseases and symptoms, we are prepared to offer an invaluable gift of chemistry for the removal of the consequences.

HELMBOLD'S

Fluid Extract of Buchu.

There is no tonic like it. It is an anchor of hope to the physician and patient. This is the testimony of all who have used or prescribed it.

Beware of counterfeits and those cheap decoctions called Buchu, most of which are prepared by self-styled doctors, from deleterious ingredients, and offered for sale at "less price" and "larger bottles," etc. They are unreliable and frequently injurious. Ask for Helmbold's. Take no other.

The Daily Chronicle.

Portsmouth, N. H.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 1, 1871.

SOUTH CAROLINA.—Attorney-General Akerman has arrived in Washington City from Yorkville, S. C., in which neighborhood he had been for the past three weeks. He reports that the accounts of the stampede of the citizens from the counties in which the habeas corpus is suspended have been greatly exaggerated, and that instead of five hundred persons having left York county since the President's proclamation of the 17th, probably less than one-half that number have gone. Many of the absentees took their departure before either proclamation was issued or any arrests by the aid of the military power were attempted, fleeing from a mere sense of their own guilt and lack of courage to meet the consequences of their actions. The effect of the President's proclamation, followed as they have been by the prompt and vigorous movements of both military and civil officers, has been to completely put an end to the Ku-Klux reign of terror in the disturbed districts, and restore safety to life and property. In York and Spartanburg counties about one hundred arrests had been made up to Friday night, the prisoners being in the custody of the civil authorities. One entire klan surrendered voluntarily, alleging that they had been compelled to take up the organization for self-protection. Most of those who are now in custody are poor whites who abuse their leaders soundly for having led them into trouble and then deserting them in face of arrest and punishment. The evidence which will be produced on the trials, soon to begin at Columbia, will be interesting and also conclusive of the guilt of many of the indicted parties. Mr. Akerman, during his stay in South Carolina, received assurances from many prominent citizens opposed to the administration, of their great satisfaction at the work which it is prosecuting in that State.

Correspondence.

PORTLAND, Oct. 30.

The session of the Grand Lodge of Good Templars of Maine held here last Thursday and Friday was one of the most important ever transpiring. The result was a decision in favor of more active measures. The Committee appointed to secure additional legislation at the Maine Legislature next January are Hon. Nelson Dingley, Jr., the able editor of the Lewiston Journal, Hon. Joshua Nye, the leader of Temperance in the State, and Rev. O. M. Cousens, the head of the Cold Water Templars, the children's organization. The idea is to have a law passed making the sheriffs a constabulary force, which shall be under the personal control of the Governor. The local authorities in the cities and towns being inefficient from local considerations, it is thought the proposed plan will be acceptable, as it does not create new officers, only enlarging the duties of existing ones—the sheriffs. The remarks of Gov. Perham at the temperance meeting, Friday evening, were excellent and judicious. His position is that the present laws regarding liquor selling are sufficient, covering all the established principles of prohibition, and also that they are executed up to the standard of public opinion. The only way to have a more rigid execution is to bring public sentiment up to a higher standard. He advocates a temperance revival, one that will produce substantial results and ensure the still more effectual execution of the laws. The R. G. W. T. Rev. John Russell of Michigan, the Head Centre of the Good Templars in North America, also spoke, taking extreme radical ground, advocating not only moral suasion, temperance revivals, organizations, use of pulpit, press and schools, as the others also do, but proclaimed the necessity for a new independent national temperance party in all the states, of course including New Hampshire, no matter if the Republican and Democratic parties were broken up. He severely criticised "the moderate policy" and while he said many good things, yet he injured his influence by his impracticability. He is a bold, earnest, rapid, argumentative, plausible speaker, with full voice and gesture, and in these respects is just the man for a leader, although if he was less headstrong and more sagacious in his methods he would accomplish greater results. It is better to persuade than to drive people, and it is better to use consideration and shape existing circumstances by wise and progressive moderation than to rush headlong blindly in the dark, demanding radicalism or nothing, usually wrecking the cause upon unforeseen breakers. It was understood that R. G. W. T. Rev. John Russell, previous to the meeting, declared his intention to "go for" Gov. Perham and friends because he had not followed the dictation of "the extreme radicals" and because he had preferred to be moderate and accomplish good results as he has, rather than to attempt impossible things and wreck the cause. "The best possible is the possible best for the present." Retrogression must follow impracticable radicalism, for in this extensive congregation of millions, there are many men of many minds and even in the temperance ranks there are "moderate" as well as "rapid" movers, "sagacious" as well as "bold" leaders. The race is not always to the "swift nor the battle to the strong." Results best follow "the slow and sure policy."

Portland has done handsomely for the Chicago, Michigan and Wisconsin sufferers, giving $20,000 to Chicago and $6000 to the other States, besides clothing, dry goods, provisions, and other needed articles. The Reception Hall of the city building is the headquarters of the Ladies' Aid Association. It is a lovely place and the noble ladies have devoted themselves like heroines to the good work.

Portland is one of the best favored places in fall and winter for first class evening entertainments. No city of its size takes such an interest in musical and literary matters. The City Hall is such a magnificent auditorium that it is perfectly delightful to pass one's evenings there now and then. This season we are to have a large number of amusements. The Mercantile Library Association with commendable enterprise opened on Wednesday evening last with Gough. Next Wednesday, Nov. 1st, the distinguished French author and teacher, Rev. M. Athanese Coquerel of Paris gives the second lecture "The Two Seiges of Paris"—a great treat; to be followed by Beecher, Schurz, Chapin, James T. Fields, Rev. C. G. Ames, David A. Wells, and Curtis, and then comes a supplementary course by ladies, a novel experiment—Mrs. Emily Shaw Foreman, Miss Kate Stanton, Mrs. Celia Burleigh, Miss Kate Reignolds, Mrs. Victoria C. Woodhull. If that don't draw then nothing will. Altogether it will be the finest series of "lectures" ever given here. SANCHO.

Political.

Garret Davis has made a ten-column speech in favor of Millard Fillmore for President.

The Cincinnati Commercial says: "The elections this Fall are favorable to the Democrats. That is to say, the Democrats are being beaten so thoroughly this year, that it seems fairly possible they may next year have a measure of political wisdom larger than they have latterly been accustomed to."

The Democratic return judge of Franklin County, Penn., has backed down from the position originally taken by him, and has given the certificate of election to J. M. Weakley, the Republican candidate for Senator, declaring him to have a majority of 803. The return judge of Westmoreland will no doubt follow suit before the Supreme Court compels him to.

Democrats who have sufficiently recovered from astonishment at their late overwhelming defeat in California, are still trying to account for that phenomenon. The latest essay is from a correspondent of the World, whose first charge is that the result was chiefly owing to "the enormous use of money by the Radicals;" and it is further alleged that $200,000 was used, and that "purchasable material" was uncommonly plenty in California at the late election. In other words, Democrats were very cheap this year; $200,000 was sufficient to purchase seven or eight thousand of them. That correspondent proves too much.

On Tuesday, Nov. 7th, elections are to be held in nine States. Illinois elects two members of Congress and local officers; Maryland a Governor, State officers and Legislature; Massachusetts the same; Minnesota the same; Mississippi elects a Legislature only; New Jersey a Governor and Legislature; New York elects State officers and Legislature, and Virginia a Legislature.

The following is from a Washington special to the Tribune:—Estimates made of the probable results of the coming November elections figure considerably in large Republican gains. In Wisconsin Mr. Washburn will have an increased majority of over 5000. It is believed that he will carry even the city of Milwaukee. Minnesota reports estimate an additional thousand to the usual Republican majority. In Illinois Gen. Brogsdale's majority will be nearly as large as that of Gen. Logan. In Mississippi 20,000 majority on the total for Legislature is the lowest estimate yet made. New Jersey Republicans assert that they will carry the State by 5000. The last report made to the Republican Executive Committee of New York is more encouraging than the preceding one.

ARIZONA is said to be the destination of Brigham Young. Mayor Wells of Salt Lake City, one of the parties arrested on a charge of murder, was admitted to bail in order that the peace and quiet of the city might be preserved under his administration.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

THE DOMESTIC SEWING MACHINE.—Since the Domestic Sewing Machine was awarded the "First Premium" at the late State Fair at Dover, the rush for them has been even greater than ever; Mr. E. A. Joy, the fortunate Agent, whose rooms are adjoining our office, is unable to set them up as fast as they are called for, notwithstanding he has lately employed an able assistant. Everybody who buys a "Domestic" seems happy. At the State Fair it was found to be the only Machine in the world having self adjusting tensions. It was in operation four days, using all kinds of thread on all sorts of goods, without any change of tensions. If you don't examine it before purchasing any other, you will wish you had.

The best article in use—the Halford Leicestershire Table Sauce. Every family into which it has been introduced is its reference. The parties who purchase once become constant customers. You had better go without any one article for the table than the Halford.

IT IS SAID that if a puff of air were to be blown into a vein of an animal, death would instantaneously follow, because circulation would be stopped. The blood makes the entire circuit of the human body every seven minutes, and whenever this circulation is impeded or any of its channels are clogged by impurities which ought to be carried off, disease follows—fever or a disorder of liver or kidneys, or scrofula, or dyspepsia. To get at and remove the source of the difficulty use the old and infallible blood purifier, DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA VINEGAR BITTERS. o21 4w

Have you a severe wrench or sprain? Have you rheumatism in any form? Have you stiff neck, or bunches caused by rheumatic pains? If so "Johnson's Anodyne Liniment" is a specific remedy, and is also the best pain killer in the world.

We often see large stocks of cattle which do not seem to thrive, and come out "spring poor," all for want of something to start them in the right direction. One dollars' worth of Sheridan's Cavalry Condition Powders, given to such as stock occasionally during the winter, would be worth more than an extra half ton of hay.

Sinking Fast.

Pale, miserable, discouraged, without relish for food, without energy enough for exertion, yet with no acute pain, or other special indication of disease, how often do we see feeble invalids fading as it were out of life, without any apparent cause. We say of them that they are "sinking fast," or "sinking gradually," as the case may be. But there is no good reason why they should sink at all. Persons in this dead-alive state simply want invigorating and vitalizing. Nature, in a state of torpor, demands help. Bring out the reserve of vitality in the system, brace the nerves, tone the stomach, break up the morbid trance of body and mind with a course of HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS. It can be done. It has been done in thousand of instances. The effect upon the enervated frame is electric. Never give up, however languid and broken down. Remember that for the exhausted, the debilitated, the desponding, this powerful vegetable restorative is a genuine elixir. It is not a mere stimulant that provokes a transient flash of vigor in the system, and then leaves it in a more depressed condition than before. It removes the causes of debility by altering the secretion, and regulating the action of the internal organs, as well as reenforcing them. It is a particularly valuable medicine at this season, because it is an antidote to the malaria which produces intermittent fever, bilious colic and other disorders of the bowels prevalent in the fall.

1871. LYCEUM COURSE. 1872

IN arranging the programme for a course of Popular Lectures, Readings, &c., to be given in the

Universalist Church

for the season of 1871—2, the committee believe this list has the largest number of distinguished names ever offered to the Portsmouth public, and that the Course will present attractions not surpassed in point of interest and variety. They will appear in the order announced:

NOV. 2, Maj. Gen. JUDSON KILPATRICK. Subject: "The American Stump." A new, instructive and amusing lecture.

NOV. 9, Rev. W. H. H. MURRAY. Subject: "Deacons." A new lecture.

NOV. 16, JAMES T. FIELDS. Subject: "A Plea for Cheerfulness."

NOV. 23, GEORGE WILLIAM CURTIS. Subject: "Women in the Old time and the New."

NOV. 30, REV. S. H. MCCOLLESTER. Subject: "Athens and Greece."

DEC. 7, Rev. WILLIAM R. NICHOLSON, D. D. Subject: "Civilization and Poverty."

DEC. 14, Rev. E. E. HALE. Subject: "He Did his Level Best," A Story. This is an entirely new feature, arranged especially for Lyceums, and has proved to be an exceedingly attractive one.

Dec. 21, Mrs. MARY A. LIVERMORE. Subject: "What shall we do with our Daughters?"

JAN. 4, PROF. MOSES T. BROWN, and DR. J. H. WILLCOX.

Entertainment: Organ Concert, Miscellaneous Readings, by Prof. Brown, from favorite authors, with some character sketches.

Organ Recitals by Dr. Willcox performed on the fine new organ recently placed in this church.

JAN. 11, Prof. C. H. HITCHCOCK. Subject: "Life above the Clouds; or, Mt. Washington in Midwinter," illustrated with noted Stereoscopic Views of frost work, exhibited by the aid of a Stereoptican and Calcium Light.

The organ will be exhibited each evening.

TICKETS for this Course are now ready, at the stores of Messrs. Shores, Preston, Thacher and Hill.

PRICE $1,50 FOR THE COURSE.

No single evening tickets will be issued.

As the number to be sold is limited to the comfortable seating capacity of the church, those desiring to attend should secure their tickets without delay, as a large number are already taken up.

Ushers will be in attendance each evening. sept 16

Business Change.

As announced in our advertising columns, Mr. Daniel E. Leavitt retires from the Boot & Shoe business at No. 24 Market Street, having disposed of his stock and good will in trade to Nowell & Co. The latter firm is a new one, have consolidated the business of Charles E. Shedd & Co. and Mr. Leavitt, and offer the combined stock of the two establishments at cost. Fred D. Nowell is the son of Thos. S. Nowell, Esq., the well known boot and shoe manufacturer. Mr. Charles E. Shedd, who is associated with him, will have the management of the business, and will be pleased to meet all his old friends at the new store, which, after the old stock is closed out, is to be remodeled and refitted in keeping to compare well with any first-class retail store in our largest cities. We wish the new firm the greatest success, knowing that it will be merited if strict attention to business and accommodation will bring it.

More Light.

A Kittery correspondent informs us that "the streets of this village are now lighted, and a great convenience it will be when the travelling becomes bad,—for we do have bad travelling sometimes, even in Kittery. Mr. Shannon first got subscriptions enough to pay for lighting the main street, towards Portsmouth, and then Thomas Murray, Esq., secured contributions amounting to about $120, which has been used to banish darkness from the lower way towards Spruce Creek. I am informed that two lights are to be placed in that dismal and somewat dangerous locality, 'Rice's Hollow,' (than which no place for miles around is more in need of lighting on dark nights,) by the navy yard officials; if this is correct, travellers will hereafter be able to drive confidently through the hollow, instead of having as heretofore to creep down the hills on either side under painful apprehensions of tumbling into the brook at the bottom,—apprehensions which have more than once been realized."

Brutishness.

People of the Sixteen String Jack variety began to make their appearance hereabouts shortly after sunset of Monday, and the later trains brought additions to their force. Unsuspicious people smelled no rat but the initiated talked much. At the depot they openly skirmished, hoping to draw a crowd from which to reap a harvest of wallets—but it didn't go down. Then they rambled about town and materially diminished the stock of vile whiskey in various barrooms, contenting themselves with sheering tumblers about in close proximity to each other's craniums. Rome howled and "rum did it." The dispensers of liquids had a busy time dodging the missiles and administering to the craving desires of their customers. Dame Rumor circulated conflicting stories, to wit; That Brigham Young had arrived incog. and that the swaggering fellows were his wives in disguise; That they were builders of railroads, under contract to finish the route from this city to Dover ere morn; That they were in search of the Kittery correspondent of the down-east papers, that justice might be meted out unto him; That they were Fenians who had not seen anything green since the 12th of July; That they had been detailed by the new Navy Yard manager for special duty there, for the purpose of keeping off all Republicans who might otherwise succeed in carrying Ward One for the straight Republican ticket. But, alas! all guessed wide of the mark! The plugs concentrated at daybreak of Tuesday, steam tug Clara Bateman was ready for departure and away went every mother's son of them to Gerrish's Island.

Then the secret was out. The scores of ruffians had congregated to witness—a couple of dog fights. Two powerful canines fought brutally for three hours and forty minutes; two other dogs fought for two hours and two minutes—and the show was over. The roughs had gratified their brutish natures—some had lost money and others had gained it. The thousand acres of which the island is composed was knee deep with growls, curses and tobacco juice. And God made these men! Did he?

The trial of Michael Howard for murder will probably be concluded this morning.

Clothing

For the sufferers by the fires in Wisconsin and Michigan may be left with Mr. A. H. Tucker, (at No. 12 Market Street,) who will promptly forward it.

Mr. J. S. Montgomery,

The well-known professor of penmanship, has elegantly engrossed the names of the donors of the carriage presented to Hon. Frank Jones, and the document has been fitted in a beautiful frame. It is to be on exhibition in the window of Foster Shores & Co., Congress Block.

New Publications.

The November number of The Technologist contains illustrated articles on various subjects pertaining to engineering, manufacturing and building.

GOVERNOR BULLOCK of Georgia has resigned.

BASE BALL.—The Athletics of Philadelphia defeated the White Stockings of Chicago, by a score of 4 to 1. It probably decides the national championship in favor of the Athletics. The Boston nine stands second and Chicago third.

THE HAVERHILL BULLETIN says Mr. Daniel Niles, proprietor of Niles' Express from Dover, is a truly remarkable man from the fact that he always minds his own business to the exclusion of others. In another respect he is remarkable. He goes through Exeter and Haverhill on his way to and from Boston some half a dozen times per week, in which places as a stage driver he used to stop thirty years ago. Yet he has never visited them since the cars ran through from Boston to Dover. When he was a young man, fifty-five years ago, he came to Portsmouth for the first time, arriving here after dark. Going to Spring market, he bought a ton and a half of fish and loaded them before going to bed. Rising early, he ate his breakfast by candle light and drove out of town before daybreak, and has never been here since, although he resides within about ten miles of the city.

PORTLAND, during the last two years has lost a large and important industry. That city for a long time was a depot for sugar and molasses from Cuba, but the importation of these articles has now nearly ceased. Every year a hundred and fifty cargoes of molasses were brought to Portland, to be used in refining sugar; but the manufacture of sugar in that city has been abandoned. The refining of sugar is chiefly carried on in Philadelphia, New York, Baltimore and Boston, there being engaged in the business fifty firms, employing an aggregate capital of twenty-five million dollars. The refining of sugar has recently been greatly extended in Glasgow, Scotland, and the manufacturers of that city are beginning to compete with the sugar makers of the United States. In consequence of the new and superior machinery and low wages in Scotland, the refiners of Glasgow, it is stated, can afford to pay freight, insurance and duty, and still make a profit on their importations into the United States.

IMPOSTORS. — The success which Helmbold's Extract Buchu has attained during the past twenty years has induced many unprincipled parties to imitate it. Physicians now almost universally prescribe "Helmbold's Buchu," on account of its purity and known value, established after standing the test and severe criticism of the most eminent professors of pharmacy throughout this country and Europe. The Buchu, as prepared by Dr. Helmbold, is all that is needed. Every bottle of the Extract has full directions for its use. A medicine bearing the unqualified indorsement of such men as Dr. Physic, Prof. Dewes, Dr. Ephraim McDowell and Prof. Travers, of the Royal College of Surgeons, cannot fail to find its way to the confidence of millions of families. Among the many advertised remedies, none more fully and faithfully carry out all that is claimed for it than the above-named deservedly popular medicine. As a curative power of all Diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder, Female Weakness, Gravel, Dropsy, Dyspepsia, and other complaints consequent upon irregular habits, there is nothing to equal it. There are numberless concoctions called Fluid Extract Buchu; hence our friends in purchasing should be careful to ask for and get none other than Helmbold's. Dr. Helmbold's Drug and Chemical Warehouse is located at 594 Broadway, N. Y.—N. Y. Eve. Globe.

—The chesnut roasters still go about the streets. One great advantage of roasting chesnuts is the rich gamey flavor it gives the worm.—Norwich Bulletin.

—A robber, who confronted Andrew Stever of Delphos, Ohio, on Saturday night, with a revolver, in his own house, was stabbed to death. The coroner's jury exonerated Stever.

Morning Chronicle.

The Origin of the Clam Bake.

A correspondent of the Albany Argus, writing from Watch Hill, gives the following result of his historical researches into the origin of the clam bake. It is needless to point out the Dutch prejudices that deform this paper, which certainly shows ingenuity and industry, and also some appreciation of the civilizing influences under which the writer has been brought by his sojourn in our borders, but which is lamentably defective in some of its facts and inferences:

"The people of New England have sedulously kept out of sight the origin of the clam bake. They even affect to trace it to the Indians! They are experts in the fabrication of history, and the most remarkable illustrations of their inventiveness is to be found in the traditions they have manufactured, or have ingeniously mutilated. But this Indian theory is too thin! In the old days of the Puritans there was one thing more indigestible than their theology—and that was the cookery of New England. Predestination and free will are hard nuts to crack; the problems of grace and election find no solvents in the juices of the brain; and men are still "wrestling with the hash" of theology. (I use the last poetic phrase) as eagerly and as satisfactorily as when two hundred years ago it was first cut up. More indigestible than all this logomachy were the compounds prepared for the human stomach. It is true that saleratus, which now depopulates these States, was not yet invented for the kitchen. But the fish-ball, more fatal than the Minnie, was an early device; and doughnuts and biscuits were poured in volleys as from a mitrailleuse.

Voltaire speaks of England as possessing seventeen religions and only one sauce. New England multiplied the creeds and spoiled the one sauce. With singular ingenuity her cooks found out twenty ways of boiling flour without biting on the way to make bread! Biscuits, doughnuts, waffles, pan-cakes, turn-overs, top-covers, johnny-cakes, &c., to this day present their insoluble mysteries to the imporverished gastric juices of the people. New England was not alone in these horrors. Do we not know that the peculiar expression of the mouth of G. Washington (Pater Patriæ) came from the loss of his teeth! His masticators, carious and precarious, dental and accidental, were undermined by the atrocious cookery of Virginia, before he exposed them to certain ruin during his brief sojourn in Massachusetts. Sparks, who eviscerated from Washington's correspondence all unkind allusions to New England, has extracted the passages on this subject with a forceps. But why this coincidence in cookery between such opposites as the Old Dominion and the Bay State? It is known that the Mayflower, after landing the Pilgrims at Plimouth Rock, engaged in the slave-trade. May not the secret of indigestion, whispered by one of the saints, have found its way to the Guinea coast and thence to a Virginia kitchen.

But without solving that question, it is enough to know that the effects of the diet inflicted on the early colonists in this quarter were manifest at once. The weekly sermons were hot and heavy; and so was the daily meal—and as sour and indigestible. The women first suffered from it. Their tempers became acid and their tongues ran wild. The tribe of lecturers, who now wander from village to village, egotistic and ill-tempered, are the insipid descendants of those viragos who scolded and cooked for the early settlers. The husbands fled to the only refuge left open to man—the sea. Those who had boats stayed away for indefinite periods—fishing. It is the resource of the hen-pecked to this day.

Others, believing any bark better than the domestic bite, desperately set out on rafts and perished. It was in some storm on the coast that a fisherman, cast on shore, discovered the true method of cooking clams,—the fire on the beach, the heated stones, the clams and the superposed ears of corn, with the seaweed covering that made up the contrivance of an oven. He tasted and ate; and for the first time realized that the human mouth was made for a higher purpose than feminine scolding or the mastication of absolute dishes. Returning, the shipwrecked mariner told with gusto the story of his discovery. On all sides men rushed to sea, tempted the reef and breakers and fatal coast. At home when they called for bread they were offered a stone! Could the rocks be worse, with a prospect of clams beyond? Wreck followed wreck; but the cast-away crews always came home fat and sleek, and with countenances glowing with secret satisfaction. It was noticed, too, that they put to sea again at once.

It was the story over again, which the gentle Elia has told of the discovery and developement of roast pig—with this variation, that the Yankee did what John Chinaman never thought of—he at last insured his craft, before running it ashore. To this day his descendants, with filial reverence, preserve the custom. The light-house keepers tell me some singular stories on this subject; and I have come to the conclusion that there is no place in the country so fatal to all who navigate as this rock-bound coast—except the Erie Canal. Viewed from the Canal Appraiser's office, the waters of the Erie and Champlain are disastrous indeed; and no wealth of the State is hardly sufficient to repair damages which the raging canal inflicts on the hardy men who navigate its waters—claimants who annually deposit the story of their hardships and sufferings among its archives."

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs,

No. 78 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of invention, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity of a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents.

"Mr. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability in this part, induces me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges.

A GREAT MEDICAL DISCOVERY!

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA

VINEGAR BITTERS.

Hundreds of Thousands Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.

WHAT ARE THEY!

THEY ARE NOT A VILE FANCY DRINK,

Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Root and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and a LIFE-GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to direction and remain long unwell, provided the bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the stomach and stimulate the torpid liver and bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effect.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins, cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

PIN, TAPE and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. For full directions, read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French and Spanish.

FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal. ☞ Send for a circular.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs. 1yrdawfeb16

The Cause and Cure of Consumption.

The primary cause of Consumption is derangement of the digestive organs. The derangement produces deficient nutrition and assimilation. By assimilation I mean that process by which that nutriment of the food is converted into blood, and thence into the solids of the body. Persons with digestion thus impaired, having the slightest predisposition to pulmonary disease, or if they take cold, will be very liable to have Consumption of the Lungs in some of its forms; and I hold that it will be impossible to cure any case of consumption without first restoring a good digestion and healthy assimilation. The very first thing to be done is to cleanse the stomach and bowels from all disease; mucous and slime which is clogging these organs so that they cannot perform their functions, and then rouse up and restore the liver to a healthy action. For this purpose, the surest and best remedy is SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS. These Pills cleanse the stomach and bowels of all the disease and morbid slime that is causing disease and decay in the whole system. They will clear out the liver of all diseased bile that has accumulated there, and arouse it up to a new and healthy action, by which natural and healthy bile is secreted.

The stomach, bowels and liver are thus cleansed by the use of Schenck's Mandrake Pills, but there remains in the stomach an excess of acid, the organ is torpid, and the appetite is poor. In the bowels, the lacteals are weak, and requiring strength and support. It is a most fortunate thing that Schenck's Seaweed Tonic proves to be the most valuable remedy ever discovered. It is alkaline, and is the best antidote to all excess of acid, invigorating the stomach sweet and fresh; it will give permanent tone to this important organ, and create a good, hearty appetite, and prepare the system for the first process of a good digestion, and ultimately make good, healthy, living blood. After this preparatory treatment, what remains to cure most cases of consumption is the free and persevering use of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup. The Pulmonic Syrup nourishes the system, purifies the blood, and is readily absorbed into the circulation, and thence distributed to the diseased lungs. There it ripens all morbid matters, whether in the form of abscesses or tubercles. Nature then begins to expel all the diseased matter in the form of free expectoration, when once it ripens. It is then, by the great healing and purifying properties of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, that all ulcers and cavities are healed up sound, and my patient is cured.

The essential thing to be done in curing Consumption is to get up a good appetite and a good digestion, so that the body will grow in flesh and get strong. If a person has diseased lungs, a cough or abscess there, the cavity must heal, the matter cannot ripen, so long as the system is below par. What is necessary to cure is a new order of things, a good digestion, good nutrition, the body to grow in flesh and get fat; then Nature is helped, the cavities will heal, the matter will ripen and be thrown off in large quantities, and the person regains health and strength. This is the true and only plan to cure Consumption, and if a person is very bad, if the lungs are most entirely destroyed, or even if one lung is entirely gone, if there is enough vitality left in the other to heal up, there is hope.

I have seen many persons cured with only one sound lung, live and enjoy life to a good old age. This is what Schenck's medicines will do to cure Consumption. They will cleanse the stomach, bowels and liver, give strength to the stomach, get up a good digestion, and give Nature the assistance she needs to clear the system of all the disease that is in the lungs, whether the lungs are sound or not.

It is important that, while using Schenck's medicines, care should be exercised not to take cold; keep the feet warm, and the system healthy, avoid night air, and take out-door exercise only in a genial and warm sunshine.

I wish it distinctly understood that when I recommend a patient to be careful in regard to taking cold while using my medicines, I do so for a special reason. A man who has but partially recovered from the effects of a cold is more liable to a relapse than one who has been entirely cured, and it is precisely the same in regard to consumption. So long as the lungs are partially healed, just so long it is there in imminent danger of a tail return of the disease. Hence it is that I so strenuously caution patients against taking cold during the process of the cure, an atmosphere that is not genial and pleasant. Confirmed consumptives' lungs are a mass of sores, which the slightest cold or improper air will inflame. The grand secret of my success with my medicines consists in my ability to subdue inflammation instead of lighting it, as most other medicines do. An infant lung cannot with safety to the patient be exposed to the biting blasts of winter or the chilling winds of spring or autumn. I should be severely criticised for such irritating influence. The utmost caution should be observed in this particular, as without it a cure under almost any circumstances is an impossibility.

The person should be kept on a wholesome and nutritious diet, and all the medicines continued until the body has restored to it the natural quantity of flesh and strong h.

I was myself cured by this treatment of the worst kind of Consumption, and I know of at least a hundred these many years, with one lung mostly gone. I have cured thousands since, and very many have been cured by this treatment whom I have never seen.

About the first of October I expect to take possession of my new building at the northeast corner of Sixth and Arch Streets, where I shall be pleased to give advice to all who may require it.

Full directions accompany all my remedies, so that a person in any part of the world can be readily cured by a strict observance of the same.

CHESAPEAKE & OHIOS — FIVE TWENTIES—CENTRAL PACIFICS.

BANKING OFFICE OF

FISK & HATCH,

No. 5 Nassau Street, New York.

September 25th, 1871.

OF THE FIFTEEN MILLION CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO SIX PER CENT. LOAN, but about $4,500,000 remain unsold, and this remainder will be taken up rapidly.

The five years' option having expired on all series of FIVE-TWENTY BONDS, except 1867s and 1868s, they are liable to be called in for payment. The redemption of 100 millions FIVE-TWENTIES in coin, and the purchases by the Government during the ensuing four months, with the prospective surplus, will release about 150 millions of invested capital, independently of dividend and interest payments, the greater part of which must seek reinvestment.

The Chesapeake and Ohio Sixes

have absolutely 30 years to run; are especially desirable for steady investments, and can now be bought

17 per cent. less than Ten-fortieths,
30 per cent. less than Five-twenties,
25 per cent. less than Sixes of 1881,

and are equally sure to be paid principal and interest in gold coin. Their amount is limited by the Trust Deed to $15,000,000. Price (at present) at and accrued interest, that is, with coupon attached, payable Nov. 1.

$1000 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $833.33.

$500 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $417.08.

$100 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $83.42.

Only a small amount of the latter denominations remains, and no more can be made. Bonds are in coupon or register form, same as Five-twenties.

This debt is created by the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad Company to pay for its road, and effectually to extend and complete the main line of their Road to the Ohio River. This work—the most important internal improvement now in progress in the country—is rapidly approaching completion. It will establish another and superior line of communication between the Ohio and Atlantic Cities, and bring eastern cities; bringing ten millions of people, mainly producers, nearer to the centres of consumption in the Eastern States, and nearer to the political and commercial capitals of their country. Such is the commanding importance of this Trunk Line that the larger cities of the West are seriously contemplating a connection with it, so as to avail themselves of its unequalled facilities as soon as it is completed. Large tracts of valuable coal and iron lands along its route are passed into the hands of practical miners and iron manufacturers; a large city is springing up at the western terminus, the only one to be bought in the open market, and are becoming scarcer in consequence of their gradual absorption by investors here and in Europe; they have a ready market at home at all the principal money-centres, and have twenty-four years to run; the earnings of the road are steadily increasing, and will probably by reach $10,000,000 for the current year, affording a handsome surplus after payment of expenses and interest. Present price, 90 to 92.

The Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad is completed, in 1872, and the Bonds are dealt in at the Stock Exchanges of the world, we have no quotations, but they are quoted and sold in the Central Pacifics. Both principal and interest of the CENTRAL PACIFIC and CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO BONDS are specifically payable in gold coin in New York; the interest on the former being paid January and July, and of the latter, May and November, corresponding with the two classes of Government Bonds.

We buy and sell FIVE-TWENTIES, TEN-FORTIES, EIGHTY-ONES, and CENTRAL OF WESTERN PACIFICS, or receive them in payment for CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO BONDS at their current market price.

Orders for Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds, accompanied with Drafts or Checks, may be forwarded to us by mail. Bonds or money may be forwarded by any responsible Express Company at our expense, and the Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds, in exchange, will be sent by return Express, charges paid. FISK & HATCH.

P. S.—Accounts of Banks, Bankers and others received, on which we allow Four Per Cent. interest.

Certificates of deposit issued and collections made in all parts of the Union.

—IF SO, USE THE—

AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINT.

It is Cheaper, Handsomer and more durable than the best of other Paints. One Thousand Gallons of it were sold in this City, in the year 1870, and not one complaint has come from those who have used it; but all speak in the highest terms of its adaptedness for application, and is much easier put on than any other Paint, making a smooth, glossy surface for years, that can be cleaned with hot suds without injuring it. It is excellent for walls inside, in the place of paper.

I shall keep the reason I have for the sale of Chemical Paints of shades on hand, to accommodate customers with any amount, without delay in ordering it. Those who want to use the Chemical Paint, and have had them misrepresented by those who deal in Lead and Oil, are invited to call and examine my Paints that have been on 3 years and have faded, and you will find them as fresh as if laid but one month.

CURIOSITIES OF LITERATURE.—That "A poet is born, not made," has never received more striking illustration than in the case of a new but modest star that has recently risen in the firmament of English Literature, and the strangest thing about it in the present case is, that this is not a young and callow aspirant for the laurel crown, but an old man, whose head is silvered with the frosts of many winters; a man who (once a physician) has lived in such seclusion from the world in England, as is seldom known in this restless age. Not Thoreau's fanciful retirement was half so complete, so far as the literature of to-day is concerned. Will it be believed that this man, himself a poet of no mean ability, had never read, and had scarcely heard of the great names in song later than Milton, Dryden, and Pope! When this Rip Van Winkle of poesy came to London from his strange seclusion, to seek a publisher, chance, or Providence, sent him to a brother poet, Rossetti, of whom he had not even heard; and the young man, mentor of the white hairs, with an appreciation of excellence in another, as it is characteristic of him, after befriending the old man as best he could, introduced his volume, Madeline and other Poems to the British public, in a Review in the Academy. This strange genius is Dr. Hake. His poems are not of the highest order, but he has a genuine appreciation of nature, and some of his descriptions have a peculiar power and intensity, and sweetness and quaintness. In one called Old Souls he represents Christ as a Tinker going through the streets, calling "Old souls to mend," and the poet follows him in these wanderings, through the windings and highways of human nature, with a reverent spirit, and a delicious homeliness and directness of imagery. A poem from this writer will appear in the December number of Scribner's Monthly, with an illustration by Bolles. It is entitled The Blind Boy—A Parable, and runs through thirty-three stanzas of six lines each. The following verses give an idea of the story:

"Sister and brother, side by side,
Her eyes are bright and his are blind.
These are the gifts which they divide:
They have their thoughts and share their mind.
Darkness he gives and she gives light,
She finds the day and he the night.

* * * * * * *

"And so they prattle as they leave
The stony beach: in pensive mood
He listens as the billows heave:
She leans her vision on the wood.
And, as the honey-suckle clings,
About her arms she flings.

* * * * * * *

"The blind boy thus his sister's sight
From dawn to even fondly tasks,
And reads the world in borrowed light,
Whose errand good he freely asks
And she, to skim, all nature, piles
The infant passion of her eyes."

The same number of Scribner's will contain a poem by Mrs. Greenough (wife of the sculptor), exquisitely illustrated; also a poem by Mr. Stedman.

BUCHU

[From Dispensatory of the United States.]

DIOSMA CRENATA — BUCHU LEAVES.

PROPERTIES.—Their odor is strong, diffusive and somewhat aromatic; their taste bitterish and analogous to mint.

MEDICAL PROPERTIES AND USES.—Buchu leaves are gently stimulant, with a peculiar tendency to the Urinary Organs.

They are given in complaints of the Urinary Organs, such as Gravel, Chronic Catarrh of the Bladder, Morbid Irritation of the Bladder and Urethra, Disease of the Prostrate Gland, and Retention or Incontinence of Urine, from a loss of tone in the parts concerned in its evacuation. The remedy has also been recommended in Dyspepsia, Chronic Rheumatism, Cutaneous Affections and Dropsy.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is used by persons from the ages of 18 to 25, and from 35 to 55, or in the decline or change of life; after Confinement or Labor Pains; Bed-Wetting in children.

In affections peculiar to Females, the Extract Buchu is unequalled by any other remedy, as in Chlorosis or Retention, Irregularity, Painfulness or Suppression of Customary Evacuations, Ulcerated or Schirrous State of the Uterus.

DISEASES OF THE BLADDER, KIDNEYS, GRAVEL AND DROPSICAL SWELLINGS.—This medicine increases the power of Digestion, and excites the Absorbents into healthy action, by which the Watery or Calcareous depositions and all Unnatural Enlargements are reduced, as well as Pains and Inflammation.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU has cured every case of Diabetes in which it has been given. Irritation of the Neck of the Bladder and Inflammation of the Kidneys, Ulceration of the Kidneys and Bladder, Retention of Urine, Diseases of the Prostrate Gland, Stone in the Bladder, Calculus, Gravel, Brick-Dust Deposit and Mucous or Milky Discharges, and for enfeebled and delicate constitutions of both sexes, attended with the following ing symptoms: Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Horror of Diseases, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Pain in the Back, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Eruption on the Face, Pallid Countenance, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, etc.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is Diuretic and Blood-Purifying, and cures all diseases arising from habits of dissipation, excesses and imprudences in life, impurities of the Blood, etc., superceding Copaiba and other Nauseous Compounds.

Beware of counterfeits. Ask for Helmbold's. Take no other.

Price $1.25 per Bottle, or 6 Bottles for $6.50.

MANHOOD

IN THE

Young and Rising Generation.

The vegetable powers of life are strong, but in a few years how often the pallid hue, the lack-lustre eye and emaciated form, and the impossibility of application to mental effort, show their baneful influence. It soon becomes evident to the observer that some depressing influence is checking the development of the body. Consumption is talked of, and perhaps the youth is removed from school and sent into the country. This is one of the worst movements. Removed from ordinary diversions of the ever-changing scenes of the city, the powers of the body, too much enfeebled to give zest to healthful and rural exercise, thoughts are turned inwardly upon themselves.

If the patient be a female the approach of the menses is looked for with anxiety as the first symptom in which nature is to show her saving power in diffusing the circulation and visiting the cheek with the bloom of health. Alas! increase of appetite has grown by what it is fed on. The energies of the system are prostrated, and the whole economy is deranged. The beautiful and wonderful period in which body and mind undergo so fascinating a change from child to woman, is looked for in vain. The parent's heart bleeds in anxiety, and fancies the grave but waiting for its victim.

TRY HELMBOLD'S

EXTRACT BUCHU

For Weakness Arising from Excesses or Early Indiscretion,

attended with the following symptoms: Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, General Weakness, Horror of Disease, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Dreadful Horror of Death, Night Sweats, Cold Feet, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Languor, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, Often Enormous Appetite with Dyspeptic Symptoms, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Pallid Countenance and Eruptions on the Face, Pain in the Back, Heaviness of the Eyelids, Frequently Black Spots Flying before the Eyes, with Temporary Suffusion and Loss of Sight, Want of Attention, Great Mobility, Restlessness, with Horror of Society. Nothing is more desirable to such Patients than Solitude, and nothing they more dread, for fear of themselves; no repose of matter, no earnestness, no speculation, but a hurried transition from one question to another.

THESE SYMPTOMS, IF ALLOWED TO GO ON—WHICH THIS MEDICINE INVARIABLY REMOVES — SOON FOLLOW LOSS OF POWER, FATUITY AND EPILEPTIC FITS, IN ONE OF WHICH THE PATIENT MAY EXPIRE.

During the Superintendence of Dr. Wilson at the Bloomingdale Asylum, this sad result occurred to two patients. Reason has for a time left them, and both died of epilepsy. They were of both sexes, and about twenty years of age.

Who can say that these excesses are not frequently followed by those direful diseases, Insanity and Consumption? The records of the Insane Asylums, and the melancholy deaths of Consumption, bear ample witness to the truth of these assertions. In Lunatic Asylums the most melancholy exhibitions appears. The countenance is actually sodden and quite destitute; neither mirth nor grief ever visits it. Should a sound of the voice occur it is rarely articulate.

"With woful measures wan despair
Low sullen sounds their grief beguile."

While we regret the existence of the above diseases and symptoms, we are prepared to offer an invaluable gift of chemistry for the removal of the consequences.

HELMBOLD'S

Fluid Extract of Buchu.

There is no tonic like it. It is an anchor of hope to the physician and patient. This is the testimony of all who have used or prescribed it.

Beware of counterfeits and those cheap decoctions called Buchu, most of which are prepared by self-styled doctors, from deleterious ingredients, and offered for sale at "less price" and "larger bottles," etc. They are unreliable and frequently injurious. Ask for Helmbold's. Take no other.

Delivered to any address. Describe symptoms in all communications.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 2, 1871.

HAZING AT WEST POINT.—As negro overseers were the most cruel taskmasters, so is your cadet who entered West Point in June most bitterly harsh upon those who, entering with the fall are styl. "Seps." The grossest cases of bullying and of tyranny are invariably those practised by the "June-bugs" upon the "Seps." Instances have been given which sound really incredible. The perpetrators were quietly allowed to withdraw to save the scandal of a court of inquiry, and so the matters have dropped. The present case, however, is nothing more than an act of blackguardly torture. The culprits, all "June-bugs," took one night from his bed one of those newly arrived and led him from the building. Here a rope was placed around his neck, the rope thrown over a tree, and the unlucky victim was then hoisted, kept hanging nearly a minute, and then lowered. Again and again was this repeated. His appeals for mercy can be easily imagined. Finally, excited, trembling, quivering in every nerve, half dead with fear, and indeed, more than half dead with pain, the poor wretch was allowed to creep back to bed. Of course the next day his condition was known, and questioning elicited the facts. A court of inquiry was organized, and, with great difficulty, succeeded in finding out what had taken place. It is always very difficult to learn anything about this sort of events, for, as an old judge-advocate formerly stationed there once remarked, "I cannot say that cadets will lie, but I must say that they are mighty economical of the truth." Enough was discovered to secure the dismissal of Cadets John W. Wilson, De Witt Clinton Frazier, Santiago F. Hubbell and John L. Stiles. Cadet Albert H. Miller is deprived of his forlough and ordered to be confined to the limits of the plain until next June, and Cadet Albert H. Hammon is also confined to the same limits until the same time. While all are willing to make due allowances for boys being boys, this piece of wanton cruelty is punished no more richly than it deserves. If some victim of these cowardly wretches would just insert a bullet into a leader in these iniquities, it might have a salutary effect on his comrades.

FASHION NOTES.—The new round hat is called the Alexis.

The basque waist is now quite in the ascendant.

The short apron front for over-skirts is still the fashionable style.

Black is the prevailing color for dresses in Paris; dark blue for the fastidious.

New clothes for wraps have a diagonal twill—like serge—and are as soft as cashmere.

The favorite design in new mantles presents two large round capes and consists of two circles.

Cloth paletots are so convenient and jaunty that they will remain in favor. Prices from $15 to $20.

Hand-made trimmings of silk for wraps, such as pleatings, marquis puffs and ruches, have gone out of fashion.

For very young misses and children there are jaunty jackets, sailor fashion, cut and made by a regular tailor.

The French neck-ties are of exquisitely tinted pale blue, delicate rose-color facing and trimmed with fine lace.

Now that the embroidered sack has become the rage the young ladies devoutly pray: Give us this day our daily braid.

India shawls of gay colors, beautifully intermingled with the exquisite coloring of Autumn leaves, scarlet green and chrome, cost from $100 to $5,000.

Gloves: French kid good, but expensive. Italian kid not to be depended upon. Delicate, quiet colors are used; prices rank according to the number of buttons—six, $3.75 a pair.

Bright and warm jackets for the house, of flannel cloth two or three red shades, scarlet, cherry or crimmon, worsted curled braid.

AT PITTSFIELD, Mass., on the 30th ult., one of the iron pillars in the high school-room fell, during a session of the school, smashing two long recitation-seats which had just been vacated by a large class. Another class was about to be called, and there are but few minutes in the day when the same accident would not kill or injure some of the scholars. The pillars are intended to support the floor above and are held only by the weight of the timbers, and this one was probably loosened by a slight settling.

IMPROMPTU.

The summer '71 lies dead,
A golden crown awaits her head;
And kindred mourners, near and far,
Heap splendors o'er her fun'ral car.

The leaves like tears of pity fall
For Terra's shrond and beauty's pall—
And softly blends the autumnal breath,
With summer's sweet and graceful death.

The south-winds linger to caress
The roses throbbing in her breast,
And in the zenith of her charms
She falls asleep in Autumn's arms!

Nor would I break this charmed sleep,
The radiance of its life to keep;
It makes the miracle so plain—
How we must die to live again!

I would—were mine the mystic power—
Recall each lost and misspent hour,
Give love for hate, and rose for thorn,
And turn to good all ill and wrong,
That mars the memory of her song.

But Summer's gorgeous wings lie furled
In nature's book shut from the world—
And tokens of another Spring
Mock all this outward perishing!

Still deeper in the earth's dark breast
Are hidden flowers by angels pressed—
Disguised in their immortal forms,
Till God recalls them to His arms!

IONE.

CHICAGO!

The glory and pride of our beautiful West—
Chicago in ashes! Its grandeur was vast!
I marvel if ever the telegraph bore
More terrible news on its swift wings before.
Such marvels of splendor, and greatness, and toil,
For the red-hand of Vulcan to mainly despoil!
Turning beauty to ashes and riches to dust,
And proving earth's treasures a dangerous trust.
To perish in flames!—with a bordering Lake
And rivers of water, sufficient to stake
A perdition of fire-fiends—was yielding to fate
With that horrid composure which terrors create.
The rivers ran molten reflecting the flame,
The Lake wore a ribbon of deep ruby stain,
The heavens like brass, and the prairie winds free
To sweep the "Doomed City" abroast with the sea.
The city we loved! In whose presence we felt
The soul of its grandeur and pride of its wealth.
Its spirit of progress inspiring all hearts
That surged in the ranks of its glorious marts—
Or throbbed to the tune which its proud pulses beat
In the glow of the soul and thrill of the feet—
And whose compact superiness of nature and art
No rival has known for its youth's counterpart!
We mourn with the manly and noble of heart
Who in moments have seen years of glory depart!
With the homeless and penniless—prostrate in hope—
Whose enterprise knew neither bound'ry nor scope—
Whose mortal achievements commend them to fame,
Tho' the works of their hands have perished in flame!
'Tis the lesson of life, on a wonderful scale,
That we gather to lose, and struggle to fall—
Still in climbing we gain some invisible height
In a spiritual way, unrevealed to the sight;
And the work of to-day, tho' dashed out of view
Shall inspire the true soul with genius anew—
And, like Phœnix of old, from its ashes arise,
To gladden the earth with a grander surprise!

Keene has organized a natural history association.

The State Fair premiums amounted to $4000, and all have been paid. The medals, costing about $1100, will soon be distributed.

The rate of taxation in Nashua this year is $24.90 a thousand. The assessor's valuation for the purpose of taxation in that city will not average one-half the real valuation; hence the apparent high rate of taxation.

The board of health of Concord has ordered very stringent measures to be taken to prevent the spread of the small pox at Fisherville, and the street where it is will be fenced up if necessary. It is feared that it will spread in spite of all efforts, for a number of grown persons and children have ignorantly exposed themselves. There are no cases in the city proper.

The Labor Reformers will hold a State Convention at Concord, December 13th.

—The Chicago Tribune gives the following as having occurred in St. Louis: "What under the sun is the matter with you, old fellow?" Individual in a hurry: "Must get that train." Other man: "Well, there is plenty of time: the train does not start for ten minutes; and besides there are several other people here who want that train." Excited individual: "I must get that train, and that's fixed. I'll get that train if it costs me my life." Other man: "What is the necessity of your reaching Chicago by this train anyway?" Man in a hurry: "I must get to Chicago to-morrow on this train, or those people up there will have built up the whole darned town again, and I won't see them ruins!"

—According to the Limerick (Ireland) Chronicle the sea-serpent has appeared to the bathers at the Irish watering-places of Kilkee. It raised its head out of water, as usual, and looked blandly at the ladies, who "nearly fainted." It was probably a female serpent, as it "wore a chignon of seaweed-looking hair, which rose and fell with the motion of the water."

—A certain individual up town, says the New York Tribune, is a striking illustration of the powers of human endurance when encouraged by suitable reward, for he not only runs a cigar store, but draws $2,500 yearly as city clock winder, doing the winding by proxy for $500 per annum.

—Hinton R. Helper writes from Buenos Ayres that in August there was a frightful prevalence of small pox. There were 26,000 deaths from yellow fever in Buenos Ayres and 30,000 in the province of Corrientes during the past summer.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

THE DOMESTIC SEWING MACHINE.—Since the Domestic Sewing Machine was awarded the "First Premium" at the late State Fair at Dover, the rush for them has been even greater than ever; Mr. E. A. Joy, the fortunate Agent, whose rooms are adjoining our office, is unable to set them up as fast as they are called for, notwithstanding he has lately employed an able assistant. Everybody who buys a "Domestic" seems happy. At the State Fair it was found to be the only Machine in the world having self adjusting tensions. It was in operation four days, using all kinds of thread on all sorts of goods, without any change of tensions. If you don't examine it before purchasing any other, you will wish you had.

IT IS SAID that if a puff of air were to be blown into a vein of an animal, death would instantaneously follow, because circulation would be stopped. The blood makes the entire circuit of the human body every seven minutes, and whenever this circulation is impeded or any of its channels are clogged by impurities which ought to be carried off, disease follows—fever or a disorder of liver or kidneys, or scrofula, or dyspepsia. To get at and remove the source of the difficulty use the old and infallible blood purifier, DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA VINEGAR BITTERS. o24 4w

Sinking Fast.

Pale, miserable, discouraged, without relish for food, without energy enough for exertion, yet with no acute pain, or other special indication of disease, how often do we see feeble invalids fading as it were out of life, without any apparent cause. We say of them that they are "sinking fast," or "sinking gradually," as the case may be. But there is no good reason why they should sink at all. Persons in this dead-alive state simply want invigorating and vitalizing. Nature, in a state of torpor, demands help. Bring out the reserve of vitality in the system, brace the nerves, tone the stomach, break up the morbid trance of body and mind with a course of HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS. It can be done. It has been done in thousand of instances. The effect upon the enervated frame is electric. Never give up, however languid and broken down. Remember that for the exhausted, the debilitated, the desponding, this powerful vegetable restorative is a genuine elixir. It is not a mere stimulant that provokes a transient flash of vigor in the system, and then leaves it in a more depressed condition than before. It removes the causes of debility by altering the secretion, and regulating the action of the internal organs, as well as reenforcing them. It is a particularly valuable medicine at this season, because it is an antidote to the malaria which produces intermittent fever, bilious colic and other disorders of the bowels prevalent in the fall.

1871. LYCEUM COURSE. 1872

IN arranging the programme for a course of Popular Lectures, Readings, &c., to be given in the

Universalist Church

for the season of 1871—2, the committee believe this list has the largest number of distinguished names ever offered to the Portsmouth public, and that the Course will present attractions not surpassed in point of interest and variety. They will appear in the order announced:

NOV. 9, Rev. W. H. H. MURRAY.
Subject: "Deacons." A new lecture.

NOV. 16, JAMES T. FIELDS.
Subject: "A Plea for Cheerfulness."

NOV. 23, GEORGE WILLIAM CURTIS.
Subject: "Women in the Old time and the New."

NOV. 30, REV. S. H. MCCOLLESTER.
Subject: "Athens and Greece."

DEC. 7, Rev. WILLIAM R. NICHOLSON, D. D.
Subject: "Civilization and Poverty."

DEC. 14, Rev. E. E. HALE.
Subject: "He Did his Level Best." A Story This is an entirely new feature, arranged especially for Lyceums, and has proved to be an exceedingly attractive one.

Dec. 21, Mrs. MARY A. LIVERMORE.
Subject: "What shall we do with our Daughters?"

JAN. 4, PROF. MOSES T. BROWN, and DR. J. H. WILLCOX.
Entertainment: Organ Concert. Miscellaneous Readings, by Prof. Brown, from favorite authors, with some character sketches.
Organ Recitals by Dr. Willcox performed on the fine new organ recently placed in this church.

JAN. 11, Prof. C. H. HITCHCOCK.
Subject: "Life above the Clouds; or, Mt. Washington in Midwinter," illustrated with noted Stereoscopic Views of frost work, exhibited by the aid of a Stereoptiron and Calcium Light.

The organ will be exhibited each evening.

TICKETS for this Course are now ready, at the stores of Messrs. Shores, Preston, Thacher and Hill.

PRICE $1,50 FOR THE COURSE.

No single evening tickets will be issued.

As the number to be sold is limited to the comfortable seating capacity of the church, these desiring to attend should secure their tickets without delay, as a large number are already taken up.

A Social Assembly,

The third one of Messrs. Davis and Brown's course, comes off this evening in Congress Hall, Harlow's band making the music. These assemblies have been well conducted, and we have no doubt will continue to be, thus ensuring a pleasant evening's entertainment for those attending.

The Holy Land.

We trust a full house will greet the opening of views in Palestine, which will be given at the Temple on Saturday next. It comes to Portsmouth amply endorsed by travellers in the Holy Land as well as by hundreds of clergymen and scholars, well able to judge of it as a work of art and a valuable exhibition in all respects.

The Coming Question.

Who is to be Mayor? Bring out your perfect men. Dont be afraid of urging your favorite, if you want him nominated. There can be but one Mayor, and it's worth while to select a good one. Wanted, a live man, of good business qualities, whose integrity is undisputed, whose political sagacity just balances his other public virtues. Who bids? Is he recognized?

Bound West.

Mr. Wm. A. Ashe, recently employed as Draughtsman in the Civil Engineer's office at the Navy Yard, has obtained leave of absence for six months, without pay, and intends leaving this city for the State of Ohio some time next week. Mr. James W. Lord, the well known and popular cutter at Wm. P. Walker's tailoring establishment, will accompany him, the two having purchased the right to the sale of the already famous "Home" Washer throughout Ohio. We trust that so much success may attend them in this project that they may return to their adopted city laden with the evidence of independent fortunes.

The Lyceum Course

In the Universalist church opens this (Thursday) evening, with a lecture on "The American Stump," by Maj. Gen. Judson Kilpatrick, the celebrated cavalry leader in the recent war. The lecture is new, is said not to be in any sense partizan, and it requires no great exercise of faith to credit the advertised statement that it is "instructive and amusing"—for the lecturer's intimate acquaintance with that distinctively American institution, "the stump," and the innumerable good things which a man of humor can select from its oral and written history, must make it extremely interesting in these days when every man may (and should) vote and many women want to—and possibly soon will. We are informed that four hundred course tickets were sold last week, and should imagine that the last ones will be taken up before to-night, as the advertised list of lecturers contains the largest number of distinguished names ever found in a Lyceum course in this city. A limited number of evening tickets will be sold at the door, price 50 cents.

Mr. Moses' Concert,

Tuesday evening, drew the largest audience we have seen in the Temple for a long time. The body of the house was entirely filled, except a few seats in the extreme wings, from which the stage cannot be seen, and the gallery held an audience that for numbers and respectability is seldom equalled there; there were no eligible seats empty in the house, that we could see. Mr. Moses' reception by the audience must have been very gratifying to the veteran teacher; the splendid drop curtain elicited great admiration, and certainly does wonders in improving the general aspect of the Temple. The scene on Sagamore Creek is also very handsome; and "Winona," the Indian maiden, we considered a very decided improvement on the original pattern,—very much ahead of any wild Indian we ever saw. One little bit of a girl, Miss Lizzie Varrell, received merited applause for her singing; Misses Lucy Locke, Georgie Lear, Allie Swasey and Eliza Seeley sang very nicely, and the whole class did well. The first and final pieces on the programme were very pleasing, musically and as spectacles; and the entire concert was a success.

A Festival

In aid of the Western sufferers opened in Academy Hall, Greenland, Wednesday evening, and will conclude this evening. Music, tableaux, dialogues and refreshments are the main features of the festival.

Pope Night

Cometh apace, and the boys who are eager to exalt their horns are undecided as to which evening it is best to celebrate. Sunday is the bona fide anniversary day, and the pumpkin lanterns may shed their flickering lights on Saturday or Monday, or both.

Sad Case of Insanity.

Mr. Albert W. Aiken, the author and actor, who recently brought out the "Witches of New York" in this city, was married in Washington on the 26th ult. to Miss Alice Logan, who took a principal part in the play. A policeman found her wandering about the streets at 11 o'clock the same night. The officer accosted her and asked her several questions, to which she made no reply, except "It's a plot to ruin me. It's a plot, and I was almost married to him." Seeing that she was laboring under severe mental excitement, attended with insanity, he took her to the Central guard-house, where, upon being further questioned, she incidentally remarked that she had been almost married to Albert W. Aiken, who was playing the "Witches of New York" at Wall's Opera House. Mr. Aiken was immediately sent for, and soon arrived at the guard-house, where he informed the officers that she was his wife, and had been married that morning by Rev. Mr. Addison, at the Trinity Church.

It appears that after she was married in the morning, she rode, in company with her husband, to the St. James Hotel, where they were stopping, accompanied by a gentleman and Mrs. Celia Logan Kellogg (her sister), who assisted at the marriage, and that the then Mrs. Aiken showed signs of indifference to Mr. Aiken. Mrs. Kellogg noticing this, walked with her to a friend's residence where she remained several hours. Mrs. Kellogg being called away about 8 o'clock in the evening, left Mrs. Aiken in the house, cautioning her to remain there until she came back, and then to accompany her to the theatre, where she (Mrs. Aiken) was to take her regular character in the play. In the absence of Mrs. Kellogg, Mrs. Aiken became unmanageable and left the house, and roamed about the streets.

In the meantime, Mrs. Aiken not appearing in the theatre, Mr. Aiken procured the services of some other lady, and the play was proceeded with, and went along smoothly, although it was apparent to the audience that Mr. Aiken, the principal character of the play, was not as gay as on the previous nights.

The play over, Mr. A. went to the house above-mentioned, and was surprised at not finding his wife there. Search was instituted, and at about 11.30 o'clock in the evening learned that she was at the Central guard-house. When he arrived there she scarcely noticed him, and reluctantly accompanied him to the St. James Hotel.

Mrs. Aiken is now under proper medical treatment, and it is sincerely hoped that she will soon recover her mind and health. The whole occurrence was most sad, and all of the actor's friends heartily sympathize with him in his and her trouble.

A LENIENT CREDITOR.—We remember a story which went the rounds of the press many years ago, to the effect that a drunken man went into a bank, leaned over the counter, and confidentially winking at the cashier, said, "I'll take that fifty thousand dollars." "Very well, sir, produce the documents," was the reply. The visitor only repeated his confidential information that he'd "take that fifty thousand dollars," and was immediately put out by a porter; but as he was going through the doorway he turned his head and offered the following liberal compromise: "I say—hic—ole feller; give us—hic—fifty cents and will call it square." That gentleman's liberality is nearly paralleled by a New York appraiser's, for at a recent meeting of the commissioners of the Sinking Fund a communication was read from Courtland Palmer, withdrawing the bill for $152,000 for appraising city property, asking merely for the payment of the men who had done the work, $6000. Recorder Hackett said he would have been willing to have done the whole work for $5000. The City Chamberlain moved to pay each of the appraisers, three in number, $15,000, and $6000 for incidental expenses. The matter was referred to the Comptroller.

—A young lady who was in Paris during the first siege, gives her judgment that mule meat is nice, horse flesh good, and cats really excellent.

—An unlucky chap replied, on being asked what he cleared on a certain speculation, "Nothing but my pockets."

—It is said to flatter people effectively you must know what they are, what they think they are, and what they want other people to think they are.

—A New York paper mentions that Mr. Ashbury, being unable to keep up with any American yacht, is about arranging a race with a ferry boat.

—After the great fire in Wisconsin woods, thirty-two dead bodies were found in a well which had been vainly sought as a refuge from the flames.

—A New Orleans lady boasts that her hair is five feet ten inches long. It is not stated whether or not this vast capillary adornment is a grafted article.

—General Blair is described as a sort of cheap Jack who howls out his penny wares over the foot-board of his cart, and is ready to raise a laugh or a quarrel with any one so that he can sell his wares.

NEW SUBSCRIBERS who now pay in advance for the DAILY CHRONICLE or N. H. GAZETTE for the year 1872, will receive either paper gratis until January. We will furnish the GAZETTE and the Concord Independent Statesman from this date to July 1, 1872, for $2 in advance to new subscribers.

We will furnish the DAILY CHRONICLE and Harper's Weekly, Harper's Bazar, or Harper's Magazine, for $9 per annum; and the NEW HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE and Harper's Weekly, Harper's Bazar, or Harper's Magazine, for $5—in advance.

A PLACE FOR THE LEAN!

Say, old boy, where shall we meet?
Why, at Garrety's, on Daniel Street.
He's such a jolly fellow;
His LAGER is always fresh and prime,
It never wants a "head" and is
Refreshing, cool and mellow!
You require, my boy, some filling out,
You're thin, and meagre-looking;
Lager would give you the proper size.
Look at the host, he once was scant,
His BEER has made of flesh no want,
Go thou and drink likewise.

Typhoid Fever Successfully Treated with Milk.

Alexander Yule, M. D., communicates to the Medical Times and Gazette, the following paper:

There is nothing new about the treatment of this fever by milk. As such treatment may not, however, be the general one adopted, I have been induced to offer my testimony as to its efficacy. It stands to reason that people suffering from disease, quite as much require food as those in health, and much more so in certain diseases where there is rapid waste of the system. Frequently all ordinary food in certain diseases is rejected by the stomach, is loathed by the patient. Nature, ever beneficent, had furnished a food that in all diseases is beneficial—in some directly curative. Such a food is milk. In the twenty-six cases we have treated of typhoid fever, its great value was apparent.

To be sure our number is not large, yet sometimes the small indicates the resultant on a large scale. The indications we followed were—1. To check the diarrhœa; 2. To nourish the body; 3. To cool the same.

With regard to the diarrhœa in typhoid fever, we believe it ought, if possible, to be checked, or at least restrained, for you might as well think of leaving a sore-throat in scarlatina to take its course (being eliminative of fever poison), or irritate it a little, as of encouraging diarrhœa in typhoid fever. Astringents were used in all cases (with occasional doses of ipecacuanha), diluted sulphuric acid being found the most serviceable. The acid was used from beginning to end of the fever. We imagine that, in those cases which recover where diarrhœa is encouraged, the patient got well in spite of the treatment; for we believe that nothing so much tends to extending of ulceration, to hæmorrhage, peritonitis, and protracted convalescence as the use of salines or such like remedies. Who would think of healing an ulcer by irritating it, by not allowing rest, for the reparative powers of nature to do their work? An ulcer in the ileum requires rest quite as much as one in the leg.

When the diarrhœa became violent, the most powerful astringents were used, and when the bowels were once "locked up" they were so maintained for from ten to fourteen days, with not only no inconvenience, but with decided advantage. To cool the body and to nourish it were the two indications:

1. As to Nourishment.—That the body live in fever wastes rapidly is evident; and from the accumulation of waste material in the blood, and the want of pabulum to feed the fever, the most disastrous results eventuate—resulting in death—from the fever drying up the very issues of life. Now, if pabulum can be afforded to repair the textures that, from the action in the fever poison, are being used up, one great, if not the greatest, object of treatment is attained; for fevers obey like everthing else in this world, certain fixed laws. Like an object in vegetable life, there is the seed, the bud, the unfolding, the full leaf, the withering away and decadence—so with fevers and their incubation, ingravescence, etc. Now, if the body can be sustained until the fever has gone its course, health will result. Milk, of all things, seems to be best adapted for this purpose; for it is digestible, is relished by fever patients, contains all the requisite material for the nourishment of the entire body—the nervous system in especial, which in fever is always greatly affected. Furthermore, in fever there is great thirst, and patients ardently long for that which will cool the parched mouth. Thus, by interdicting the use of water in toto throughout the fever, nourishment can always be given in the shape of cold new milk. Cool beef tea is by no means to be despised, but it is much less relished, and not unfrequently loathed when the fever is intense, while milk is then taken with much gusto. Again, cold milk, when the diarrhœa is severe, exercises a most kindly action upon the ileac ulcerations. The rule we adopted was to allow milk ad libitum. In some cases quantities, far beyond what could be absorbed by a stomach whose powers of absorption were reduced to a minimum, were taken, a portion of the milk passing in an undigested state from the bowels. This, however, far from, in my mind, being an objection, was a decided boon, for the milk, as it passed over the inflamed and ulcerated ileum, exercised a soothing influence.

2. To Cool the Body.—Now, cold milk is an admirable agent for cooling the body (cold water would do as well, but then new milk nourishes and cools at the same time); and heat is a prominent symptom of fever (fervco, I boil), and a measure of the activity of the fever changes in the body. Another agent used in all these cases was the diluted sulphuric acid, which sided in reducing temperature, in restraining diarrœa, and if the theory is to be credited, diminishing the alkalinity of the blood.

Concluding General Remarks.—Such were the measures relied upon in the treatment of twenty-six cases of typhoid fever. Six of the cases were adults over twenty-two years of age, ten between nine and twenty-two, the remainder being under these ages. Wine was given in no case during the continuance of fever, as it increased the diarrœa (when tried), and promoted delirium. When the fever had left, and the patient became exhausted and sleepless, then wine in three cases did well. Never more than six ounces was required per diem, and that only for a few days (in an adult). In two cases where there was great pain in ileum, blisters applied there did good. A few doses of tartar emetic and tincture of opium were used in one case to procure sleep, which it sufficed to do. We believe that milk nourishes in fever, promotes sleep, wards off delirium, soothes the intestines, and, in fine is the sine qua non in typhoid fever.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,

SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs,

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent, by mail, for forwarding one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity of a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office, having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART.

A GREAT MEDICAL DISCOVERY!

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA

VINEGAR BITTERS.

Hundreds of Thousands Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.

WHAT ARE THEY!

THEY ARE NOT A VILE FANCY DRINK, Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Root and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants.

They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and a LIFE-GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to direction and remain long unwell, provided the bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the stomach and stimulate the torpid liver and bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effect.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins, cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

PIN, TAPE and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. For full directions, read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French and Spanish.

FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal. ☞ Send for a circular.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs.

CHESAPEAKE & OHIOS — FIVE TWENTIES—CENTRAL PACIFICS.

BANKING OFFICE OF

FISK & HATCH,

No. 5 Nassau Street, New York.

September 25th, 1871.

Of the FIFTEEN MILLION CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO SIX PER CENT. LOAN, but about $4,500,000 remain unsold, and this remainder will be taken up rapidly.

The five years' option having expired on all series of TWO-TWENTY BONDS, except 1862s and 1868s, they are liable to be called in for payment. The redemption of 100 millions FIVE-TWENTIES in coin, and the purchases by the Government during the ensuing four months, with the premium thereon, will release about 150 millions of invested capital, independently of dividend and interest payments, the greater part of which must seek reinvestment.

The Chesapeake and Ohio Sixes

have absolutely 30 years to run; are especially desirable for steady investments, and can now be bought

17 per cent. less than Ten-forties.
30 per cent. less than Five-twenties,
25 per cent. less than Sixes of 1881,

and are equally sure to be paid principal and interest in gold coin. Their amount is limited by the Trust Deed to $15,000,000. Price (at present) 93 and accrued interest, that is, with coupon attached, payable Nov. 1.

$1000 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $934.16.

$500 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $477.08.

$100 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $95.42.

Only a small amount of the latter denominations remain, and no more can be made. Bonds are in coupon or register form, same as Five-twenties.

This debt is created by the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad Company in order more speedily and effectually to extend and complete the main line of their Road to the Ohio River. This work the most important internal improvement now progressing in the country—is rapidly approaching completion. It will establish another and great line of communication between the Ohio and Mississippi valleys and the eastern cities; bringing ten millions of people, mainly producers, nearer to the centres of consumption in the Eastern States, and nearer to the political and commercial capitals of their country. Such is the commanding importance of this Trunk Line that the larger cities of the West are projecting feeders to connect with it, so as to avail themselves of its unequalled facilities as soon as it is completed. Large tracts of valuable coal and iron lands along its route are passing into the hands of practical miners and iron manufacturers; a large city is springing up at the western terminus, the head of reliable navigation on the Ohio, where it intersects 12,000 miles of river transit, and will soon be in connection with 30,000 miles of railroad centres.

The CENTRAL PACIFIC SIX PER CENT. BONDS are as safe for investment as Government Bonds. Their amount fixed by act of Congress at $25,000,000, is secured by property worth four times their value; they can only be bought in the open market, and are becoming scarcer in consequence of their gradual absorption by investors here and in Europe; they have a ready market in all the principal money-centres, and have twenty-four years to run; the earnings of the road are steadily increasing, and will probably reach $10,000,000 for the current year, affording a handsome surplus after payment of expenses and interest (which amounts to $1,000,000 for the current year). There can be no doubt they will be equally popular with the Central Pacific. Both principal and interest of the CENTRAL PACIFIC 10 MILLION LIEN GOLD BONDS, are specifically payable in gold coin in New York; the interest on the former being paid January and July, and of the latter May and November, corresponding with the two classes of Five-twenties.

We buy and sell FIVE-TWENTIES, TEN-FORTIES, EIGHT-YE-ONES, and CENTRAL OF WESTERN PACIFICS, or receive them in payment for CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO BONDS at their current market price.

Orders for Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds, accompanied with Drafts or Checks, may be forwarded to us by mail. Bonds or money may be forwarded by any responsible Express Company at our expense, and the Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds, in exchange, will be sent by return Express, charges paid. FISK & HATCH.

P. S.—Accounts of Banks, Bankers and others received, on which we allow Four Per Cent. interest.

Certificates of deposit issued and collections made in all parts of the Union.

ARE YOU GOING TO PAINT?

—IF SO, USE THE—

AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINT.

It is Cheaper, Handsomer and more durable than the best of other Paints. One Thousand Gallons of it were sold in this City, in the year 1870, and not one complaint has come from those who have used it; but all speak in its favor; it is mixed ready for application, and is much easier put on than any other paint, making a smooth, glossy surface for paint, so that can be cleaned with hot suds without injuring it. It is excellent for walls inside, in the place of paper.

I shall keep this season a large stock of Chemical Paints of all shades on hand, to accommodate customers with any amount, without delay in ordering it. Those who want to use the Chemical Paints and have had them misrepresented by those who deal in Lead and Oil, are invited to call and examine my Paints that have been on Buildings two years, and you will find them as fresh as if laid but one month.

I am prepared to do Painting by Contract, or by the day, using the Chemical Paint, or furnishing good experienced workmen by the day at very low wages. B. NORTON, only Agent for selling the

H E L L .

There is a hell for all who sin;
Each person makes his own;
Heaven's kingdom he erects within,
Or builds for hell a throne.

The devil—sin, rules on that throne;
The "Valley of Hinnon's there;
Oh, pull the tottering fabric down,
Resist temptation's snare.

The flames of hell, lust, passion, strife,
Intemperance and all vice,
Send forth their sulphurous fumes through life;
They burn at manhood's price.

The life beyond is but this life
'Tis better here to meet the strife,
And crush the monster fiend,

Than to renew the contest there,
To wager the battle o'er;
'Tis easier to conquer here
Than on the other shore.

In time or in eternity,
We must these hells destroy;
Rise now from self-made slavery,
Heaven's freedom to enjoy.

Crush out the powers which bind the soul,
And fight the glorious fight;
Let holy efforts make you whole,
And triumph in the right. J. O. H.

WHAT CHICAGO CAN SHOW THE RUSSIAN PRINCE.—The Chicago papers are beginning to joke over their misfortune, and are printing clever satires on the stories sent from that city by sensational correspondents. The Post is sorry that the fire could not be kept until the arrival of the Russian Prince, that he might witness the spectacle, but if he chooses to visit the city the editor will show to him the following morsels:

1. Mrs. Leary's cow. This is a meditative and somewhat emotional animal residing in a magnificent pinewood shed on the corner of DeKoven and Jefferson streets.—She is at present thirteen feet high, and two feet long. You can see straight through her, her perfect transparency being caused by her having eaten nothing since the fire, thus placing her on an honorable level with the Welsh Fasting Girl. She has grown four additional horns since that unusual Sunday night, and her tail is so thin that if you touch it, it will break. A kerosene lamp, non-explosive, patent back double action, rests in a state of petrification at her feet. It can never be moved again. A prostrate milk pail is near by, mournful and majestic in its ruins. The cow has been visited by at least eleven people, two women and a boy during the past two weeks. She says she is tired of it, and that they will soon commence cutting little pieces out of her for relics. This is doubtless the reason why she has assumed such unnatural proportions. Her eyes are dreamy and speculative, and she looks discouraged.

2. The post office cat. This is a calculating brute of the never-say-die species. Having a premonition of the fire—which, unfortunately, not possessing powers of speech, she was unable to impart—she proceeded to carry a pail of water into the post office vault. She opened the safe door without difficulty, by the use of a 500-ton crowbar, having watched the action of the combination lock for years, and deposited the water within the safe. Then she got in herself, carefully locked the doors, and took up her residence in the pail of water. The crowbar furnished her with abundant nourishment for four days. She grew a little faint then for want of air, and was slightly enfeebled when the postmaster, the collector of customs, and the inspector of the port released her.

SLEEPLESSNESS.—The best anodyne is a liberal amount of muscular activity out of doors every day. Persons who sit around the fire and lounge on the sofa, or read or sew a great part of the day, need not expect sound sleep; only the laboring man can taste it in all its sweetness. Many fail to sleep at night because they will persist in sleeping in the day-time. It is just as impossible to healthfully force more sleep on the system than the proportion of exercise requires, as to force the stomach to digest more food than the body requires. Rather than court sleep by industrious activities, many persons resort to medicine, and every new drug which is heralded as a promoter of sleep becomes at once immensely popular, even though it is known to possess dangerous qualities.—Hall's Jour. Health.

—A story is told of an absent-minded couple in Worcester, who, while out one evening last summer, performing the social duty of making calls, rang the bell at the residence of an acquaintance, and asked the master of the house, who came to the door, if his wife was at home. "Is it possible you did not know of her death?" he asked, in great surprise. "Goodness, gracious me!" she ejaculated, "don't you remember, John, we attended her funeral three months ago?" The wife was so chagrined and John so angry that they didn't speak all the way home, and the bereaved husband hasn't recognized either of them since.

BUCHU

[From Dispensatory of the United States.]

DIOSMA CRENATA — BUCHU LEAVES.

PROPERTIES.—Their odor is strong, diffusive and somewhat aromatic; their taste bitterish and analogous to mint.

MEDICAL PROPERTIES AND USES.—Buchu leaves are gently stimulant, with a peculiar tendency to the Urinary Organs.

They are given in complaints of the Urinary Organs, such as Gravel, Chronic Catarrh of the Bladder, Morbid Irritation of the Bladder and Urethra, Disease of the Prostrate Gland, and Retention or Incontinence of Urine, from a loss of tone in the parts concerned in its evacuation. The remedy has also been recommended in Dyspepsia, Chronic Rheumatism, Cutaneous Affections and Dropsy.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is used by persons from the ages of 18 to 25, and from 35 to 55, or in the decline or change of life; after Confinement or Labor Pains; Bed-Wetting in children.

In affections peculiar to Females, the Extract Buchu is unequalled by any other remedy, as in Chlorosis or Retention, Irregularity, Painfulness or Suppression of Customary Evacuations, Ulcerated or Schirrous State of the Uterus.

DISEASES OF THE BLADDER, KIDNEYS, GRAVEL AND DROPSICAL SWELLINGS.—This medicine increases the power of Digestion, and excites the Absorbents into healthy action, by which the Watery or Calcareous depositions and all Unnatural Enlargements are reduced, as well as Pains and Inflammation.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU has cured every case of Diabetes in which it has been given. Irritation of the Neck of the Bladder and Inflammation of the Kidneys, Ulceration of the Kidneys and Bladder, Retention of Urine, Diseases of the Prostrate Gland, Stone in the Bladder, Calculus, Gravel, Brick-Dust Deposit and Mucous or Milky Discharges, and for enfeebled and delicate constitutions of both sexes, attended with the following symptoms: Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Horror of Diseases, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Pain in the Back, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Eruption on the Face, Pallid Countenance, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, etc.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is Diuretic and Blood-Purifying, and cures all diseases arising from habits of dissipation, excesses and imprudences in life, impurities of the Blood, etc., superceding Copaiba and other Nauseous Compounds.

Beware of counterfeits. Ask for Helmbold's. Take no other.

Price $1.25 per Bottle, or 6 Bottles for $6.50.

Describe symptoms in all communications.

MANHOOD

IN THE

Young and Rising Generation.

The vegetable powers of life are strong, but in a few years how often the pallid hue, the lack-lustre eye and emaciated form, and the impossibility of application to mental effort, show their baneful influence. It soon becomes evident to the observer that some depressing influence is checking the development of the body. Consumption is talked of, and perhaps the youth is removed from school and sent into the country. This is one of the worst movements. Removed from ordinary diversions of the ever-changing scenes of the city, the powers of the body, too much enfeebled to give zest to healthful and rural exercise, thoughts are turned inwardly upon themselves.

If the patient be a female the approach of the menses is looked for with anxiety as the first symptom in which nature is to show her saving power in diffusing the circulation and visiting the cheek with the bloom of health. Alas! increase of appetite has grown by what it is fed on. The energies of the system are prostrated, and the whole economy is deranged. The beautiful and wonderful period in which body and mind undergo so fascinating a change from child to woman, is looked for in vain. The parent's heart bleeds in anxiety, and fancies the grave but waiting for its victim.

TRY HELMBOLD'S

E X T R A C T B U C H U

For Weakness Arising from Excesses or Early Indiscretion,

attended with the following symptoms: Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, General Weakness, Horror of Disease, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Dreadful Horror of Death, Night Sweats, Cold Feet, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Languor, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, Often Enormous Appetite with Dyspeptic Symptoms, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Pallid Countenance and Eruptions on the Face, Pain in the Back, Heaviness of the Eyelids, Frequently Black Spots Flying before the Eyes, with Temporary Suffusion and Loss of Sight, Want of Attention, Great Mobility, Restlessness, with Horror of Society. Nothing is more desirable to such Patients than Solitude, and nothing they more dread, for fear of themselves; no repose of matter, no earnestness, no speculation, but a hurried transition from one question to another.

THESE SYMPTOMS, IF ALLOWED TO GO ON—WHICH THIS MEDICINE INVARIABLY REMOVES — SOON FOLLOW LOSS OF POWER, FATUITY AND EPILEPTIC FITS, IN ONE OF WHICH THE PATIENT MAY EXPIRE.

During the Superintendence of Dr. Wilson at the Bloomingdale Asylum, this sad result occurred to two patients. Reason has for a time left them, and both died of epilepsy. They were of both sexes, and about twenty years of age.

Who can say that these excesses are not frequently followed by those direful diseases, Insanity and Consumption? The records of the Insane Asylums, and the melancholy deaths of Consumption, bear ample witness to the truth of these assertions. In Lunatic Asylums the most melancholy exhibitions appears. The countenance is actually sodden and quite destitute; neither mirth nor grief ever visits it. Should a sound of the voice occur it is rarely articulate.

"With woful measures wan despair
Low sullen sounds their grief beguile."

While we regret the existence of the above diseases and symptoms, we are prepared to offer an invaluable gift of chemistry for the removal of the consequences.

HELMBOLD'S

Fluid Extract of Buchu.

There is no tonic like it. It is an anchor of hope to the physician and patient. This is the testimony of all who have used or prescribed it.

Beware of counterfeits and those cheap decoctions called Buchu, most of which are prepared by self-styled doctors, from deleterious ingredients, and offered for sale at "less price" and "larger bottles" etc. They are unreliable and frequently injurious. Ask for Helmbold's. Take no other.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 3, 1871.

PERSIA.—A letter dated Teheran, August 7th, in the Cologne Gazette, states that cholera, pestilence, famine and bad government make the situation in Persia more horrible from day to day. Of the 120,000 inhabitants of Meshed, the capital of Khorassan, two-thirds perished from hunger and disease. July last, while the remaining third fled and were captured by roving troops of Turkomans and Afghanistans and led into slavery. At Sholaz and Tabias insurrections have broken out. The cholera declared itself at the latter place, which suffered also terribly from inundation, and on the Turkish frontier at Solamanich cases of pestilence have occurred. The inhabitants of the capital knowing that a petition addressed to the Shah would remain unanswered, addressed themselves to the foreign representatives, who decline to intervene. When at the beginning of August the Shah returned to his capital, he was received before the gates by thousands of howling women, who were afterward dispersed by the police. The Shah took up his residence in a neighboring castle and issued a decree ordering the sale of bread at a nominal price. No bread came forth, and the Shah then ordered, as remedial measures, to put into chains the Vizier of the town, to split open the belly of the chief baker and to put several other bakers in their ovens. The emeute was thereby put down, but not the prevailing misery, and a terrible catastrophe is expected.

DR. MEDLICOTT of Anderson county, Kansas, has been convicted of murdering Isaac M. Ruth, with whose wife Medlicott was intimate. Ruth wrote a letter while dying, informing his wife that Medlicott had given him a quinine powder half an hour before, and requesting her, in case of his death, to have his body examined. In this letter he described his symptoms with some minuteness, and states that the clock has just struck eleven. The memorandum book was found lying on his coat on the piano, with his vest and pants lying on it.

In the cell in which Medlicott was confined was a young man named Henry Johnson, alias Sperry, imprisoned on a charge of burglary and larceny. He became satisfied of Medlicott's guilt from hearing him talk in his sleep. The spirits of the dead haunted him in his dreams. The apparition of his wife hovered over him in his midnight slumbers, and he started up with glaring eye-balls and exclaimed: "O, God, Sarah, are you here?" The dying agonies of Ruth were re-enacted in his dreamy imagination, and he would smooth the drapery of his couch and say: "Be quiet, Ruth! Take this and it will do you good."

Johnson, who is described as a professional burglar in appearance, conceived the idea of winning his own freedom by obtaining satisfactory evidences of the guilt of his fellow-prisoner. He succeeded in gaining Medlicott's confidence, and in obtaining from him letters that are a virtual confession of guilt.

The analysis of the contents of the stomach, made by the chemists, showed that Ruth had died of morphine poison, and from a subsequent examination of another portion of the body, discovered the presence of atrophine, as testified by the chemists. The body of Mrs. Medlicott was also exhumed, and it is said that these two poisons were discovered. These and numerous minor facts and circumstances were carefully gathered by the prosecuting attorney, and on the trial were presented to the jury in such a clear and forcible manner that no doubt remained of the guilt of the accused, and the verdict was "murder in the first degree."

The reported arrest of Mrs. Ruth, for alleged complicity in poisoning her husband, is confirmed. She is now in jail. Samuel Voulaire, a prominent criminal lawyer of St. Louis, the first husband of Mrs. Ruth and father of her children, has obtained possession of three of the younger children.

THE EMANCIPATION BILL OF BRAZIL frees all children born of slaves after its date, and all slaves of the government, numbering 1700, and establishes an emancipation fund for the benefit of existing slaves. Already there is evidence of improvement among owners in the direction of converting slaves into free tenants, and farmers are freeing them upon condition of a few years' service.

—Napoleon expresses the conviction that an alliance between England, France and Russia will become imperative.

Political.

Boston wants the Republican national convention to meet there next year.

Representative Allison will probably be elected Senator from Iowa. The Democrats carried but five counties at the recent election.

The proposition for a convention to revise the Ohio State Constitution was carried at the recent election in that State by 72,952 majority.

New Hampshire Items.

Mr. David L. Glidden of Gilmanton, aged 50 years, committed suicide on Monday night.

Mrs. Ellery Kentfield of Bath on Monday evening dropped a glass lamp filled with kerosene, which broke, and the fluid, bursting into flame, set her dress on fire. A lad sixteen years old, son of H. P. Ross, who was passing the house, rushed in, and taking a pail of water extinguished the flames, but Mrs. Kentfield was burnt so badly that she is not expected to recover.

John S. Thompson, the newly appointed warden of the State prison, declines to accept the position.

The return to the old practice of two sessions per day in the Dover High School has not worked well, the scholars suffering great inconvenience in wet and stormy weather. The Board of Education, after considerable discussion have finally come to the conclusion that all things considered the one session system combines the most advantages, and accordingly it will go into operation again at the commencement of the Winter term.

RUSSIA.—St. Petersburg letters declare Russia's settled intention to wipe out Turkey from the map of Europe by conquest. The strength of the army which Russia could bring into the field under the present arrangements is estimated at 830,000 men, independent of troops in the Caucasian province, which number an effective force of about 200,000. Add to this, troops stationed in Turkestan, Orenberg and Siberia, which in round numbers give 100,000 more, and the aggregate grand total of which the Czar can dispose in time of war foots up 1,130,000 men of all arms, with 1600 cannon and mitrailleuses.

FISK is again in trouble, Mrs. Helen Josephine Mansfield being the cause. She insinuates that he is wholly devoid of decency and shame, and says she knows him and his wicked crimes too well to submit to his deliberate perjury. She taunts him with having bribed her servants and with repudiating his gold contracts on "Black Friday," and them goes for him thus:

There was one I recollect in particular—a son of Abraham—who had the courage to swear out an attachment against the Grand Opera House for what was justly due him, and how you and Jay Gould ruined the poor victim by breaking up his business and having him arrested and imprisoned for perjury; and at the time you premeditated this crime, you well know he held your written order to buy gold, and you were the perjurers. You are aware, in the papers you served on me you swore to what was wicked and false, for it was only a few days previous thereto you sent Mr. Hubbell to offer me inducements to give you an order on Hon. Peter B. Sweeney for my original affidavit and your letters to me, which documents Sweeney got possession of, as they compromised him and other Tammany magnates in the division of the Erie Railway plunder. But I positively refused to give the required order, knowing your doings as I do. Do you wonder I object to you and your minions practising the same upon me? It is an everlasting shame and disgrace that you should compel one who has grown up with you from nothing to the now great Erie impresario, to go to the courts for a vindication of her rights which you refuse to adjust for reasons you too well know. It is only four years ago when you revealed to me your scheme of stealing the Erie books; how you fled with them to Jersey City and I remained there with you nine long weeks; how, when you were buying the legislature, the many anxious nights I passed with you at the telegraph wire, when you told me it was either a Fisk palace in New York or a stone palace at Sing Sing, and if the latter, would I take a cottage outside its walls; that my presence would make your rusty irons garlands of roses, and the very stones you would have to hammer and crack appear softer under my influence. You secured your Erie palace, and now use your whole force of Erie officials to slander and injure me. It is indeed heroic and worthy the hero of the memorable 12th of July last. I write you this letter to forever contradict all the malicious, wicked abuses you have caused to be circulated, and at the same time fully state that I am willing to leave all matters in dispute and difference, and forever settle any further controversy, to our respective counsel.

—Eighteen hundred sheep and six horses, brought through from Canada by Rugg & McFarland, were seized on Monday at White River Junction by Custom-house Officer Goff of St. Albans, Vt., for under-valuation. The train on which they were loaded had backed over from West Lebanon and was about to start. Twelve car-loads were seized at Roxbury.

—A policeman arrested a woman in New York on Sunday night, and just as he was putting her in the tombs, she struck him in the face with a knife and turning it gouged out his eye.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

THE DOMESTIC SEWING MACHINE.—Since the Domestic Sewing Machine was awarded the "First Premium" at the late State Fair at Dover, the rush for them has been even greater than ever; Mr. E. A. Joy, the fortunate Agent, whose rooms are adjoining our office, is unable to set them up as fast as they are called for, notwithstanding he has lately employed an able assistant. Everybody who buys a "Domestic" seems happy. At the State Fair it was found to be the only Machine in the world having self adjusting tensions. It was in operation four days, using all kinds of thread on all sorts of goods, without any change of tensions. If you don't examine it before purchasing any other, you will wish you had.

IT IS SAID that if a puff of air were to be blown into a vein of an animal, death would instantaneously follow, because circulation would be stopped. The blood makes the entire circuit of the human body every seven minutes, and whenever this circulation is impeded or any of its channels are clogged by impurities which ought to be carried off, disease follows—fever or a disorder of liver or kidneys, or scrofula, or dyspepsia. To get at and remove the source of the difficulty use the old and infallible blood purifier, DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA VINEGAR BITTERS. o21 4w

Have you a severe wrench or sprain? Have you rheumatism in any form? Have you stiff neck, or bunches caused by rheumatic pains? If so "Johnson's Anodyne Liniment" is a specific remedy, and is also the best pain killer in the world.

We often see large stocks of cattle which do not seem to thrive, and come out "spring poor," all for want of something to start them in the right direction. One dollars' worth of Sheridan's Cavalry Condition Powders, given to such as stock occasionally during the winter, would be worth more than an extra half ton of hay.

Sinking Fast.

Pale, miserable, discouraged, without relish for food, without energy enough for exertion, yet with no acute pain, or other special indication of disease, how often do we see feeble invalids fading as it were out of life, without any apparent cause. We say of them that they are "sinking fast," or "sinking gradually," as the case may be. But there is no good reason why they should sink at all. Persons in this dead-alive state simply want invigorating and vitalizing. Nature, in a state of torpor, demands help. Bring out the reserve of vitality in the system, brace the nerves, tone the stomach, break up the morbid trance of body and mind with a course of HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS. It can be done. It has been done in thousand of instances. The effect upon the enervated frame is electric. Never give up, however languid and broken down. Remember that for the exhausted, the debilitated, the desponding, this powerful, vegetable restorative is a genuine elixir. It is not a mere stimulant that provokes a transient flash of vigor in the system, and then leaves it in a more depressed condition than before. It removes the causes of debility by altering the secretion, and regulating the action of the internal organs, as well as reenforcing them. It is a particularly valuable medicine at this season, because it is an antidote to the malaria which produces intermittent fever, bilious colic and other disorders of the bowels prevalent in the fall.

CHIVALRY.—Beverly Tucker, an agent of the Southern Confederacy in Canada, and a confidant of J. Wilkes Booth in his assassination schemes, has been keeping a hotel at the St. Catharines watering place since the war, until a few days days ago, when he departed with $25,000 due his creditors, and left nothing to indicate the direction he took.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

The Readings

This evening by Mr. George Vandenhoff will afford a rich treat. Tickets may be had at Preston's. This is the second opportunity offered our citizens to hear Mr. Vandenhoff, and the desire to listen to him again is shown by the fact that a large number of tickets are disposed of.

S. J. Court.

On Thursday, Abbie A. Davis secured a divorce from Fred A. Davis of Northwood, for adultery.

Several witnesses were called in the case of Michael Howard, charged with the murder of David Cronin, of Plaistow; Gen. Gilman Marston made the closing plea for the defence and was followed by Attorney General Wm. C. Clarke for the State. Judge Foster delivered an able charge and the case was given to the jury early in the evening. The jury returned a verdict of "not guilty."

The Lyceum.

The opening lecture in the Course was delivered in the Universalist church, Thursday evening, to a large and highly respectable audience, by Maj. Gen. Kilpatrick, who had a cordial reception. Mr. T. E. O. Marvin presided, and after announcing Rev. W. H. H. Murray as the next lecturer, announced that a large number of the audience desired that the General would change his lecture. The speaker was then introduced and proceeded to describe Sherman's march to the sea. The audience listened with intense interest to his rapid description, being spell bound by the distinguished gentleman's oratory. He passed rapidly from one topic to another and thrillingly described the battle of Lookout Mountain, the capture of Mission Ridge, the rapid march through Georgia, his escape from Wade Hampton's cavalry by fleeing barefooted over a ploughed field, the release of the Andersonville prisoners, the capture of Columbia, Fort McAllester and Savannah. Many incidents, ludicrous and pathetic, were interspersed in the lecture, which lasted a little over an hour, and was very entertaining, frequently eliciting applause and laughter.

The Grand Army veterans complimented the General with a serenade by the Cornet Band at the residence of Hon. Horton D. Walker, turning out with full ranks to pay their respects to the gallant cavalry leader. The testimonial was a very flattering one and was greatly enjoyed by a large concourse of citizens.

Gen. Kilpatrick left for New Jersey in the 3 o'clock Pullman train this morning, being engaged to speak to-night and on Saturday and Monday to his fellow Republicans, who are earnestly laboring for victory next Tuesday in that State.

Correspondence.

KITTERY, ME., Nov. 1.

The Boston Journal has a little ditty in regard to the proprietor of a drinking saloon in this town having in imitation of "The Wickedest Man in New York" invited a band of church members to turn his establishment into a prayer-room on certain evenings. In the first place it is not generally supposed that any liquor is now sold there; secondly, the proprietor is not the wickedest man in town, by a long chalk,—if he does sell rum, (which is doubted,) he is at any rate a gentlemanly seller, if such a term may be used; and lastly, the meetings originated with the church folks themselves, who desired to hold them there and the proprietor did not object. So I think the Journal's account not strictly correct.

You have been notified of our new street lights, which enable us to pick our steps with so much more safety over our dilapidated old sidewalks. Thomas Murray, Esq., didn't feel satisfied to let Mr. Shannon do all the work after originating the idea of lighting the village, so he went in, raised money, put up lamps from the corner of Main Street to Whipples' Cove and on the Creek road nearly out to Rogers' nursery, and had them burning before the others.

Mr. Wm. Tarlton, whose sudden death you have already noticed, was an upright and much respected man, and a great lover of music. He had long been subject to heart difficulty.

The young men of Kittery are trying to organize a Brass Band, and have had several meetings on the subject. I hope they will succeed, and believe our citizens will give them all possible encouragement. OMEGA.

—A clergyman met a bewildered young man on Chicago avenue while the flames were licking up the North Side, who asked in bewilderment, "Where am I?" On being informed, he said: "Well, I've been married three weeks; I don't know where my wife is; but if she's burned it's the Lord's will; let her go!" and off he started.

New Publications.

The British Quarterly Review for October, (Am. reprint,) contains articles on Dr. Carl Ullmann, Aerial Voyages, Early Sufferings of the Free Church of Scotland, The Romance of the Rose, Letters and Letter Writing, Wesley and Wesleyanism, Mr. Darwin on the Origin of Man, The Session, and Contemporary Literature. $4 per year—and well worth it; Leonard Scott Pub. Co., New York.

The Middlesex Democrat is the title of a new Democratic weekly published at Lowell by Mr. E. A. Hills of the Dover Gazette. It is orthodox in Democratic principles, contains several columns of local news, which is the life of any newspaper, and is nicely printed.

THE PUBLIC DEBT was reduced during October $8,950,491.84.

POKING FUN.—An Alabama editor, having read our book on "Sleep, or the Hygiene of the Night," says, in reference to certain suggestions there, "Dr. Hall's book advises that husband and wife should sleep in different apartments; Dr. Hall can sleep where he chooses, but for himself he intends to sleep where he can defend his wife against rats and other nocturnal foes, as long as he has one to defend."

A gallant gentleman and a cavalier of the old school is this same Alabama editor. As he is good-natured we would like to argue the case with him. Let him try sleeping in a large, light, and airy room, fifteen feet long and broad, on a fine hair mattrassed bed, broad enough for three, and let his wife and the baby sleep in a similar room, communicating though, for easy call, in case of the intrusion of burglars, rats, and other things, and see if great advantages will not result from it.

The book mentioned shows the necessity of sound, connected sleep in large, well ventilated rooms, for all, especially for men engaged in business, whose mental faculties are largely used. Suppose there is a baby in the case; it is sure to be wriggling and twisting and crawling around, about daylight, just at the time that sleep is felt to be the most delicious, exploring the nostrils with the finger, gouging out the eyes, pulling the hair, prying into the mouth to see what is down there; every now and then breaking out into an infantile crow, thereby knocking the snooze into a tectotally cocked hat, and ruthlessly breaking into other arrangements. If there can be any good sleep, any enjoyable health, vigor, and joyousness in any such proceedings as these, then we are greatly mistaken.

If two are in the same bed, every time one turns over during the night, or plunges into another with fist or feet, there is a rousing up, with danger of some wrathfulness, and more or less difficulty in getting to sleep again; the only way to prevent such untoward circumstances, if our Alabama friend and his wife will sleep in one and the same bed, is for each to get as far apart as possible, get to the farthest edge asunder, and sleep on the bed rail, leaving all the best part of the bed unoccupied. Let any fair minded person judge. We pause for a reply.

Besides showing the importance of sleeping in a healthful atmosphere, as we pass one third of our existence in our chambers, the book goes on in detail to lay down rules and regulations, times and seasons, for what is connected with our sleeping habits. It is a book which young and old, married and unmarried could read with great profit, as it is specific and practical on all matters connected with the general subject. Not only is it valuable to old men, but to youth, especially as it communicates most important information in reference to a class of subjects on which much has been written by evil minded and unprincipled men, whose deliberate object is to mislead, to alarm, to corrupt, and then to fleece. We wrote the book with many misgivings and questionings as to its propriety and necessity; but there was so much that was mischievous, untruthful, and demoralizing in publications which flooded the country, that the inquiry was excited—Shall poison be spread broadcast, and no antidote whatever be provided? It is a dollar and a half book, and is very suggetive on all subjects treated.—Hall's Jour. Health.

—There is no duller blunder, says a writer in Harper's Weekly, than the supposition that the schemers and tricksters and unscrupulous men of a party are its shrewdest managers, and that honor and decency are impracticable in politics.

—Coughs, colds, and consumptions are best avoided in winter by dressing abundantly warm, keeping the feet dry and comfortable, and never remaining long enough in a still position to allow a feeling of chillness to run over the system.

—A New York thief stole $150 worth of raw silk from an upholstery establishment, but afterwards returned it, with a note to the following effect: "This is no good, I cannot get anything for it; it is yours."

DEATHS.

In this city, Nov. 1st, Mr. JOSEPH WHITTEN, aged 80 years, 3 months, 14 days. A long, industrious and useful life has thus terminated. He died, as he had had always lived, with charity for all, at enmity with none, at peace with the world, and in the firm assurance of a blissful immortality.

☞ Friends are invited to attend his funeral at 2½ o'clock, this (Friday) afternoon, at No. 19 Washington Street.

In Newcastle, Oct. 31, Mr. WILLIAM NEAL, aged 87 years, 3 months. The oldest man of the town.

In Stratham, Oct. 13, Mr. JOHN F. WIGGIN, aged 75 years, 6 months.

In Boston, Oct. 13, Mr. GEORGE GERRISH, formerly of this city, aged 50 years.

In Barrington, Oct. 25, Mr. CHARLES G. CATER, aged 36 years.

NEW SUBSCRIBERS who now pay in advance for the DAILY CHRONICLE or N. H. GAZETTE for the year 1872, will receive either paper gratis until January. We will furnish the GAZETTE and the Concord Independent Statesman from this date to July 1, 1872, for $2 in advance to new subscribers.

We will furnish the DAILY CHRONICLE and Harper's Weekly, Harper's Bazar, or Harper's Magazine, for $9 per annum; and the NEW HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE and Harper's Weekly, Harper's Bazar, or Harper's Magazine, for $5—in advance.

ALICE CARY'S LOVE.

A story under the title of the "Unknown Love of Alice Cary," in the newspapers, is still travelling through the length of the land. It asserts that in her youth she was affianced to Rufus W. Griswold; that he was false to her —forsaking her for a woman of the world; that long after, when he returned to New York, friendless, poor and sick, she forgave him the great wrong that he had done and nursed him till he did. This story, in many conflicting phases, was often to her great annoyance, told of her during her life. The fact that Rufus W. Griswold did in his last will bequeath to her his personal effects was made much of in public and private circles, and used as as unanswerable proof that at one time he had been her lover. Within a week I have read in a letter to the New York Evening Post, that the will proved the love and relationship between the two persons beyond a doubt.

Yet no less, in its foundation, the story is false. Referring to it once, while we two sat alone together, Alice said to me: "I will tell you just the truth. If you ever think it necessary, you can tell it." I believe it to be but justice to her secret life, with which idle gossip is yet to busy, to tell it now. Bereavement in death and in life had made her western home too desolate to be borne. These, with the impulse of the brave will that served her to the last, brought her to New York to make not the life that she would have chosen for herself, yet a life worthy to be lived. "Ignorance stood me in the stead of courage," she said, "Had I known the great world as I have learned it since, I should not have dared; but I didn't. Thus I came."

The leading literateur at that time was Dr. Rufus W. Griswold. He had compiled the books called "The Female Prose Writers" and "Female Poets of America." He was sharply on the lookout for every new genius in literature that appeared. He had visited the sisters in their Ohio home, and in 1850 obtained a publisher for their first volume, and had added both their names with selections from their poems to his own "Poets of America." He knew everything necessary to their success in the sphere of labor which they had chosen, while they practically knew next to nothing. He encouraged and helped them in many ways, and thus commanded their gratitude.

For Alice to incur a debt of gratitude was to pay it, if at the cost of her life. Yet even the good will of one man to a woman is often a misfortune. Her soul may be white as snow; yet he cannot take her innocent name upon his lips without smirching it with somewhat of his own vileness. His vanity has been flattered by idle women, till conquest has become not only the habit, but the necessity, of his morbid and miserable soul; till, where he knows he has not won it, he yet is base enough to boast of it.

Such a man (judging by every record left of him) was Rufus W. Griswold. He was a man of poetic temperament, of fine scholarship, of generous impulses, and in certain directions of rare gifts; yet no less he was a man of fickle fancies, of violent temper, which often fell upon his dearest friends, of monstrous vanity, and of ungoverned passions. "I was never engaged to him in marriage; I never loved him," said Alice Cary to me. "I could not have loved such a man, though I learned him in his best phases. I came to pity him, because he was his own worst enemy. As a friend I owed him much, and before his death I found it in my power to pay back in part my large debt of gratitude. When he returned to New York, poor and sick, with certain death before him, I, with Miss ——, hired a room and nurse for him. From that they have made the romantic story of my nursing him for unrequited love. It was old Betsey who nursed him. You know how big and strong she is; yet even she became worn out, for his sickness was long and very painful. Many unkind, even cruel things have been said because he willed to me his personal effects. Besides the books and pictures which he bequeathed to the Historical Society, these were all that he possessed, and he left them to me not more out of personal regard than from a desire to repay as far as able the money which I had expended for his comfort during the last long sickness."

In the profoundest sense Alice Cary never loved but once. The man whom she loved is still alive; yet gossip, with its keenest scent, has never found or named him. With all her fulness of affection, hers was an eclectic and solitary soul. He who by the very patent of his being was more to her than any other mortal could be might pass from her life, but no other could ever take his place. A proud and prosperous family brought all their pride and power to bear on a son to prevent his marrying a girl uneducated, rustic and poor. "I waited for one who never came back," she said; "yet I believed he would come till I read in a paper his marriage to another. Can you think what life would be—loving one, waiting for one who would never come?"

He did come at last. I saw him. His wife had died. Alice was dying. The gray haired man sat down beside the gray haired woman. Life had dealt prosperously with him, as is its wont with men. Suffering and death had taken all from her save the lustre of her wondrous eyes. From her wan and wasted face they shone upon him full of tenderness and youth. Thus they met with life behind them—they who parted plighted lovers when life was young. He was the man whom she forgave for her blighted and weary life, with a smile of parting as divine as ever lit the face of woman.—Mary Clemmer Ames.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS, For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs, No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON, After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of inventions, and legal and other advice given in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity of a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents.'

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents.

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend to all inventors the course, in to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART.

A GREAT MEDICAL DISCOVERY!

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA

VINEGAR BITTERS.

Hundreds of Thousands Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.

WHAT ARE THEY!

THEY ARE NOT A VILE FANCY DRINK,

Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," 'Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Root and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and a LIFE-GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to direction and remain long unwell, provided the bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the stomach and stimulate the torpid liver and bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effect.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins, cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

PIN, TAPE and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. For full directions, read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French and Spanish.

FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal. ☞ Send for a circular.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs. 1yrdawfsb6

CHESAPEAKE & OHIOS — FIVE TWENTIES—CENTRAL PACIFICS.

BANKING OFFICE OF

FISK & HATCH,

No. 5 Nassau Street, New York,

September 25th, 1871.

Of the FIFTEEN MILLIONS CHESAPEAKE and OHIO SIX PER CENT. LOAN, but about $4,500,000 remain unsold, and this remainder will be taken up rapidly.

The five years' option having expired on all series of FIVE-TWENTY BONDS, except 1867s and 1868s, they are liable to be called in for payment. The redemption of 100 millions Five-Twenties in coin, and the purchases by the Government during the ensuing four months, with the premium thereon, will release about 100 millions of invested capital, independently of dividend and interest payments, the greater part of which must seek reinvestment.

The Chesapeake and Ohio Sixes

have absolutely 30 years to run; are especially desirable for steady investments, and can now be bought

17 per cent. less than Ten-forties.
30 per cent. less than Five-twenties,
25 per cent. less than Sixes of 1881,

and are equally sure to be paid principal and interest in gold coin. Their amount is limited by the Trust Deed to $15,000,000. Price (at present) 93 and accrued interest, that is, with coupon attached, payable Nov. 1.

$1000 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $934.16.

$500 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $467.08.

$100 Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds costs to-day $93.42.

Only a small amount of the latter denominations remains, and no more can be made. Bonds are in coupon or register form, same as Five-twenties.

This debt is created by the Chesapeake and Ohio Grand Company in order to speedily and effectually to extend and complete the main line of their Road to the Ohio River. This work —the most important and important Improvement now progressing in the country—is rapidly approaching completion. It will establish another and superior line of communication between the Ohio and Mississippi valleys and the eastern cities; bringing ten millions of people, mainly producers, nearer to the centres of consumption in the Eastern States, and nearer to political and commercial capitals of their country. Such is the commanding importance of this Trunk Line that the principal cities of the West are projecting feeders to connect with it, so as to avail themselves of its unequalled facilities as soon as it is completed. A large tracts of valuable coal and iron lands along its route are passing into the hands of practical miners and iron manufacturers; a large city is springing up at the western terminus, the head of reliable navigation on the Ohio, where it intersects 12,000 miles of river transit, and will soon be in connection with 30,000 miles of railroad and carriage.

The CENTRAL PACIFIC SIX PER CENT. BONDS are as safe for investment as Government Bonds Their amount fixed by act of Congress at $25,885,160, is secured by property worth four times their value; they can only be bought in the open market, and are becoming scarcer in consequence of their gradual absorption by investors here and in Europe; they have a ready market in all the principal money-centres, and have twenty-four years to run; the earnings of the road are steadily increasing, and will probably reach $10,000,000 for the current year, affording a large surplus after payment of expenses and interest. Present price, 90 and int.

When the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad is completed, in 1872, and the Bonds are dealt in at the Stock Exchange, it will be found that no doubt they will be equally popular with the Central Pacifics. Both principal and interest of the CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO AND CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO BONDS, are specifically payable in gold coin in New York; the interest on the former being paid January and July, and that on the latter, May and November, corresponding with the two classes of Five-twenties.

We buy and sell FIVE-TWENTIES, TEN-FORTIES, EIGHTY-ONES, and CENTRAL OF WESTERN PACIFICS, or receive them in payment for CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO BONDS at their current market price.

Orders for Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds, accompanied with Drafts or Checks, may be forwarded to us by mail. Bonds or money may be forwarded by any responsible Express Company at our expense, and the Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds in exchange, will be sent by return Express, charges paid. FISK & HATCH.

P. S.—Accounts of Banks, Bankers and others received, on which we allow Four Per Cent. interest.

Certificates of deposit issued and collections made in all parts of the Union.

ARE YOU GOING TO PAINT?

—IF SO, USE THE—

AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINT.

It is Cheaper, Handsomer and more durable than the best of other Paints. One Thousand Gallons of it were sold in this City, in the year 1870, and not one complaint has come from those who used it; but all satisfied. Any boy can put it mixed ready for application, and is much easier put on than any other Paint, making a smooth, glossy surface for years, that be chalked with hot suds without injuring it. It is excellent for walls inside, in the place of paper.

I shall keep this season a large stock of Chemical Paints of all shades on hand, to accommodate customers with any amount, without delay in ordering it. Those who want to use the Chemical Paints and have had them misrepresented by those who deal in Lead and Oil, are invited to call and examine my Paints (that have been on Buildings over three years) and you will find them as fresh as if laid but one month.

I am prepared to do Painting by Contract, or by the day, using the Chemical Paint, or furnishing good experienced workmen by the day at very low wages. B. NORTON, only Agent for selling the SNAKE SWALLOWING SNAKE.—You have enough of "telescoping" railroad cars in America. Have you ever heard of telescoping serpents? A few days ago, a rabbit was put into a cage at the zoological gardens in Regent's Park, occupied by two or three pythons and boa-constrictors. Soon, from the excitement of the spectators, the keeper noticed that something unusual had happened. Running around to the back of the cage, he saw that an immense Indian python, 11 feet long, had swallowed not only the rabbit, but a boa-contrictor, which hailed from South America, and measured about 6 feet. Bravely jumping into the cage, the keeper, whose name was Holland, seized the monster by the throat. Open flew the wide mouth, and out fell the dead rabbit. Holland seized the protruding 4 inches of the tail of the Jonahized snake, and by punching the big fellow in the ribs, and shaking and squeezing him while he kept his firm grip on his throat, he compelled him to disgorge. The smaller snake backed out and glided away. He was not hurt a particle. He only seemed to wonder where he had been, as he lay with his mouth wide open on the floor of his cage. It is probable that the two snakes seized the rabbit simultaneously, and when once the smaller one came within those terrible jaws, the teeth, of which are set backward, there was no retreat possible. The sharp, strong merciless teeth could not give up even a brother snake, and though he must have regretted it, the python did his best to save his friend, even to his skin. —Letter from London.

A TYPO'S BLUNDER.—Another of those type setting bandits has branded himself as a fitting victim for the knife of the assassin. The editor of a paper in Wilmington, Delaware, cut from an exchange an obituary poem, and sent it up into the composing room with the following explanatory remarks: "We publish below a very touching production from the talented pen of Miss Louisa Henry. It was written by Miss Henry at the death-bed of her sainted mother, and overflows with those expressions of an whelming filial affection which are the natural efflorescences of a pure, untutored genius that has developed beneath the sheltering influences of a mother's love. The reader will observe how each line glows with ardent affection and tenderest regret."

Well, the editor sent that poem up stairs, and what should this infatuated and revolutionary composer do but get the clipping turned over somehow, and never thinking that there might be something on the other side, he went to work and set up in type the wrong side of the paper. The consequence was, that when the popular journal was printed, the editor's introductory remarks prefaced a recipe for "Swipes in Swine," and a painful article on "The Hog Cholera in Tennessee." Perhaps a disconsolate and solitary printer might not have been observed at large in the streets of Wilmington that evening, inquiring where arnica could be purchased at the best advantage. And perhaps Miss Henry's brother did not call upon the editor with a discouraging club.

MECHANICS WANTED IN CHICAGO.—Five to six hundred additional brick and stone masons can find employment in Chicago through the Winter at from $4 to $5 per day.

Two thousand carpenters can find employment all through the Winter in this city at high wages.

In March there will be employment for twice as many more of these trades.

In addition, we want workers in iron and wood, and in every branch of labor. Many thousands of brick and stone buildings are to be erected, requiring an army of plumbers, gas-fitters, workers in iron, tin, brass and copper.

In additional to these, thousands of laborers now starving in New York and other cities can find work at good wages, with comfortable homes for themselves and families, on farms within 100 miles of Chicago. — Chicago Tribune.

—It is not always prudent to visit the house of a recently married lady to collect money lent while you were courting her yourself. The husband is likely to take the ground that he is concerned in it. In this view the San Francisco Call thinks that it will be supported by Mr. Edward Kelley, of that city; but it adds: "As Mr. Kelley is at the hospital, suffering from five gashes with a bowie-knife, we have not consulted him personally."

—A prominent grocer in Lowell has a sagacious dog, who never sees a half barrel of flour weighed out on the scales but he goes and puts one foot on the platform, carefully looking out of the door to avoid exciting suspicion. That foots weighs about twenty-five pounds.

—A Vermont editor boasts possession of "a tooth from the mouth of the identical cow which kicked over the lamp that started the fire that nearly ruined Chicago!" The lamp—a pewter one—has been recovered, and melted into 10,000 medals commemorative of the fire.

BUCHU

[From Dispensatory of the United States.]

DIOSMA CRENATA — BUCHU LEAVES.

PROPERTIES.—Their odor is strong, diffusive and somewhat aromatic; their taste bitterish and analogous to mint.

They are given in complaints of the Urinary Organs, such as Gravel, Chronic Catarrh of the Bladder, Morbid Irritation of the Bladder and Urethra, Disease of the Prostrate Gland, and Retention or Incontinence of Urine, from a loss of tone in the parts concerned in its evacuation. The remedy has also been recommended in Dyspepsia, Chronic Rheumatism, Cutaneous Affections and Dropsy.

MEDICAL PROPERTIES AND USES.—Buchu leaves are gently stimulant, with a peculiar tendency to the Urinary Organs.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is used by persons from the ages of 18 to 25, and from 35 to 55, or in the decline or change of life; after Confinement or Labor Pains; Bed-Wetting in children.

In affections peculiar to Females, the Extract Buchu is unequalled by any other remedy, as in Chlorosis or Retention, Irregularity, Painfulness or Suppression of Customary Evacuations, Ulcerated or Schirrous State of the Uterus.

DISEASES OF THE BLADDER, KIDNEYS, GRAVEL AND DROPSICAL SWELLINGS.—This medicine increases the power of Digestion, and excites the Absorbents into healthy action, by which the Watery or Calcareous depositions and all Unnatural Enlargements are reduced, as well as Pains and Inflammation.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU has cured every case of Diabetes in which it has been given. Irritation of the Neck of the Bladder and Inflammation of the Kidneys, Ulceration of the Kidneys and Bladder, Retention of Urine, Diseases of the Prostrate Gland, Stone in the Bladder, Calculus, Gravel, Brick-Dust Deposit and Mucous or Milky Discharges, and for enfeebled and delicate constitutions of both sexes, attended with the following symptoms: Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Horror of Diseases, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Pain in the Back, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Eruption on the Face, Pallid Countenance, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, etc.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is Diuretic and Blood-Purifying, and cures all diseases arising from habits of dissipation, excesses and imprudences in life, impurities of the Blood, etc., superceding Copaiba and other Nauseous Compounds.

Beware of counterfeits. Ask for Helmbold's. Take no other.

Price $1.25 per Bottle, or 6 Bottles for $6.50.

MANHOOD

IN THE

Young and Rising Generation.

The vegetable powers of life are strong, but in a few years how often the pallid hue, the lack-lustre eye and emaciated form, and the impossibility of application to mental effort, show their baneful influence. It soon becomes evident to the observer that some depressing influence is checking the development of the body. Consumption is talked of, and perhaps the youth is removed from school and sent into the country. This is one of the worst movements. Removed from ordinary diversions of the ever-changing scenes of the city, the powers of the body, too much enfeebled to give zest to healthful and rural exercise, thoughts are turned inwardly upon themselves.

If the patient be a female the approach of the menses is looked for with anxiety as the first symptom in which nature is to show her saving power in diffusing the circulation and visiting the cheek with the bloom of health. Alas! increase of appetite has grown by what it is fed on. The energies of the system are prostrated, and the whole economy is deranged. The beautiful and wonderful period in which body and mind undergo so fascinating a change from child to woman, is looked for in vain. The parent's heart bleeds in anxiety, and fancies the grave but waiting for its victim.

TRY HELMBOLD'S

EXTRACT BUCHU

For Weakness Arising from Excesses or Early Indiscretion,

attended with the following symptoms: Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, General Weakness, Horror of Disease, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Dreadful Horror of Death, Night Sweats, Cold Feet, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Languor, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, Often Enormous Appetite with Dyspeptic Symptoms, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Pallid Countenance and Eruptions on the Face, Pain in the Back, Heaviness of the Eyelids, Frequently Black Spots Flying before the Eyes, with Temporary Suffusion and Loss of Sight, Want of Attention, Great Mobility, Restlessness, with Horror of Society. Nothing is more desirable to such Patients than Solitude, and nothing they more dread, for fear of themselves; no repose of matter, no earnestness, no speculation, but a hurried transition from one question to another.

THESE SYMPTOMS, IF ALLOWED TO GO ON—WHICH THIS MEDICINE INVARIABLY REMOVES — SOON FOLLOW LOSS OF POWER, FATUITY AND EPILEPTIC FITS, IN ONE OF WHICH THE PATIENT MAY EXPIRE.

During the Superintendence of Dr. Wilson at the Bloomingdale Asylum, this sad result occurred to two patients. Reason has for a time left them, and both died of epilepsy. They were of both sexes, and about twenty years of age.

Who can say that these excesses are not frequently followed by those direful diseases, Insanity and Consumption? The records of the Insane Asylums, and the melancholy deaths of Consumption, bear ample witness to the truth of these assertions. In Lunatic Asylums the most melancholy exhibitions appears. The countenance is actually sodden and quite destitute; neither mirth nor grief ever visits it. Should a sound of the voice occur it is rarely articulate.

"With woful measures wan despair
Low sullen sounds their grief beguile."

While we regret the existence of the above diseases and symptoms, we are prepared to offer an invaluable gift of chemistry for the removal of the consequences.

HELMBOLD'S

Fluid Extract of Buchu.

There is no tonic like it. It is an anchor of hope to the physician and patient. This is the testimony of all who have used or prescribed it.

Beware of counterfeits and those cheap decoctions called Buchu, most of which are prepared by self-styled doctors, from deleterious ingredients, and offered for sale at "less price" and "larger bottles," etc. They are unreliable and frequently injurious. Ask for Helmbold's. Take no other.

The Daily Chronicle.

Portsmouth, N. H.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 4, 1871.

Political.

Seventeen Democratic papers in Missouri have already concurred in the St. Louis Republican's advice that the true policy for the Democracy is to make no nomination for the Presidency in 1872. Look out for more of the same sort after the elections of next Tuesday.

In Massachusetts, the Woman Suffrage advocates have been catechising the candidates for Governor. Mr. Washburn, the Republican candidate, says he is in favor of admitting women to the franchise; and Mr. Pitman, the Temperance candidate, makes a similar answer. Mr. Adams, Democrat, replied that he is "firmly and unequivocally opposed to Woman Suffrage." As Mr. Washburn will be elected Governor, the women will have a chance in Massachusetts, especially as the Republican candidates for the legislature are generally in favor of female suffrage.

The New York city Union League have voted to attend the polls on election day to preserve order and secure fair voting. The stock exchange has voted by a large majority to suspend business on that day. The citizens filled Cooper Institute, Thursday evening, to ratify the reform ticket. All the anti-Tammany organizations have combined on candidates. Samuel J. Tilden and William M. Evarts made eloquent addresses, denouncing the ring frauds and calling on all the citizens to give up business on election day and make a united effort to rid the city of the gang of robbers who have so long plundered the treasury.

Thomas Nast never gave us more effective illustrations of the power of the Tammany Ring than can be found in Harper's Weekly for Nov. 11. The cartoon called "The Tammany Tiger Loose" is wonderfully vivid and real. There are scores of other illustrations from the same pen. There are also sketches of the ruins in Chicago, and of the great race between the Sappho and the Livonia. Wilkie Collins' story is continued. The whole paper is a credit to its publishers and to the country.

The Coming Elections are looked forward to with great interest. Last year, Massachusetts gave a plurality of 31,013 for the Republican ticket; New York, 33,096 majority for the Democrats; New Jersey, 4053 for the Republicans; Maryland, 18,858 for the Democrats; Illinois, 24,672 for the Republicans; Wisconsin 8215 for the Republicans; Mississippi 36,010 (in 1869) for the Republicans; Virginia 5264 for the Democrats; and Minnesota 7344 for the Republicans.

The Result of the recent elections is viewed differently by the friends and opponents of President Grant inside the Republican party. The former regard it as endorsing the President; the latter assert that it only rebukes the Democracy and plainly shows that any Republican likely to obtain the nomination for President is sure of an election in 1872—while in 1868 Gen. Grant was the only man the Republicans could elect. Both sides seem well satisfied.

The Swedish Colonists in Maine are particular folk. They marry not, neither are given in marriage, until they become members of the church, which is more or less fortunate for them. Neither can they become communicants until they learn to read and write—believing that intelligence is as necessary as cleanliness to godliness. As may be supposed they are a very self important people.

Rogues appear to have better opportunities in this world than honest men. In New York city rewards of $100 for the detection of each person voting fraudulently are offered, and the repeaters propose to do their utmost in that line, complain of each other and divide the spoils. The plan is a unique one—and Tweed's followers wish to know "what you are going to do about it."

The Percentage in increase of population in Boston and neighboring towns and cities, during the past ten years, is said to be as follows:—Boston, 40 per cent.; Cambridge, 52; Brighton, 46; West Roxbury, 38; Newton, 53; Chelsea, 38; Somerville, 83. The population within six miles of the State House is about 400,000, and has doubled in every 17 years since 1800.

The London Times has an editorial favoring the re-election of President Grant—which is modest, and so much the worse for the President.

—Paris steam omnibuses have fizzled out.

Georgia Republicans give Governor Bullock credit for a short and successful piece of strategy in his resignation. The new legislature which is soon to meet is so strongly democratic as to practically overpower all opposition, and one of its first actions before the impeachment of Governor Bullock, which was inevitable, would have been to have thoroughly reorganized and elected a complete set of democratic officers. Bullock would have then been removed and the democratic president of the senate installed as governor, thus securing all branches of the administration to them. This pleasant and easy scheme Bullock by his resignation completely foils, and secures Georgia a republican governor for the remainder of his unexpired term.

St. Domingo, it is said, will not be mentioned in the President's message, next month. Quite right; the American people have no interest in St. Domingo annexation. And the most pleasing action of the President in declaring that he had no will in opposition to the Amrican people is one of the brightest records of the page of civil history on which his name is recorded.

Japan is to have a national system of education, which shows how much superior Japan is to Kentucky's Governor, who, in declaring that the colored people of that State shall not have the benefit of a cent of the State money for educational purposes, represents the old Bourbons who wish to obtain control of the national government once more—and can't.

Two Girls, names unknown, committed suicide at Lewiston, Me., at 1 o'clock P. M., Friday, by jumping into the deepest channel of the Falls, with arms interlocked. Their bodies have not yet been found. They removed their outer clothing before taking the fatal leap, and left it in a roll on the rock.

THE FATE OF CHICAGO.

There was a bovine of Chicago,
She made up her mind to let law go;
This wicked old tramp
Kicked over a lamp,
And away on the winds went Chicago.

—The Portland Press has a characteristic and powerful argument of defence of the action of the Grand Lodge of Good Templars—mentioned in this paper a few days ago—in sustaining that of a subordinate lodge which expelled two of its members for squeezing an apple and drinking its juice: it is, substantially, that those who take exception to such insane proceedings are likely to deserve more tangible charges than expressing or drinking sweet cider. Wonderful! As a sample of wit without wisdom, and of that base feeling which has placed certain so-called temperance men in the list of the lowest and basest revilers of their fellow men—and beyond the pale or recognition by pure-minded and honest workers in the temperance cause—this mighty argument of the Press stands high in its most majestic uncharitableness, ignorance and idiocy.—Boston Times.

—A New York correspondent writes to the Troy Times, relative to insurance in that city that "Some men of large landed property become their own underwriters. William B. Astor owns six hundred buildings, and can afford to do his own insurance. It would require $20,000 to pay the annual expense of insuring this property, and it is probably that in reality he does not lose one-third that amount. The same remark will apply to the Lenox, the Rhinelander, the Stuyvesant and some other large estates. Astor has been always fortunate on this point. His property has never come within the scope of our large fires, and the heaviest loss he has met since my residence here was that of the Park Theatre, but the lot was so well improved by the building subsequently erected that the loss proved a gain. This statement is equally applicable to the land burned over in the great fire of 1835. The owners of personal property and of merchandise lost their all, but the real estate proprietors could sell their vacant lots at such a handsome rate of profit as made up for the loss of building. Land is generally doubled in value when cleared by an extensive fire, and a dull place is often in this manner changed into a street of activity. An instance of this is found in Broad street, where the writer served as a clerk in 1840. At that time it was the Sleepy Hollow of New York, for though broad and spacious it was utterly deficient in business attractions. A few boarding houses and retail groceries were to be found there, and in the upper part of the street a small amount of traffic was done in a gentle and quiet manner. In 1845 Broad street was completely burned over, and the result was that land increased prodigiously in value. Large stores were erected in the place of boarding houses, and the progress continued until the Broker's Board took possession of the street and made it one of the most important spots in America."

—When Vincennes citizens meet they do not ask concerning each other's health. They simply "shake" and go directly to the nearest drug store for quinine.

—Every sinner at God's bar will stand self-condemned; he will be made to own that he knew better and did worse.

—A recent leading editorial in a Richmond paper was printed entirely in capitals, small capitals and italics.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

The Name of S. S. Houghton has become indentified with those of the most energetic and prosperous merchants in New England. His "Ladies' Pavilion," 55 Tremont Street, is the largest retail store in Boston, numbering its attendants by hundreds. Beside this vast establishment, Mr. H. has four other large stores on the principal thoroughfares of Boston, affording to ladies and gentlemen an opportunity to purchase every article needed in Dry Goods, Millinery, Small Wares, Furnishing Goods and Fancy Articles. Importing many of his own goods, and purchasing in immense quantities, Mr. Houghton is enabled to offer such bargains to purchasers as they can not obtain elsewhere, and the crowds at his stores show the public appreciation of his liberal dealing. His advertisement in another column gives particulars as to his various stores, and our citizens, when visiting Boston, should step in and take a look at them, even though they do not wish to avail themselves of the unusual bargains he is constantly offering his customers.

The Domestic Sewing Machine.—Since the Domestic Sewing Machine was awarded the "First Premium" at the late State Fair at Dover, the rush for them has been even greater than ever; Mr. E. A. Joy, the fortunate Agent, whose rooms are adjoining our office, is unable to set them up as fast as they are called for, notwithstanding he has lately employed an able assistant. Everybody who buys a "Domestic" seems happy. At the State Fair it was found to be the only Machine in the world having self adjusting tensions. It was in operation four days, using all kinds of thread on all sorts of goods, without any change of tensions. If you don't examine it before purchasing any other, you will wish you had.

It Is Said that if a puff of air were to be blown into a vein of an animal, death would instantaneously follow, because circulation would be stopped. The blood makes the entire circuit of the human body every seven minutes, and whenever this circulation is impeded or any of its channels are clogged by impurities which ought to be carried off, disease follows—fever or a disorder of liver or kidneys, or scrofula, or dyspepsia. To get at and remove the source of the difficulty use the old and infallible blood purifier, Dr. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters. o21 4w

Butter and cheese are almost indispensable articles of food. Properly used, they are nutrious and healthy; but an inordinate use of either causes indigestion and dyspepsia. Parson's Purgative Pills, judiciously used, will remove both of these troubles.

Have you ague in the face; and is it badly swollen? Have you severe pain in the chest back, or side? Have you cramp or pains in, the stomach or bowels? Have you bilious colic or severe griping pains? If so use Johnson's Anodyne Liniment.

A Lifetime Devoted to the study of the wants of the travelling public has given the American House, Boston, through its veteran landlord, Lewis Rice, a wide and enviable reputation. Newly furnished, and supplied with all modern improvements.

AWFUL DEFEAT!!!

The rout complete! The last hope of the parties who have been getting up Scalp Poisons to compete with

Cristadoro's Excelsior Hair Dye

is lost, lost, lost! Still, it towers over all rivals, new and old. Still, it remains the STANDARD HAIR DYE OF THE COUNTRY. Still, tens of thousands of heads that once showed the white flag,

Carry Cristadoro's Colors,

and the course of the dye of dyes is ever upward and onward. So much for excellence, wholesomeness, and a true reproduction of Nature's tints. As a dressing after dyeing, use

CRISTADORO'S HAIR PRESERVATIVE.

The Martyrs of Neglect.

It is not too much to say that ten of thousands are now suffering from biliousness, indigestion, constipation, periodical fevers, general debility, and nervous affections, who might be restored to perfect health within a month or less by the use of HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS. The multitudes who have been cured of these and other ailments by the use of this well known specific are always ready to testify to its virtue as a preventive and a remedy. They are spread over the whole country; they are eager to praise and recommend it; and yet, notwithstanding its vast popularity, there are many invalids, and many who are continually exposed to the epidemical diseases, against which it is a sure protection, who, either through indifference or incredulity neglect to seize the opportunity to cure any means of prevention, which they have only to reach out their hands to obtain. This is strange; it is one of the anomalies of human nature which it is impossible to account for or explain. It is, however, quite certain that every day the number of these Martyrs of Neglect are diminishing. This is proved by the statistics of the sales of the great remedy. During the present fall the demand for it has increased beyond all precedent, and it seems as if in the end the entire community would realize the important fact, that when all other medicines prescribed for the above complaints fail, it can and does effect a cure. As a protection against the diseases most common at this season, there is nothing comparable with it.

The Cause and Cure of Consumption.

The primary cause of Consumption is derangement of the digestive organs. The derangement produces deficient nutrition and assimilation. By assimilation I mean that process by which the nutriment of the food is converted into blood, and thence into the solids of the body. Persons with digestion thus impaired, having the slightest predisposition to pulmonary disease, or if they take cold, will be very liable to have Consumption of the Lungs in some of its forms; and I hold that it will be impossible to cure any case of Consumption without first restoring a good digestion and healthy assimilation. The very first thing to be done is to cleanse the stomach and bowels from all diseased mucous and slime which is clogging these organs so that they cannot perform their functions, and then rouse up and restore the liver to a healthy action. For this purpose, the surest and best remedy is SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS. These Pills cleanse the stomach and bowels of all the dead and morbid slime that is causing disease and decay in the whole system. They will clear out the liver of all diseased bile that has accumulated there, and arouse it up to a new and healthy action, by which natural and healthy bile is secreted.

The stomach, bowels and liver are thus cleansed by the use of Schenck's Mandrake Pills; but there remains in the stomach an excess of acid, the organ is torpid, and the appetite is poor. In the bowels, the lacteals are weak, and requiring strength and support. It is in a condition like this that Schenck's Seaweed Tonic proves to be the most valuable remedy ever discovered. It is alkaline, and its use will neutralize all excess of acid, making the stomach sweet and fresh; it will give permanent tone to this important organ, and create a good, hearty appetite, and prepare the system for the first process of a good digestion, and ultimately make good, healthy, living blood. After this preparatory treatment, what remains to cure most cases of consumption is the free and persevering use of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup. The Pulmonic Syrup nourishes the system, purifies the blood, and is readily absorbed into the circulation, and thence distributed to the diseased lungs. There it ripens all morbid matters, whether in the form of abscesses or tubercles, and then assists Nature to expel all the diseased matter in the form of free expectoration, when once it ripens. It is then, by the great healing and purifying properties of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, that all ulcers and cavities are healed up sound, and my patient is cured.

The essential thing to be done in curing Consumption is to get up a good appetite and a good digestion, so that the body will grow in flesh and get strong. If a person has diseased lungs, a cavity or abscess there, the cavity cannot heal, the matter cannot ripen, so long as the system is below par. What is necessary to cure is a new order of things, a good appetite, a good nutrition, the body to grow in flesh and get fat; then Nature is helped, the cavities will heal, the matter will ripen and be thrown off in large quantities, and the person regains health and strength. This is the true and only plan to cure Consumption, and if a person is very bad, if the lungs are not entirely destroyed, or even if one lung is entirely gone, if there is enough vitality left in the other to heal up, there is hope.

I have seen many persons cured with only one sound lung, live and enjoy life to a good old age. This is what Schenck's medicines will do to cure Consumption. They will clean out the stomach, sweeten and strengthen it, get up a good digestion, and give Nature the assistance she needs to clear the system of all the disease that is in the lungs, whatever the form may be.

It is important that, while using Schenck's medicines, care should be exercised not to take cold; keep in-doors in cold and damp weather; avoid night air, and take out-door exercise only in a genial and warm sunshine.

I wish it distinctly understood that when I recommend a patient to be careful in regard to taking cold while using my medicines, I do so for a special reason. A man who has but partially recovered from the effects of a bad cold is far more liable to a relapse than one who has been entirely cured, and it is precisely the same in regard to consumption. So long as the lungs are not perfectly healed, just so long is there imminent danger of a full return of the disease. Hence it is that I so strenuously caution pulmonary patients against exposing themselves to an atmosphere that is not genial and pleasant. Confirmed consumptives' lungs are a mass of sores, which the least change of atmosphere will inflame. The grand secret of my success with my medicines consists in my ability to subdue inflammation instead of invoking it, as many of the faculty do. An inflamed lung cannot with safety to the patient be exposed to the biting blasts of winter or the chilling winds of spring or autumn. It should be carefully shielded from all irritating influence. The utmost caution should be observed in this particular, as without it a cure under almost any circumstances is an impossibility.

The person should be kept on a wholesome and nutricious diet, and all the medicines continued until the body has restored to it the natural quantity of flesh and strength.

I was myself cured by this treatment of the worst kind of Consumption, and have lived to get fat and hearty these many years, with one lung mostly gone. I have cured thousands since, and very many have been cured by this treatment whom I have never seen.

About the first of October I expect to take possession of my new building at the northeast corner of Sixth and Arch Streets, where I shall be pleased to give advice to all who may require it.

Full directions accompany all my remedies, so that a person in any part of the world can be readily cured by a strict observance of the same.

Don't Like Union Generals.

The indiscreet attack upon Gen. Kilpatrick, made by the Democratic local print in its issue of Friday evening, won't scare the general much, but will serve to open the eyes of any who may have been led to believe that the party of which it professes to be the mouthpiece is any less hostile to the best interests of our country than were the rebels who fought to destroy it.

City Council, Thursday, Nov. 2.

In Board of Aldermen, the petition of William Plaisted for compensation for sprinkling Market Square the past season, was laid on the table.

The Committee on Police, to whom was referred the City Marshal's quarterly report, reported the same correct. The report was accepted.

Voted, That the Committee on Streets be authorized and instructed to cause the houses on Pleasant Street to be renumbered.

Voted, That the Mayor be authorized to lease the Spring Market to Randall & Caswell for five years from the first day of December next, at $300 per year, provided they keep a fish market in the building and that only.

Voted, That the Committee on Streets be requested to call the attention of the Street Commissioner to the condition of South Street.

Voted, That the Board meet hereafter at 7 o'clock, P. M.

—The attention of bachelors is respectfully invited to a Greek colony between the peninsular of Acte and the mainland, where for seven hundred years no woman has been allowed to come. Nor is there any female creature of the brute creations there. Over seven thousand men dwell here, in twenty-three convents, and the very idea of women is almost lost. "There is a happy land, far, far away."

—In a suit for damages for breach of promise of marriage brought by a Memphis colored woman against a man of her race, the plaintiff mentions two hundred and forty-nine dollars as the proper compensation. It would be interesting to know the data and rules of value on which this obviously careful estimate is based.

—An English life insurance pamphlet is entitled "Thinks for the Thoughtful." We beg leave to suggest a similar publication in the interest of saloon-keepers, to be called "Drinks for the Droughtful!"

Rev. J. Fullonton of Raymond has an ornament on his house in the shape of a hornet's nest a foot in diameter and 15 inches deep.

Danville has raised a turnip weighing 22 1-2 pounds.

Hon. E. H. Stoughton of New York has given $10,000 for the purpose of repairing Dartmouth Medical College.

The Twombly farm in Rochester and Somersworth has been in the family name since 1790.

Mr. Edward S. Fitz of the Andover (Mass.) Seminary has received a call from the Congregational church at Derry.

A Base Ball View of It.—In the Hawkins adultery case, just closed in the district court, the sovereign people of Utah won the toss, and accordingly, that being the "test" trial, Brigham's nine were sent to the bat. It may be said that in the first innings the church was caught out on a "foul;" in fact, the foulest known to the game now being played on the judicial diamond. Baskin's pitching is terrific, and baffles the opponents every time. Fitch, as short stop, is a failure; while Snow is invariably caught on the "fly" by Maxwell, catcher. The muffing of Miner is natural, but his grumbling is severely chastised by the umpire. There was a mistake made in sending Hempstead to the left field in the seventh inning when a "liner" from Max's ash took him in the meat-house, sending that player to Chicago and enabling the owner of the "hot one" to make a home run. A similar fate disposed of Hoge and Kirkpatrick, the latter in attempting to scrape up a "grounder" falling on his nose and fastening that important organ in mother earth. At the opening of the eighth inning, a "twister" was hit to first by Legrand Young, who retired in disappointment at seeing the baseman gobble the "regulation." Mann went out on "strikes" three times, "baulked" twice while pitching for Stout, and three times "was left on bases." It was thought the ex-secretary had more bottom, but his tally upsets that theory. Hosea reached "second" once on a "muff" of the People's right fielder, though he was not able to go farther. At the close of this interesting contest, Brigham's nine were credited with that number of "goose eggs" to their opponent's clean score —Hawkins going to the penitentiary.—Corinne Reporter.

Simple Cure for Headache.—If the saying is true that "he who causes two blades of grass to grow where only one grew before is a public benefactor," how much more is he who discovers a remedy for one of the most distressing diseases that poor human nature is heir to? Having been afflicted for many years with neuralgic headache, and after trying all the remedies I could hear of without any benefit, I had given up all hopes of a cure, having had an elder brother die of the same disease, and being told by the doctors there was no cure for it. I happily thought of trying salt, and in a short time I was delighted to see it had the best results. It is now about two months since I tried the experiment, and I have not been troubled with it since. Now I want to let "the whole world and the rest of mankind" know the remedy; it is so simple, any one can use it: Take a pinch of salt and snuff it up the nostrils until you can taste the salt in your throat. Do not blow your nose for a considerable time, but, as the water runs, snuff it up until you can spit it out of your mouth. In changeable weather, or if you feel any returns of it, repeat the remedy.—Omaha Herald.

—Apropos of the defeat of Mr. Ashbury's yacht, the story is told of an English yachtsman, who, while on a cruise in the Mediterranean, was badly beaten in a race with a Yankee schooner which he chanced to fall in with. The brush over, the Englishman generously invited the Yankee skipper aboard his boat, and, after proposing his health, said:

"I say, captain, this is the first time my yacht was ever beaten, you know."

"Well!" said the Yankee captain, "that's kinder singular, for I vow this is the first time my craft ever beat anything."

—A young man who had become smitten with a southwestern beauty who was the daughter of a blooming widow, after a protracted courtship, plucked up sufficient courage to propose, when the damsel replied: "I should be glad to accommodate you were I not already engaged; but ma wishes to marry, and I think she is just now without an engagement." The young man left for his childhood's home.

Morning Chronicle.

SPECIAL PROVIDENCES.—If the explosion of the worn boiler of the Westfield on Sunday, and the consequent destruction of life, is a sign of the Divine displeasure and a judgment upon sin, what is the explosion of the worn boiler of the Starbuck upon a week-day, and the consequent destruction of life? It was on Saturday evening that Dr. Gannett, a Unitarian, and Dr. Mason, a Baptist, two clergymen universally respected for the purity of their lives and the benignity of their teachings, were instantly killed upon the Eastern Railroad. Was it a judgment for traveling at all? Why was it not a judgment upon Dr. Gannett for being a Unitarian, or upon Dr. Mason for being a Baptist? Why not a judgment upon the community for tolerating a railroad? Why not a sign of Divine wrath with those passengers who had eaten too much dinner, or with those who were going too greedily to supper? If an event which is very simple and very explicable, however terrible and saddening, is to be regarded as a judgment, then every event may be so regarded, and therefore the significance of all events is wholly lost.

And if it be a judgment, who shall interpret it? No man is bound to accept his neighbor's view of it. Here, for instance, upon the Westfield, was some poor young couple obliged to work hard early and late through the week, and whose little child, puny, sick, withering in the close air of the city, was ordered by the doctor, as the only chance for life, to taste the fresh air from the sea. It is a small expense, but one that the poor young parents feel; yet what they can do shall be done to save their darling. So they carry him to the steamboat upon the only holiday they have—holy day, indeed, which they devote to saving their child—and as they sit upon the deck waiting to go, and the little eyes open with fresher life as the blood feels the breath of the sweeter air—instantly God touched them all, and they slept. Then one man, a devout Christian, says that it is a judgment for seeking enjoyment upon the Sabbath. But his neighbor, also a Christian, says that a God of love, who died for the sins of his children, would not angrily destroy those children for loving theirs. And another asks, if it be the glory of Christianity that it abolishes the terror of death, why do you call death a judgment, as if it were a dreadful doom?

Last Tuesday, (slyly said a newspaper long ago,) a clergyman of Ipswich was standing upon the frame of Deacon Jones' house, which was just raised, and unfortunately falling, he was killed. It is an impressive warning against standing upon the frames of unfinished houses on Tuesdays. It was a wise sarcasm; for is there any end to this cheap interpretation? Yesterday morning a little girl going to school slipped upon a piece of orange peel and broke her thigh. What a Providential admonition to little girls not to go to school in the morning! Last week Obadiah Screw's gray mare ran against a scythe left in the pasture, and cut herself so severely that she died. The day before Obadiah Screw ate baked blue-fish for dinner. Let those who are fond of baked blue-fish reflect in time upon this warning. This is no more absurd than to find in an eclipse a sign of the Divine displeasure, or in the explosion of the Westfield and Ocean Wave the punishment of sinners. We are all sinners, and whatever ill befalls us may, therefore, be as truly accounted a punishment. A burned finger, a sprained ankle, an indigestion, are, in this sense, judgments.

And there is one other point upon which the good people who so nimbly pronounce a calamity to be a punishment and a warning seem to have reflected little. Why should the sin of the poor young parents who took their child upon the Westfield in the pious hope of saving its life be, as you say, punished in so sudden and startling a manner, while the sin of robbers and rascals who break the hearts of widows and grind the poor and demoralize a community is not punished at all to our eyes, but is rewarded with unbounded affluence, comfort, luxury, and often with long, paineless life? Take care, fervent friend, that in explaining the celestial counsels as if you had been admitted to them, you do not bring the celestial power itself into doubt and contempt. Of the two venerated clergymen who were killed upon the Eastern road, and of the poor young parents whom we have supposed upon the Westfield, you say that the sudden death was God's judgment upon sin. Perhaps, perhaps. But is it not as Christian, as religious, as true, to say, like men who can not read the mysteries of events, but who yet feel that all is wisely, tenderly ordered, God giveth his beloved sleep?—Harpers' Magazine.

—The wonderful endurance of the Western people is proved again, they having stood a three hours' speech by Train, in Omaha. Being called upon for an explanation of the report of his connection with the burning of Chicago, Train said he could not imagine where such a vile slander on him and the Internationale originated, except that it was concocted by the confederates of Bismark, Tilers and the ruling powers of the Old World to strike a death-blow at him and the Internationale!

—A New York newspaper correspondent says his "very soul was coiled up in horror" by a certain incident of the Chicago fire.

—A negro convict in the South Carolina State Prison was killed last week by the barbarous punishment known as the shower-bath.

—A couple were recently married in Kansas City after a hasty courtship of only eighteen years.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS, For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs, No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON. After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Examinations made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Invention, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity of a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved to inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents.

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART.

A GREAT MEDICAL DISCOVERY!

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA

VINEGAR BITTERS.

Hundreds of Thousands Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.

WHAT ARE THEY!

THEY ARE NOT A VILE FANCY DRINK, Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Root and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and a LIFE-GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to direction and long remain unwell, provided the bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the stomach and stimulate the torpid liver and bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effect.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins, cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

PIN, TAPE and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. For full directions, read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French and Spanish.

FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal. ☞ Send for a circular.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammations of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs.

J. WALKER, Prop., R. H. McDONALD & CO., Druggists & General Agents, San Francisco, Cal., and 32 & 34 Commerce Street, New York.

The Chronicle.

—Because he was afraid his poverty would render him unsuccessful in an affair of the heart an Ohio youth named Grubbe made himself food for the worms.

—A couple were married in Ohio lately who were engaged thirty-seven years ago, but since that time the man has buried one wife and the woman two husbands.

—In speaking of the New York frauds, the Saturday Review says, to foreign observers the most surprising peculiarity of the controversy is the farcical impudence of the culprits and their abettors.

—The most recent effective result of amateur administration of quack medicine is reported from Iowa, where an incensed gentleman killed a burglar with a shot-gun, loaded with Prof. Somebody's patent pills.

—A Massachusetts clergyman has resigned his pastorate and asked his discharge — probably believing it to be high time after being presented by his congregation with a burial lot. The hint was not the most delicate one ever heard of.

—A bashful young man was escorting a bashful young lady when she said entreatingly: "Jabez, don't tell anybody you beaued me home." "Don't be afraid," replied he; 'I am as much ashamed of it as you are." That settled it at once.

—A young married man was remarking to some ladies that it was always the women who ran after the men, when his wife indignantly said, "You know, my dear, I never ran after you." "That may be," he replied, "but you took mighty good care not to get out of the way."

—Respecting that man who boasted at a western camp-meeting that he had never given his wife a cross word or look during their twenty-five years of married life, it is suggested that it may be not so much the result of amiability on the husband's part as a wholesome dread of his wife's broomstick.

—A little Irish girl was telling some of her Protestant schoolmates what great things the priest could do. "Why," said she, "if he wished he could turn a man into stone!" The other children laughed and said: "We don't believe it." "Well," was her reply, "if I were you I wouldn't believe it, but I've got to."

—In advertising his stolen coat, a man of Rochester says that if the party who took the garment will only return the contents in the pockets, and pay for advertising the loss, he can have the coat; or if he will answer the letter which the owner received from his little brother, he can have coat, contents and all, providing the photographs which were in the pockets are not palmed off as originals of the thief.

BUCHU

[From Dispensatory of the United States.]

DIOSMA CRENATA — BUCHU LEAVES.

PROPERTIES.—Their odor is strong, diffusive and somewhat aromatic; their taste bitterish and analogous to mint.

MEDICAL PROPERTIES AND USES.—Buchu leaves are gently stimulant, with a peculiar tendency to the Urinary Organs.

They are given in complaints of the Urinary Organs, such as Gravel, Chronic Catarrh of the Bladder, Morbid Irritation of the Bladder and Urethra, Disease of the Prostrate Gland, and Retention or Incontinence of Urine, from a loss of tone in the parts concerned in its evacuation. The remedy has also been recommended in Dyspepsia, Chronic Rheumatism, Cutaneous Affections and Dropsy.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is used by persons from the ages of 18 to 25, and from 35 to 55, or in the decline or change of life; after Confinement or Labor Pains; Bed-Wetting in children.

IN Affections peculiar to Females, the Extract Buchu is unequalled by any other remedy, as in Chlorosis or Retention, Irregularity, Painfulness or Suppression of Customary Evacuations, Ulcerated or Schirrous State of the Uterus.

DISEASES OF THE BLADDER, KIDNEYS, GRAVEL AND DROPSICAL SWELLINGS.—This medicine increases the power of Digestion, and excites the Absorbents into healthy action, by which the Watery or Calcareous depositions and all Unnatural Enlargements are reduced, as well as Pains and Inflammation.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU has cured every case of Diabetes in which it has been given. Irritation of the Neck of the Bladder and Inflammation of the Kidneys, Ulceration of the Kidneys and Bladder, Retention of Urine, Diseases of the Prostrate Gland, Stone in the Bladder, Calculus, Gravel, Brick-Dust Deposit and Mucous or Milky Discharges, and for enfeebled and delicate constitutions of both sexes, attended with the following ing symptoms: Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Horror of Diseases, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Pain in the Back, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Eruption on the Face, Pallid Countenance, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, etc.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is Diuretic and Blood-Purifying, and cures all diseases arising from habits of dissipation, excesses and improprieties in life, impurities of the Blood, etc., superceding Copaiba and other Nauseous Compounds.

Beware of counterfeits. Ask for Helmbold's. Take no other.

HELMBOLD'S

Fluid Extract of Buchu.

MANHOOD

IN THE

Young and Rising Generation.

The vegetable powers of life are strong, but in a few years how often the pallid hue, the lack-lustre eye and emaciated form, and the impossibility of application to mental effort, show their baneful influence. It soon becomes evident to the observer that some depressing influence is checking the development of the body. Consumption is talked of, and perhaps the youth is removed from school and sent into the country. This is one of the worst movements. Removed from ordinary diversions of the ever-changing scenes of the city, the powers of the body, too much confined to give zest to healthful and rural exercise, thoughts are turned inwardly upon themselves.

If the patient be a female the approach of the menses is looked for with anxiety as the first symptom in which nature is to show her saving power in diffusing the circulation and visiting the cheek with the bloom of health. Also! increase of appetite has grown by what it is fed on. The energies of the system are prostrated, and the whole economy is deranged. The beautiful and wonderful period in which body and mind undergo so fascinating a change from child to woman, is looked for in vain. The parent's heart bleeds in anxiety, and fancies the grave but waiting for its victim.

TRY HELMBOLD'S

EXTRACT BUCHU

For Weakness Arising from Excesses or Early Indiscretion,

attended with the following symptoms: Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, General Weakness, Horror of Disease, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Dreadful Horror of Death, Night Sweats, Cold Feet, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Languor, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, Often Enormous Appetite with Dyspeptic Symptoms, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Pallid Countenance and Eruptions on the Face, Pain in the Back, Heaviness of the Eyelids, Frequently Black Spots Flying before the Eyes, with Temporary Suffusion and Loss of Sight, Want of Attention, Great Mobility, Restlessness, with Horror of Society. Nothing is more desirable to such Patients than Solitude, and nothing they more dread, for fear of themselves; no repose of matter, no earnestness, no speculation, but a hurried transition from one question to another.

THESE SYMPTOMS, IF ALLOWED TO GO ON—WHICH THIS MEDICINE INVARIABLY REMOVES — SOON FOLLOW LOSS OF POWER, FATUITY AND EPILEPTIC FITS, IN ONE OF WHICH THE PATIENT MAY EXPIRE.

During the Superintendence of Dr. Wilson at the Bloomingdale Asylum, this sad result occurred to two patients. Science has for a time lost them, and both died of epilepsy. They were of both sexes, and about twenty years of age.

Who can say that these excesses are not frequently followed by those direful diseases, Insanity and Consumption? The records of the Insane Asylums, and the melancholy deaths of Consumption, bear ample witness to the truth of these assertions. In Lunatic Asylums the most melancholy exhibitions appears. The countenance is actually sodden and quite destitute; neither mirth nor grief ever visits it. Should a sound of the voice occur it is rarely articulate.

"With woful measures wan despair
Low sullen sounds their grief beguile."

While we regret the existence of the above diseases and symptoms, we are prepared to offer an invaluable gift of chemistry for the removal of the consequences.

HELMBOLD'S

Fluid Extract of Buchu.

There is no tonic like it. It is an anchor of hope to the physician and patient. This is the testimony of all who have used or prescribed it.

Beware of counterfeits and those cheap decoctions called Buchu, most of which are prepared by self-styled doctors, from deleterious ingredients, and offered for sale at "less price" and "larger bottles," etc. They are unreliable and frequently injurious. Ask for Helmbold's. Take no other.

Delivered to any address. Describe symptoms in all communications.

ARE YOU GOING TO PAINT?

—IF SO, USE THE—

AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINT.

It is Cheaper, Handsomer and more durable than the best of other Paints. One Thousand Gallons were sold in this City, in the year 1870, and not one complaint has come from those who have used it; but all speak in its favor; it is mixed ready for application, and is much easier put on than any other Paint, making a smooth, glossy surface for years, that can be cleaned with hot suds without injuring it. It is excellent for walls inside, in the place of paper.

I shall keep this season a large stock of Chemical Paints of all shades on hand, to accommodate customers with any amount, without delay in ordering it. Those who want to use the Chemical Paints and have had them misrepresented by those who deal in Lead and Oil, are invited to call and examine my Paints that have been on Buildings two years, and you will find them as fresh as if laid but one month.

I am prepared to do Painting by Contract, or by the day, using the Chemical Paint, or furnishing good experienced workmen by the day at very low wages. B. NORTON, only Agent for selling the

The Daily Chronicle.

Portsmouth, N. H.

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 6, 1871.

SOUTH CAROLINA.—President Grant has issued a proclamation revoking the provision of a former proclamation suspending the exercise of the writ of ha[illegible] in Marion county, it having been ascertained that combinations and unlawful conspiracies do not exist to the extent recited. A contrary state of affairs exists in Union county and the President commands such unlawful combinations and conspiracies therein to disperse peaceably within five days and deliver up their arms, ammunitions, disguises, &c., to the proper authorities.

At Yorkville, 200 Ku-Klux made voluntary confession of connection with the Klan, and surrendered themselves to the authorities, totally disgusted with their connection with it. Thirty-seven of this class came in Monday and made contession in writing. Three hundred, it is estimated, have fled to escape the penalty of their crimes or to avoid arrest, and one hundred and two are confined in jail at Yorkville.

THE NEW YORKERS are making extensive preparations for election to-morrow. The superintendent of police has ordered the whole police force on duty. Under the regulations each candidate is allowed to have a friend present to see fair play in court. The committee of seventy have arranged to have Judge Learned of the supreme court sit the whole day, independent of the usual occupants of of the bench, to protect honest voters in their rights. About 2000 young men have been enrolled as watchers of the polls on the part of the committee of seventy.

THE FIVE PER CENTS.—Judge Richardson writes from London, Oct 21, to the Treasury department that the loan will be a success. The bonds are being delivered as fast as practicable, and more rapidly than was expected. By the first week in December we shall have the transaction brought to a close in exact accordance with the original negotiation.

THE TWO GIRLS who jumped overboard at Lewiston on the 3d proved to be Ada Brown of Buckfield and Anna Wood of Hartford. They were aged 16 and 14 years, respectively. The Journal says they boarded in Auburn. One had lived in a family and the other was a mill operative. The bodies have not been recovered. No cause is known for their committing suicide. Mr. Cyrus Cobb, who saw the movements of the girls, and one or two gentlemen, who noticed where they sat but did not happen to see them when they took the fatal leap, established that the two suicides—as they seem to have leaped from the point where they first sat down—threw themselves from the flat rock which forms a level platform close to the water's edge, near the foot of the first descent of West Pitch, which consists of two falls. The first is a slight plunge upon a table rock; then a light fall for a hundred feet, more or less; then a great cataract, with, at present, a fearful fall of water, rolling down into a chasm, many feet from the base of the great fall. Here, just beyond the base of the first fall, they seem to have thrown themselves into the river. It must have been a headlong leap with the current. Mr. Cobb saw them no more. They fell and were plunged into the torrent and out of the world in a moment.

MRS. WILLIAM MULLALY, better known as Lisa Weber, who was one of the original Lydia Thompson troupe of burlesque actors, has become an American citizen, insolvent debtor, and her case was before the court of bankruptcy in Boston. The claims against her are not heavy, and for the most part consist of those of other actors and musicians for salaries due them. Among these are the following: George Gaston, $15; J. Sheridan, $300; J. Mack, $490; E. Beyer, $300; Belle Howitt, $16; Sallie Dwyer, $300; Nellie Smith, $175; Cassie Troy, $242; George Atkins, $300; Messrs. Davenport and Travers, of Gilmore's Band, $88 each; Ada Wray, $48; and Mrs. Charles Chase, $100. She owes "Brick" Pomeroy $75 for hall rent in La Crosse, Wis., $100 in similar bills in other places, and $250 for hotel charges in Western towns. Then there is a bill of $115 in St. Paul for clothes, a dressmaker's account which amounts to $250, $750 in borrowed money, and other claims. Her assets are set down as consisting of wearing apparel worth $300, and books and prints, $5. Her stock-in-trade as an actress is considered "of no value."

—In sinking a shaft for coal at Kansas City, lately, a vein of what is believed to be pencil slate was discovered.

New Publications.

The November number of the Manufacturer and Builder maintains the excellent reputation of this periodical as a magazine of useful information to practical workers in the industrial arts. It is conducted with ability and enterprise and has reached a prosperous condition. The volume for 1872 will be enlarged and improved.

It will gratify a large circle of readers of current literature to know that the fugitive Poems of Mrs. Celia Thaxter, many of which are of a superior quality, are soon to be published in a volume by Hurd & Houghton. Mrs. Thaxter's peculiar life at the Isles of Shoals has been the theme of much interest to those who have become acquainted with it. Readers of Hawthorne's "American Notes" will recall his pleasant reference to the Thaxters and their romantic experience.

New Hampshire Items.

The starch-drying house of Messrs. Parker, Young & Co., in Lisbon, was burned on Tuesday night. Loss about $2500, with $1000 insurance.

The brush factory of William F. Robie in Manchester was damage by fire on Thursday night. Loss about $3000.

The small pox has appeared at Manchester.

A saw-mill and a starch-mill belonging to W. H. Summers, in the easterly part of Whitefield, with about 25 tons of starch and 4000 bushels of potatoes, were destroyed by fire on Thursday. The fire broke out in the drying-room. Loss about $6000; insurance not known.

Correspondence.

AUGUSTA, ME., Nov. 3.

One puff of the iron steed and away we are gliding over the once Portland & Kennebec but now merged into the M. C. R. R. Seating ourselves in one of those luxurious coaches which has lately been introduced on this road, we recall to mind Sayers' popular poem and exclaim with him, "Bless me this is pleasant riding on a rail." Having "no one to love," to assist us in enlivening the time we content ourselves by looking at the panoramic views, which so swiftly come and go. Leaving the level lawns which lie in the vicinity of Portland we soon arrive at the more undulating lands and dreamily gaze on the many picturesque views which greet us. Hills crowned with the variegated tints of autumnal foliage, with dimpled valleys in whose sheltered nooks are seen the horses of the farmer, woods dense with the green of the hemlock and spruce, rivulets and streams whose waters seem like settings of silver veins, forming kaleidoscopic scenes which fade from memory as quickly as they leave our sight. After leaving Richmond we are soon in sight of the Kennebec, and in the short time that we were following its winding banks it afforded us a pleasure which we would not forget. One cannot help recalling the romance of its early history when its waters were only disturbed by the Indian canoe, but we are willing to think of the romance and realize the more happy changes which the stride of civilization have made. Along its shores are now seen villages and towns throbbing with the impulse of industry. The busy hum of saw-mills, rows of ice houses ready for stowing its frozen waters, and on its waters is seen the smoke of steam tugs, vessels heavily loaded with lumber and produce, while along its banks is one continuous line of floating rafts of logs. Passing quickly through the thriving towns along the route we soon arrive at Augusta, the Capital of the State, and takes a bird's eye view of its many attractions. From the cupola of the State House a fine picture is presented to us. Directly across the river is seen the Arsenal and Insane Asylum, to our right the city of Hallowell and on our left the city of Augusta stretches out planted as it were in a grove of trees, while all around are seen towering hills which form a fine perspectus and back ground to the picturesque attractions. The city is also made more noticeable by being the home of Hon. James G. Blaine, speaker of the national House of Representatives, Senator Morrill and Gov. Chamberlain. We leave Augusta in the shadows of the evening arrive in three hours at Bangor, the terminus of the road, and in the fatigue of sight-seeing and travelling we partake of the quiet which hangs over the city and give ourselves up to the refreshing influence of sleep.

—Mr. D. D. Home, the spiritualist, has been married to the youngest daughter of his Excellency the late Hon. Basil de Glonmeline, counsellor of State to the Emperor of Russia.

—After this week a night train will run from Bangor to St. John, N. B., over the European and North American Railroad.

—The Cincinnati soup-house in Chicago supplies nearly two thousand persons daily.

—Mr. Yung Wing, a Chinese gentleman, who was educated in Yale College, has been engaged to take charge of 30 students to the United States, and the Chinese Government has voted a grant of $1,500,000 to meet the expenses for the ensuing ten years.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

THE DOMESTIC SEWING MACHINE.—Since the Domestic Sewing Machine was awarded the "First Premium" at the late State Fair at Dover, the rush for them has been even greater than ever; Mr. E. A. Joy, the fortunate Agent, whose rooms are adjoining our office, is unable to set them up as fast as they are called for, notwithstanding he has lately employed an able assistant. Everybody who buys a "Domestic" seems happy. At the State Fair it was found to be the only Machine in the world having self adjusting tensions. It was in operation four days, using all kinds of thread on all sorts of goods, without any change of tensions. If you don't examine it before purchasing any other, you will wish you had.

IT IS SAID that if a puff of air were to be blown into a vein of an animal, death would instantaneously follow, because circulation would be stopped. The blood makes the entire circuit of the human body every seven minutes, and whenever this circulation is impeded or any of its channels are clogged by impurities which ought to be carried off, disease follows—fever or a disorder of liver or kidneys, or scrofula, or dyspepsia. To get at and remove the source of the difficulty use the old and infallible blood purifier, DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA VINEGAR BITTERS. o21 4w

Butter and cheese are almost indispensable articles of food. Properly used, they are nutrious and healthy; but an inordinate use of either causes indigestion and dyspepsia. Parson's Purgative Pills, judiciously used, will remove both of these troubles.

Have you ague in the face; and is it badly swollen? Have you severe pain in the chest back, or side? Have you cramp or pains in the stomach or bowels? Have you bilious colic? Have severe griping pains? If so use Johnson's Anodyne Liniment.

The Martyrs of Neglect.

It is not too much to say that ten of thousands are now suffering from biliousness, indigestion, constipation, periodical fevers, general debility, and nervous affections, who might be restored to perfect health within a month or less by the use of HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS. The multitudes who have been cured of these and other ailments by the use of this well known specific are always ready to testify to its virtue as a preventive and a remedy. They are spread over the whole country: they are eager to praise and recommend it; and yet, notwithstanding its vast popularity, there are many invalids, and many who are continually exposed to the epidemical diseases, against which it is a sure protection, who, either through indifference or incredulity neglect to seize the opportunity to cure any means of prevention, when they have only to reach out their hands to obtain. This is strange; it is one of the anomalies of human nature which it is impossible to account for or explain. It is, however, quite certain that every day the number of these Martyrs of Neglect are diminishing. This is proved by the statistics of the sales of the great remedy. During the present fall the demand for it has increased beyond all precedent, and it seems as if to the end the entire community would realize the important fact, that when all other medicines prescribed for the above complaints fail, it can and does effect a cure. As a protection against the diseases most common at this season, there is nothing comparable with it.

"Unquestionably the best sustained work of the kind in the World."

Harper's Magazine.

Notices of the Press.

There are few intelligent American families in which HARPER'S MAGAZINE would not be an appreciated and highly welcome guest. There is no monthly magazine so intelligent reading hardly can be affirmed to be without. Many Magazines are accumulated. Harper's is edited. There is not a Magazine that is printed which shows more intelligent pains expended on its articles and mechanical execution. There is not a cheaper Magazine published. There is not, confidently, a more popular Magazine in the world.—New England Homestead.

A repository of biography and history, literature, science and art, unequalled by any other American publication. * * * The volumes are as valuable as a mere work of reference as any cyclopædia we can place in our libraries. HARPER'S MAGAZINE is a record of travel everywhere since the hour of its establishment. Livingstone and Gordon Cumming in Africa, Stanin across the Arabian and Ross Browne in the East, spoke on the Nile, and Macgregor on the Jordan—indeed all recent travel and research have their most important discoveries reproduced in these pages. Most of our younger and many of our older writers find here their literary biography. Our artists are the best evidences of their genius and the most enduring specimens of their work in the Magazine.—N. Y. Standard.

It is one of the wonders of journalism—the editorial management of HARPER'S.—The Nation, N. Y.

This yields to the road about $100,000, nearly all of the amount being included in the last four months.

A Good Move.

The Journal says: "We hear that a petition is in circulation asking the removal of the delapidated 'fire-trap' which has so long stood at the corner of Washington and Pleasant Streets." We are not told to whom the petition is addressed, but we hope it will be listened to, for the old barn adds about as little to the architectural beauty of the city as any building in it, and would probably have fallen down long ago had it not been held together by the circus bills plastered upon it.

Eastern Railroad.

Superintendent Prescott of the Eastern Railroad has established signals at all the stations between Boston and this city, consisting of a ball by day and a lantern by night, and no engineer is allowed to enter a station unless he sees the signal. This is but one of many contemplated improvements. Since the Revere disaster the trains are lighted with what is said to be a perfectly safe and non-explosive oil, Mineral Sperm. Messrs. Butler & Laighton advertise this oil and exhibit it each evening at their store.

Our Billous Cotemporary

Is still harping about the lecture of Gen. Kilpatrick. We were personally more displeased at the change of the lecture the General delivered than the Phophet was, inasmuch as it cost us a deal of trouble which gave rise to a mistake which we did our best to prevent. Had Gen. Kilpatrick eulogised Lee and Jackson instead of Grant and Sherman, our cotemporary would never have indicated any discontent. We wonder why he has not already attacked Meeker's Museum because it flies the stars and stripes. He is ashamed of us, is Snarleyow, and we're very thankful for it. We would not have his esteem for a hundred dollars a month. We would like to know if he ever quits minding the business of other people long enough to feel ashamed of himself!

A Base Slander.

We are over head and ears in grief and indignation at a base slander breathed by some "dirty, meddlesome, pestilent curs" against the honor and probity of that magnificent model of a noble manhood, the editor of the Manchester Public Forum. In the last issue of that great comic paper he says he went to Manchester to stay, (what Manchester has done to merit such a fate we do not know,—unless 'tis a special judgment on that Republican city for electing a coppery mayor,) that he "expected to encounter Radical hostility in every shape and form, and was prepared to meet it at all times and everywhere," and then continues:—

But right here, some three or four men, well known to us, but who shall be nameless here, started the very contemptible and in all respects utterly infamous story that we had sold out to the Radicals and were publishing this paper in the interests of the Radical party. * * * We are not a dumb beast in the market for sale, nor a man to be dickered off for any price over contemplated by human mortals. And no person ever ventured to broach or hint such a proposition in our presence. Both parties to our printing trade have fulfilled their agreement thus far, and no third person, except he be a dirty, meddlesome, pestilent cur would ever think of interfering with our business affairs.

We cannot find language sufficiently emphatic to express the scorn and detestation we entertain for the "very contemptible and in all respects utterly infamous" story started by those "dirty, meddlesome, pestilent curs." What if Joshua is spreading dismay and dissension in the copperhead army of New Hampshire, by his attempts to drive them back to the good old Democratic platform that northern working men have no rights which southern aristocrats are bound to respect? Does that make his paper a Republican masked battery? No. What though it is charged that he tried to get a half-dozen leading Republicans of Portsmouth to start a "red hot" Radical paper with him as its editor, in the early days of the rebellion, the CHRONICLE being too lukewarm on the subject to suit him? Does that prove that he wasn't as mean a copperhead then as he is now? We don't see it in that light. No wonder he piles up more than a column of adjectives and Fosterian figures of speech, in repudiating the base insinuation and attempting to smother its authors. We, too, would use more adjectives regarding them and their pitiful conduct, but the Public Forum has exhausted the supply in its editorials. Our grief is slightly assuaged by contemplating the terrible fate which awaits those "dirty, meddlesome, pestilent curs" when Joshua takes up his "corrective whalebone" and proceeds to inflict a historical column concerning the terrible things he has done to them and had as lief as not do over again.

WRECKED.

CHAPTER I.

She stood upon the balcony and looked out seaward. The wind blew in with freshness on its wings, and fluttered her yellow hair about her face. It touched her cheeks and they were rosy, and her eyes sparkled. The crisp, bracing air was like a draught of wine.

The ocean boomed against the beach. Its low, deep music was like the sound of an organ's diapason heard afar off. Olive Gresham loved it. It spoke to her soul, and gave her higher, better thoughts.

Presently there was a sound of carriage wheels on the avenue, and she turned that way.

A carriage came bowling up to the door. It held a man and a woman. The man was John Gresham, her husband. The woman was an old friend of his, a Gertrude Dorn, that he had invited among others to spend a few weeks at Seaview. He had gone down to the station that morning to meet her. Olive had spent half the time of his absence in wondering if she should like this woman of whom she had heard so much, and asking herself why she dreaded her coming so.

She was a tall and handsome woman. Olive saw that, as her husband helped her to alight. A face like Cleopatra's—dark, rich and olive tinted. Eyes full of a deep subtle fire. Hair of purplish blackness, coiled about her head in a queenly way that became her more than a crown would have done. A dress of some dark stuff fitted her tall form closely and set off her rich beauty well.

"No wonder half the men are crazy about her," Olive thought. "Such beauty as hers is enough to turn their head, let alone their hearts."

She turned to go down to greet their visitor.

On the landing she met Mrs. Devenon. She was one of those women who see everything without appearing to have any regard for anybody's business save their own. She would have made a splendid acquisition for the female detective police had there been such a thing in existence.

She stopped Olive as they met.

"Be careful of that Miss Dorn," she said. "She's a dangerous woman—perfectly unscrupulous, I assure you. She does not care who her victims are. Married or unmarried, it makes no difference to her. She came near making havoc of your husband's heart once, I believe; so keep a lookout, and do not give her a chance to get an influence over him again. Men get perfectly crazy over such women as Miss Dorn sometimes, you know. There is something about her that charms them, or bewitches them, I don't know which."

Olive turned away and went down stairs.

Her husband and Miss Dorn were in the parlor.

"Miss Dorn, my wife," John Gresham said, as Olive entered.

Olive bowed and gave Miss Dorn her hand, saying a few words of welcome.

"I am happy to know your wife, John," Miss Dorn said to Mr. Gresham. "You must excuse me if I call your husband John, Mrs. Gresham. We used to be very great friends, and it sounds so formal to say Mr. Gresham."

She had a soft and mellow voice. It was full of music, and vibrated on the ear pleasantly as the tinkles of silver bells. She had it under perfect control, and knew how to use it effectively. She was evidently a woman who knew her resources and how to use them to the best effect.

"Would you like to go to your room?" Olive asked.

"If you please," Miss Dorn said, and followed her hostess up stairs.

CHAPTER II.

Miss Dorn came down to dinner. She knew most of the visitors at Seaview. She took her place at once as an acknowledged queen in society. She was a witty, fluent conversationalist, and was capable of holding her own on almost any subject under discussion. Consequently she was a favorite with the gentlemen, as indeed she would have been had she possessed no attractions but her face and her exquisite voice.

After dinner the long drawing-room windows were thrown open to the cool breeze from the sea, and the company adjourned thither.

It was a beautiful night. The moonlight drifted whitely over the landscape and touched the sea with mellow splendor. The roar of the waves upon the shore came distinctly on the wind like a strain of deep and solemn music. Overhead the stars shone like silver sparks in the blue sky. Olive stood at one of the windows and took in the beauty of the quiet scene.

"We must have Miss Dorn sing for us," some one said. "She is a splendid singer; or used to be when I knew her some years ago."

"Of course," was the reply. "Ask her please—some one."

There arose a clamor for music from Miss Dorn. She was sitting in a low chair, and John Gresham was leaning over her.

"I suppose I shall have to gratify them," she said, looking up to his face with her dark, southern eyes. "Do you ever sing 'At the Orchard Side,' now?"

"No," he answered. "I have never sung it or heard of it since—that summer."

Olive fancied there was something like a regret in his voice. What summer did he mean? Had it held disappointment for him, of pleasant dreams and hopes; and had Miss Dorn anything to do with it? She half smiled at her jealous thought.

"I will sing that if you will help me," Miss Dorn said. "You used to sing it with me, you know, in that 'good old time.'"

"I will try," he said, and led her to the piano.

She sat down, and touched the keys softly. She had an exquisite touch—firm and correct, and capable of expressing her moods. She played a pretty little prelude, touching from its plaintive simpleness and pathos, and began to sing.

A silence fell upon the room. It was a little song that once had been very popular. One of those little waifs that come from no one knows where, and drift through the world for a while, then disappear as suddenly as they came.

Olive watched them—her husband and Miss Dorn. He stood at the piano and looked down into the singer's face, and forgot that he had promised to sing. He seemed under her influence, charmed, spell-bound, fascinated.

A sudden fear smote Olive Gresham's heart. Had she cause to dread this woman's influence over her husband.

Then the song ended, and Miss Dorn began playing Beethoven's Moonlight Sonata. An opal ring upon her finger glowed and glittered in the light like a fiery eye. Olive hated opals. This one seemed mocking her.

Concluded in our next.

R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs,
No. 78 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

The Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity of a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents.

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in all cases. I do not hesitate to give my proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges. A GREAT MEDICAL DISCOVERY!

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA

VINEGAR BITTERS.

Hundreds of Thousands Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.

WHAT ARE THEY!

THEY ARE NOT A VILE FANCY DRINK, Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Roots and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and a LIFE-GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to direction and remain long unwell, provided the bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the stomach and stimulate the torpid liver and bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurvy, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effect.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins, cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

PIN, TAPE and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. For full directions, read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French and Spanish.

FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal. ☞ Send for a circular.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs. lyrdawf6w16

ST. CLOUD HOTEL, NEW YORK. By RAND BROTHERS, Broadway, Cor. of 42nd Street.

The Cause and Cure of Consumption.

The primary cause of Consumption is derangement of the digestive organs. The derangement produces deficient nutrition and assimilation. By assimilation I mean that process by which the nutriment of the food is converted into blood, and thence into the solids of the body. Persons with digestion thus impaired, having the slightest predisposition to pulmonary disease, or if they take cold, will be very liable to have Consumption of the Lungs in some of its forms; and I hold that it will be impossible to cure any case of Consumption without first restoring a good digestion and healthy assimilation. The very first thing to be done is to cleanse the stomach and bowels from all diseased mucous and slime which is clogging these organs so that they cannot perform their functions, and then rouse up and restore the liver to a healthy action. For this purpose, the surest and best remedy is SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS. These Pills cleanse the stomach and bowels of all the dead and morbid matter that is causing disease and decay in the whole system. They will clear out the liver of all diseased bile that has accumulated there, and arouse it up to a new and healthy action, by which natural and healthy bile is secreted.

The stomach, bowels and liver are thus cleansed by the use of Schenck's Mandrake Pills; but there remains in the stomach an excess of acid, the organ is torpid, and the appetite is poor. In the bowels, the lacteals are weak, and requiring strength and support. It is in a condition like this that Schenck's Seaweed Tonic proves to be the most valuable remedy ever discovered. It is alkaline, and its use will neutralize all excess of acid, making the stomach sweet and fresh; it will give permanent tone to this important organ, and create a good, hearty appetite, and prepare the system for the proper work of a good digestion, and ultimately make good, healthy, living blood. After this preparatory treatment, what remains to cure most cases of consumption is the free and persevering use of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup. The Pulmonic Syrup nourishes the system, purifies the blood, and is readily absorbed into the circulation, and thence distributed to the diseased lungs. There it ripens all morbid matters, whether in the form of abscesses or tubercles, and then assists Nature to expel all the diseased matter in the form of free expectoration, when once it ripens. It is then, by the great healing and purifying properties of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, that all ulcers and cavities are healed up sound, and my patient is cured.

The essential thing to be done in curing Consumption is to get up a good appetite and a good digestion, so that the body will grow in flesh and get strong. If a person has diseased lungs, a cavity or abscess there, the cavity cannot heal, the matter cannot ripen, so long as the system is below par. What is necessary to cure is a new order of things, a good appetite, a good nutrition, the body to grow in flesh and get fat; then Nature is helped, the cavities will heal, the matter will ripen and be thrown off in large quantities, and the person regains health and strength. This is the true and only plan to cure Consumption, and, if a person is very bad, it will do to cure not entirely destroyed, or even if one lung is entirely gone, if there is enough vitality left in the other to heal up there is hope.

I have seen many persons cured with only one sound lung, live and enjoy life to a good old age. This is what I call cures for Schenck's Pulmonic Consumption. They will clean out the stomach, sweeten and strengthen it, get up a good digestion, and give Nature the assistance she needs to clear the system of all the disease that is in the lungs, whatever the form may be.

It is important that, while using Schenck's medicines, care should be exercised not to take cold; keep in-doors in cold and damp weather; avoid night air, and take out-door exercise only in a pleasant, warm, dry day.

I wish it distinctly understood that when I recommend a patient to be careful in regard to taking cold while using my medicines, I do so for a special reason. A man who has been partially recovered from the effects of a bad cold is far more liable to a relapse than one who has been entirely cured, and it is precisely the same in regard to consumption. So long as the lungs are not perfectly healed, just so long is there imminent danger of a relapse, and of the disease. Hence it is that I so strenuously caution pulmonary patients against exposing themselves to an atmosphere that is not warm and pleasant. Confirmed consumptives' lungs are a mass of sores, which the least change of atmosphere will inflame, and all my secret of my success with my medicines consists in my ability to subdue inflammation instead of provoking it, as many of the faculty do. An inflamed lung cannot with safety to life and health be exposed to the biting blasts of winter or the chilling winds of spring or autumn. It should be carefully shielded from all irritating influences. The same caution should be observed in this particular, as without it a cure under almost any circumstances is an impossibility.

The person should be kept on a wholesome and nutritious diet, and all the medicines continued until the body has restored to it the natural quantity of health, free of freight and cartage, at Manufacturer's Prices.

I was myself cured by this treatment of the worst kind of Consumption, and have lived to get fat and hearty these many years, and I feel it most mostly gone. I have cured thousands since, and very many have been cured by this treatment when I have never seen them.

About the first of October I expect to take possession of my new building at the northeast corner of Sixth and Arch Streets, where I shall be pleased to give advice to all who may require it.

Full directions accompany all my remedies, so that a person in any part of the world can be readily cured by a strict observance of the same.

THE BLESSING OF TO-DAY.

Strange, we never praise the music
Till the sweet voiced birds have flown;
Strange that we should slight the violets
Till the lovely flowers are gone;
Strange that summer skies and sunshine
Never seem one half so fair
As when winter's snowy pinions
Shake the white down in the air!

Lips from which the seal of silence
None but God can roll away,
Never blossomed in such beauty
As adorns the mouth to-day;
And sweet words that freight our memory
With their beautiful perfume,
Come to us in sweeter accents
Through the portals of the tomb.

Let us gather up the sunbeams
Lying all around our path;
Let us keep the wheat and roses,
Casting out the thorns and chaff;
Let us find our sweetest comfort
In the blessings of to-day,
With a patient hand removing
All the briers from our way.

—There was a young lady of Boston
Who, in garments, ne'er counted the cost on.
She her ward robe did fill,
But there was such a long bill,
As astonished this young lady from Boston.

THE OPEN POLAR SEA.—Dr. Petermann, the well known geographer, writes to several German papers to announce the success of an Arctic expedition. According to a despatch received by him a few days ago, dated Tromsoe, October 3, Lieutenants Weyprecht and Payer, the one of the German navy, the other of the Austrian engineers, have penetrated to the 79th degree north latitude, and actually discovered the open Arctic Sea, so long the El Dorado and Fata Morgana of northern explorers. The feat was accomplished in a Norwegian sloop, penetrating northwards between Spitzbergen and Nova Zembla. The discoverers, who themselves chartered the ship, report having found an open sea from the 42d degree to the 60th degree east longitude, which they navigated up to the 78th degree north latitude. The greatest width was at the 79th degree north latitude, and but little ice was to be seen northward. As this occurred in September, there seems to be a chance that the long-sought passage to the extreme north has been found at last. At any rate, it must be admitted that the anticipations of Dr. Petermann, who long recommended a trip north of Spitzbergen, are borne out by the event.

THIRTY YEARS' EXPERIENCE IN THE TREATMENT OF Chronic and Sexual Diseases.

A PHYSIOLOGICAL VIEW OF MARRIAGE. The cheapest book ever published—containing nearly three hundred pages, and one hundred and thirty fine plates and engravings of the anatomy of the human organs in a state of health and disease, with a treatise on early errors, its deplorable consequences upon the mind and body, with the author's plan of treatment—the only rational and successful mode of cure, as shown by a report of cases treated. A truthful adviser to the married and those contemplating marriage, who entertain doubts of their physical condition. Sent free of postage to any address, on receipt of twenty-five cents in stamps or postal currency, by addressing DR. LA CROIX, No. 31 Maiden Lane, Albany, N. Y. The author may be consulted upon any of the diseases upon which his book treats, either personally or by mail, and medicines sent to any part of the world.

BUCHU

[From Dispensatory of the United States.]

DIOSMA CRENATA — BUCHU LEAVES.

PROPERTIES.—Their odor is strong, diffusive and somewhat aromatic; their taste bitterish and analogous to mint.

MEDICAL PROPERTIES AND USES.—Buchu leaves are gently stimulant, with a peculiar tendency to the Urinary Organs.

They are given in complaints of the Urinary Organs, such as Gravel, Chronic Catarrh of the Bladder, Morbid Irritation of the Bladder and Urethra, Disease of the Prostrate Gland, and Retention or Incontinence of Urine, from a loss of tone in the parts concerned in its evacuation. The remedy has also been recommended in Dyspepsia, Chronic Rheumatism, Cutaneous Affections and Dropsy.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is used by persons from the ages of 18 to 25, and from 35 to 55, or in the decline or change of life; after Confinement or Labor Pains; Bed-Wetting in children.

In affections peculiar to Females, the Extract Buchu is unequalled by any other remedy, as in Chlorosis or Retention, Irregularity, Painfulness or Suppression of Customary Evacuations, Ulcerated or Schirrous State of the Uterus.

DISEASES OF THE BLADDER, KIDNEYS, GRAVEL AND DROPSICAL SWELLINGS.—This medicine increases the power of Digestion, and excites the Absorbents into healthy action, by which the Watery or Calcareous depositions and all Unnatural Enlargements are reduced, as well as Pains and Inflammation.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU has cured every case of Diabetes in which it has been given. Irritation of the Neck of the Bladder and Inflammation of the Kidneys, Ulceration of the Kidneys and Bladder, Retention of Urine, Diseases of the Prostrate Gland, Stone in the Bladder, Calculus, Gravel, Brick-Dust Deposit and Mucous or Milky Discharges, and for enfeebled and delicate constitutions of both sexes, attended with the following symptoms: Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Horror of Diseases, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Pain in the Back, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Eruption on the Face, Pallid Countenance, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, etc.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is Diuretic and Blood-Purifying, and cures all diseases arising from habits of dissipation, excesses and imprudences in life, impurities of the Blood, etc., superceding Copaiba and other Nauseous Compounds.

Beware of counterfeits. Ask for Helmbold's. Take no other.

Price $1.25 per Bottle, or 6 Bottles for $6.50.

MANHOOD

IN THE

Young and Rising Generation.

The vegetable powers of life are strong, but in a few years how often the pallid hue, the lack-lustre eye and emaciated form, and the impossibility of application to mental effort, show their baneful influence. It soon becomes evident to the observer that some depressing influence is checking the development of the body. Consumption is talked of, and perhaps the youth is removed from school and sent into the country. This is one of the worst movements. Removed from ordinary diversions of the ever-changing scenes of the city, the powers of the body, too much enfeebled to give zest to healthful and rural exercise, thoughts are turned inwardly upon themselves.

If the patient be a female the approach of the menses is looked for with anxiety as the first symptom in which nature is to show her saving power in diffusing the circulation and visiting the cheek with the bloom of health. Also! increase of appetite has grown by what it is fed on. The energies of the system are prostrated, and the whole economy is deranged. The beautiful and wonderful period in which body and mind undergo so fascinating a change from child to woman, is looked for in vain. The parent's heart bleeds in anxiety, and fancies the grave but waiting for its victim.

TRY HELMBOLD'S
EXTRACT BUCHU

For Weakness Arising from Excesses or Early Indiscretion,

attended with the following symptoms: Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, General Weakness, Horror of Disease, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Dreadful Horror of Death, Night Sweats, Cold Feet, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Languor, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, Often Enormous Appetite with Dyspeptic Symptoms, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Pallid Countenance and Eruptions on the Face, Pain in the Back, Heaviness of the Eyelids, Frequently Black Spots Flying before the Eyes, with Temporary Suffusion and Loss of Sight, Want of Attention, Great Mobility, Restlessness, with Horror of Society. Nothing is more desirable to such Patients than Solitude, and nothing they more dread, for fear of themselves; no repose of matter, no earnestness, no speculation, but a hurried transition from one question to another.

THESE SYMPTOMS, IF ALLOWED TO GO ON—WHICH THIS MEDICINE INVARIABLY REMOVES — SOON FOLLOW LOSS OF POWER, FATUITY AND EPILEPTIC FITS, IN ONE OF WHICH THE PATIENT MAY EXPIRE.

During the Superintendence of Dr. Wilson at the Bloomingdale Asylum, this sad result occurred to two patients. Reason has for a time left them, and both died of epilepsy. They were of both sexes, and about twenty years of age.

Who can say that these excesses are not frequently followed by those direful diseases, Insanity and Consumption? The records of the Insane Asylums, and the melancholy deaths of Consumption, bear ample witness to the truth of these assertions. In Lunatic Asylums the most melancholy exhibitions appears. The countenance is actually sodden and quite destitute; neither mirth nor grief ever visits it. Should a sound of the voice occur it is rarely articulate.

"With woful measures wan despair
Low sullen sounds their grief beguile."

While we regret the existence of the above diseases and symptoms, we are prepared to offer an invaluable gift of chemistry for the removal of the consequences.

HELMBOLD'S
Fluid Extract of Buchu.

There is no tonic like it. It is an anchor of hope to the physician and patient. This is the testimony of all who have used or prescribed it.

Beware of counterfeits and those cheap decoctions called Buchu, most of which are prepared by self-styled doctors, from deleterious ingredients, and offered for sale at "less price" and "larger bottles," etc. They are unreliable and frequently injurious. Ask for Helmbold's. Take no other.

Delivered to any address. Describe symptoms in all communications.

ARE YOU GOING TO PAINT?
—IF SO, USE THE—
AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINT.

It is Cheaper, Handsomer and more durable than the best of other Paints. One Thousand Gallons of it were sold in this City, in the year 1870, and not one complaint has come from those who have used it; but all speak in its favor; it is mixed ready for application, and is much easier put on than any other Paint, making a smooth, glossy surface for years, that can be cleaned with hot water without injuring it. It is excellent for walls inside, in the place of paper.

I shall keep this season a large stock of Chemical Paints of all shades on hand, to accommodate customers with any amount, without delay in ordering it. Those who want to use the Chemical Paints and have had them misrepresented by those who deal in Lead and Oil, are invited to call and examine my Paints that have been on Buildings two years, and you will find them as fresh as if laid but one month.

I am prepared to do Painting by Contract, or by the day, using the Chemical Paint, after furnishing good experienced workmen by the day at very low wages. B. NORTON, only Agent for selling the

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 7, 1871.

AN UNANSWERABLE ARGUMENT.—The public debt has been reduced $282,700,303,82 during Gen. Grant's administration, and amounted on the 1st of November to $2,251,713,448.03.

THE ELECTIONS to be held to-day excite the utmost interest. There is an eager desire among both parties to hear from New York. We shall endeavor to secure full reports as far as possible, and hope to chronicle a series of Republican victories in our next issue. It seems almost like hoping against hope that Tammany will be defeated in its stronghold, but there seems good ground for the belief that New York will elect an honest Republican legislature.

THE ARCTIC WHALING FLEET has met with a terrible disaster. Thirty-three vessels were caught in the ice, crushed and abandoned. On the 1st of June the ice opened and let the fleet up within sight of Cape Navarino. The fleet working northward found some whales crossing the Sea of Anadyr and in the Behring Sea more and plenty, but experienced much trouble from ice. When the fleet arrived at Cape Berhing and Flower Bay, the whales had passed through into the Arctic Ocean, whither the fleet followed, meeting with fair success until about the 1st of September, when ice-floes and bergs to a great extent commenced drifting down, and by the 10th a number of vessels had been sunk and the bulk of the remainder were ashore. On September 2, the brig Comet sank, and on the 7th the Roman was drifted bodily out to sea by two floes and crushed like an egg-shell. The crew narrowly escaped. The Florida and Victoria, of San Francisco, were also crushed. September 13, the captains of the fleet, hemmed in between Point Belcher and Wainwright Inlet, held a meeting and resolved to abandon the vessels in order to save the lives of the crews, which was done, and 1200 sailors took refuge on board the remainder of the fleet which had been fortunate enough to escape outside before the ice had closed in the vessels. The vessels abandoned are the Concordia, Gayhead, George, John Wells, Massachusetts, J. D. Thompson, Contest, G. Morgan, Champion, Henry Tabor, E. Swift, O. Crocker, Navy, Reindeer, Fanny, George Howland, Pacia, Eugenia, Kalosela and T. Dickinson. The vessels known to be safe with the oil secured are as follows: Arctic, with 480 barrels; Progress, 250; Chance, 220 sperm and 280 whale; Daniel Webster, 250; Lagoda, 725; Europa, 330; Medos, 450 whale and 140 sperm. All the abandoned vessels, it is believed, will be a total loss, there being little chance of recovering even the cargoes in the spring.

The loss in New Bedford by the disaster will reach $1,000,000.

WHALE OIL advanced in Boston, Monday, from 60 cts. to $1 per gallon, in consequence of the loss of the whaling fleet.

AVENGING JUSTICE.—A New York correspondent of the Boston Advertiser writes as follows:—

I do not apprehend any serious trouble on the day of election. The dangerous classes, numbering not less than one hundred thousand men in this city, are well aware that the public mind is now too much aroused to make either prudent or safe any further experiment upon its patience and magnanimity. If the followers of Tweed should have any inclination to repeat their procedure of last July, they can hardly find a better time to show their mettle and our own, than on Tuesday next. We are better prepared now than we may be for some time to come; and much as I should like to, I cannot doubt that there must be, some day, a terrible strife between the advocates of order and the abettors of lawlessness. Ruffianism has become so engrafted upon the stock of this community that, it would seem, the engraftment cannot be expelled without the use of steel.

The wild excitement the July riots created throughout the length and breadth of the land evinced in the most unmistakable manner the latent feeling of hostility toward the mob element and mob spirit which has so long ruled this city. Of course, the feeling exists here to an intense, though in an equally suppressed degree; and there are grave apprehensions, if our united efforts on Tuesday prove abortive, that the calmest and most conservative citizens will be willing to listen to counsels of violence. On one thing the intelligent and honest part of this community seems now determined,—that it will no longer be ruled by a mob; that it will have justice in the courts; that it will have an honest administration of the municipal government, and, last but not least, that at any and all hazards purity of the ballot-box shall be preserved.

Gen. James McCleary, a Republican Congressman from Louisiana, is dead.

THE EASTERN RAILROAD MANAGERS have large gangs of workmen engaged in laying the double track over the Saugus Branch and between Wenham and Ipswich. At the Boston station, where cars leave for so many different places at the same hour, cards are affixed to each coach on the outward train designating the towns for which the car is destined. Whether these cards will prevent the Salem and Lynn people from occupying the cars intended for Portland and Bangor people and relieve the down east travellers from the necessity of going to the front en route, remains to be seen.

The Great Falls and Conway Railroad is completed to Madison, six miles beyond West Ossipee, and the first passenger-train between those stations ran on Saturday, conveying a part of the officers of the road, who are on a tour of inspection, and a large party of invited guests.

The shoe business at Pittsfield is so dull that the manufacturers are about suspending operations.

—The boiler of a locomotive at Portsmouth, O., exploded on Saturday, killing one man and injuring several.

—The English Parliment has been further prorogued to December 27, by a proclamation from the Queen.

THOROUGH RAILROAD CONSTRUCTION.—In a recent series of letters to the N. Y. Tribune, by Mr. Charles Nordhoff, well known as the former Managing Editor of the Evening Post, we find the following account of the work of construction on the Middle Division of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad:

The main road from Colesmouth to Kanawha Falls lies almost constantly in sight of the road, and frequently crosses it, and thus we had an opportunity to see the condition of this work, so important to all this region. The grading is completed, with a few unimportant breaks, to the Falls; the ties are either laid or at hand, and all is ready for the iron. The work has not been very heavy so far, for the country is comparatively easy. The mountain torrents, which pour into the Kanawha, have made necessary a good deal of masonry, and it is very plain that the Company's Chief Engineer, Major H. D. Whitcomb, has known how to select good masons. The high stone arches, bridges, and culverts are admirably solid, and the substance of the country has been laid in so workmanlike a manner that our party often stopped in admiration of it. I do not know of a road in the country whose stonework will compare with that of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad, so far as I have seen it.

More than two years were consumed in the survey of the wild country between the White Sulphur Springs and the Falls of Kanawha. The result is a road-way which passes through the mountains on an easier grade by far than any other of the East and West lines connecting the Atlantic with the West. The Erie Railway has grades as high as 84 feet to the mile; the Pennsylvania has 95 feet to the mile; the New York Central, though in general it has easy grades, runs up to 95 feet to the mile; the Baltimore and Ohio runs up to 116 feet to the mile. The Chesapeake and Ohio will have no grade over 30 feet to the mile facing west, and west of Howard's Creek it has none more than 20 feet to the mile. It will have the lowest grade of all the great East and West lines, and this, joined to the fact that it taps the Ohio at a point, Huntington, so low down that it is always accessible to steamboats, and that it will give the Southwest its shortest connection with the Atlantic, would make it a great enterprise, important to the country, even if it did not pass through a region of unexampled richness in coal, iron, and timber, which has heretofore been shut out from a market, and closed against capital and industry.

The New River and the Greenbrier have, in the course of ages, worn their way through the mass of hills and mountains which lie between the Falls of Kanawha and the White Sulphur Spring. * * * It was to carry an easy grade that the engineers of the Chesapeake and Ohio Road selected the course of the New River for their line. There, Nature had done, in the course, perhaps, of millions of years, a work of excavation for them, which gave them the means of laying a road-bed so nearly level that it presents no obstacles to travel or transportation. * * * At two great bends which the New River makes, tunnels are building. One of these, 6,400 feet long, will be the longest in the United States until the Hoosac tunnel is completed. It saves nearly five miles of difficult road building. In these tunnels large gangs of men are employed at several points; and the whole line is in a good style of forwardness. With the exception of some miles of easy work near the Greenbrier, which can be done so rapidly that it was not advisable to put it under contract until next Spring, the whole line of the New River and Greenbrier is under contract, and everywhere the contractors are busily at work. A great part of the road-bed has already been completed, and all is so planned and carried on that the whole line shall be done simultaneously with the tunnel at Great Bend. There is no reason to doubt that, as the work is now going on, the road can be opened by or before next October, which I believe the engineers expect to accomplish. Indeed, though there is still some heavy work to be done—for it is all, or nearly all, heavy work—it seemed to me that the worst had been done first, and that what remains is neither so difficult nor likely to be so costly or tedious as what is finished. The piers of the bridge at the crossing of the New River, at Miller's Ferry, for instance, the longest bridge on the road, are completed; and one span of the bridge will be laid this Fall. This bridge will be 670 feet long, and the span which was being raised when I passed there was 250 feet in length.

There is very little bridging needed on the New River, (I believe there is only one other bridge besides that mentioned above,) and there will be no trestle-work at all for 110 miles of road. Eventually, I believe, it is intended to replace all the trestle-work there is with masonry or with dirt embankments. I noticed that every bridge, since we left the Ohio River, is completed for a double track; and I am told that all the tunnels but two on the whole line are made to take a double track also. Indeed, thorough seems to be the motto of the engineers.

About 5,000 men are now employed on the work of construction along the unfinished part of the line.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

THE DOMESTIC SEWING MACHINE.—Since the Domestic Sewing Machine was awarded the "First Premium" at the late State Fair at Dover, the rush for them has been even greater than ever; Mr. E. A. Joy, the fortunate Agent, whose rooms are adjoining our office, is unable to set them up as fast as they are called for, notwithstanding he has lately employed an able assistant. Everybody who buys a "Domestic" seems happy. At the State Fair it was found to be the only Machine in the world having self adjusting tensions. It was in operation four days, using all kinds of thread on all sorts of goods, without any change of tensions. If you don't examine it before purchasing any other, you will wish you had.

IT IS SAID that if a puff of air were to be blown into a vein of an animal, death would instantaneously follow, because circulation would be stopped. The blood makes the entire circuit of the human body every seven minutes, and whenever this circulation is impeded or any of its channels are clogged by impurities which ought to be carried off, disease follows, whether it be a disorder of liver or kidneys, or scrofula, or dyspepsia. To get at and remove the source of the difficulty use the old and infallible blood purifier, DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA VINEGAR BITTERS. o21 4w

Butter and cheese are almost indispensable articles of food. Properly used, they are nutrious and healthy; but an inordinate use of either causes indigestion and dyspepsia. Parson's Purgative Pills, judiciously used, will remove both of these troubles.

Have you ague in the face; and is it badly swollen? Have you severe pain in the chest back, or side? Have you cramp or pains in the stomach or bowels? Have you bilious colic or severe griping pains? If so use Johnson's Anodyne Liniment.

AWFUL DEFEAT!!!

The rout complete! The last hope of the parties who have been getting up SCALP POISONS to compete with

Cristadoro's Excelsior Hair Dye

is lost, lost, lost! Still, it towers over all rivals, new and old. Still, it remains the STANDARD HAIR DYE OF THE COUNTRY. Still, tens of thousands of heads that once showed the white flag,

Carry Cristadoro's Colors,

and the course of the dye of dyes is ever upward and onward. So much for excellence, wholesomeness, and a true reproduction of Nature's tints. As a dressing after dyeing, use

CRISTADORO'S HAIR PRESERVATIVE.

The Martyrs of Neglect.

It is not too much to say that ten of thousands are now suffering from biliousness, indigestion, constipation, periodical fevers, general debility, and nervous affections, who might be restored to perfect health within a month or less by the use of HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS. The multitudes who have been cured of these and other ailments by the use of this well known specific are always ready to testify to its virtue as a preventive and a remedy. They are spread over the whole country: they are eager to praise and recommend it; and yet, notwithstanding its vast popularity, there are many invalids, and many who are continually exposed to the epidemical diseases, against which it is a sure protection, who, either through indifference or incredulity neglect to seize the opportunity to care any means of prevention, which they have only to reach out their hands to obtain. This is strange; it is one of the anomalies of human nature which it is impossible to account for or explain. It is, however, quite certain that every day the number of these Martyrs of Neglect are diminishing. This is proved by the statistics of the sales of the great remedy. During the present fall the demand for it has increased beyond all precedent, and it seems as if in the end the entire community would realize the important fact, that when all other medicines prescribed for the above complaints fail, it can and does effect a cure. As a protection against the diseases most common at this season, there is nothing comparable with it.

BANKERS & FINANCIAL AGENTS

OF THE

Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad Company,

No. 5 Nassau Street, New York.

The rails are being laid on the Western Division of 100 miles of the Extension of this GREAT EAST AND WEST TRUNK LINE,

which in a short time will be ready for general travel and traffic, and for the transportation of Kanawha coal to the Ohio River for the Western markets.

The earnings of the Eastern Division of 227 miles as a local road, awaiting the completion of the Middle Division of 100 miles, will reach, this year, nearly $800,000.

The total cost of the entire road, and the large equipment required for its minerals and through traffic, will be fully $30,000,000.

The total amount of the FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS, which we are now selling, is FIFTEEN MILLION DOLLARS, of which only about FOUR MILLIONS remain unsold, the proceeds of which, with the Cash on hand, will be ample for the Completion of the Entire Line.

The inducements they offer to investors are:

A perfect security.

Great popularity and a high price when the road is finished.

The same rate of interest as Five-twenties.

Principal and interest both payable in United States gold coin in New York City.

Their present low price (93 and accrued interest from Nov. 1,) which is about 20 per cent. less than Five-twenties, with equal certainty of payment of interest and principal.

We recommend them to our friends and customers with the same confidence with which we have always recommended the UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT and the CENTRAL PACIFIC BONDS.

We continue to buy and sell CENTRAL PACIFIC BONDS at the market price, and fully expect they will, in time, reach the price of Five-twenty Bonds. They are dealt in at all the principal money-centres of the world; the Company have none left, and can issue no more, on their Main Line, as the amount was fixed by act of Congress at $25,883,000; the property pledged to secure the bondholders is the net receipts of the road for the year will be nearly three times the interest payments thereon.

The CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO BONDS are issued in $100, $500, $1000; either coupon or registered; interest, six per cent., gold, payable May and November.

The CENTRAL PACIFIC BONDS are all for $1000 each; interest, six per cent., gold, payable January and July, in New York City.

We buy and sell FIVE-TWENTIES, TEN-FORTIES, EIGHTY-ONES, and CENTRAL OF WESTERN PACIFICS, or receive them in payment for CHESAPEAKE AND OHIO BONDS at their current market price.

Orders for Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds, accompanied with Drafts or Checks, may be forwarded to us by mail. Bonds or money may be forwarded by any responsible Express Company at our expense, and the Chesapeake and Ohio Bonds, in exchange, will be sent by return Express, charges paid.

Deposit accounts of banks, bankers and others received, on which we allow interest at the rate of four per cent. per annum. Checks drawn on us are payable on presentation, without notice, the same as at a National Bank.

Certificates of Deposit, bearing interest at special rates to be agreed upon, will be issued to Savings Banks, Institutions, Trustees of Estates, and others having sums of money awaiting investment.

Orders for Investment Stocks and Bonds executed at the Stock Exchange. Government Securities bought and sold, as usual, at current market rates.

LITERARY DEPARTMENT.

The editorial management of THE ALDINE has been intrusted to Mr. RICHARD HENRY STODDARD, who has received assurances of assistance from a host of the most popular writers and poets of the country.

THE VOLUME FOR 1872

will contain nearly 300 pages, and about 250 fine engravings. Commencing with the number for January, every third number will contain a beautiful tinted picture on plate paper, inserted as a frontispiece.

The Christmas number for 1872, will be a splendid volume in itself, containing fifty engravings, (four in tint) and, although retailed at $1 will be sent without extra charge to all yearly subscribers was a very popular feature last year, and will be repeated with the present volume. The publishers have purchased and reproduced, at great expense, the beautiful painting by BEARD, entitled "DAME NATURE'S SCHOOL." The chromo is 11x13 inches, and is an exact fac-simile, in size and appearance, of the original picture. No common chromo, which will at all compare with it, has yet been offered at retail for less than the price asked for THE ALDINE and it together. It will be delivered free, with the January number, to every subscriber who pays for one year in advance.

Charles Main, Esq., and family leave for San Francisco this morning.

Of Minneapolis, Minnesota, a native of Portsmouth, was President of the State Temperance Convention which nominated Abner Lewis for Governor.

Naval.

U. S. S. Wyoming will sail this morning.

We regret to hear it rumored that Commodore Pennock is to be detached from this Naval Station and ordered to duty at New York. The Commodore has made many friends while stationed here, who regret his removal from our midst. It is reported that he is to be relieved by Commodore Fabius Stanley, now on Light House duty.

Communicated.

Hard to Suit.

Messrs. Editors:—No Lyceum committee now-a-days ought to expect to please a copperhead; we do not mean a democrat, but rather what was known during the rebellion as copperhead, which being defined means a northern rebel; a being despised even by their southern allies, and fitly called by them, a dirt-eater. Every Lyceum manager knows how difficult it is, yea, how utterly impossible it is, even with the facilities afforded by the Lyceum Bureau, to procure a lecturer of democratic proclivities whose standard of talent is sufficient to meet the requirements of an average New England audience. In fact, a copperhead lecturer is about as hard to find as is a white blackbird. Hence it is idle to suppose that the editor of the Democratic sheet can be suited by any of the lecturers advertised in the course promised for this winter. If the subject of the speaker chances to be a moral one and he finds it convenient to refer to our "glorious country, the old flag, or the Chief Magistrate," the cry comes forth from the penny mouthpiece of rebeldom, "thought you said nothing political would be allowed in this course!" and so the brainless editor fancies himself defrauded and sold!

Another Gross Outrage.

Our local Democratic cotemporary insisted that the lecture given by "this man Kilpatrick" last week, detailing the Union victories attending Sheridan's grand march from Atlanta to the sea, and the horrors of the prison-pen where the rebels murdered their prisoners by starvation while the country abounded with food, was an attack upon the Democracy and a gross outrage to their feelings. But a similar assault upon coppery sensibilities seems to have entirely escaped his attention. A huge van, looking like a railroad passenger-car adrift, stood on Market Square for several days, ostensibly that people might have a chance to visit "Meeker's Museum and Gallery of Art," contained therein; but really the whole concern was nothing more than a Radical assault upon Democratic principles and feelings, for on one end of the van a topsail was set, on which was painted a battle scene with men bearing the stars and stripes to victory, and no less than two of the detested Union flags were kept flying above the picture. This gross Radical insult left town Sunday, probably to join "the man Kilpatrick" in New Jersey, and if our cotemporary will only come down properly in denunciation, we are of the opinion that the show-van and the Union general will both suffer alike.

A Little Misapprehension.

A lady of this city, tired of being bossed by Irish "help" and desiring an assistant who would occasionally allow her to have her own way, some time ago procured the services of a newly imported Norwegian girl, whom we will call Jane, because that isn't her name. The new girl is quite an acquisition, being intelligent, prompt, capable and willing to learn and to do; and, quite satisfied with ruling the children and keeping them in order, she never attempts to regulate her mistress. But as yet she does not speak or understand the English language, and a most surprising pantomime is often performed by the lady and her Scandinavian maid, in their mutual attempts to convey their ideas to each other. A few days ago the mistress decided to make a few afternoon calls; Jane was summoned, and the lady pointed to the children, placed an imaginary hat on her head, pointed to the street, marched across the room and performed various other maneuvres, all intended to convey the information that she was going out and that Jane was to take full charge of the establishment. Jane nodded and smiled, and left the apartment; and just as her mistress finished putting on the marvellous gear worn by ladies when walking and began to wonder what was delaying the girl's return, the front door opened and closed, and Jane sailed past the window, looking happy and neat as she started on a pleasant stroll from which she returned several hours later, refreshed and invigorated by the bright sun, pure air and exercise. Her mistress did not make any calls that afternoon, and has no intention of taking the stage as a pantomimic actress.

Correspondence.

KITTERY, ME., Nov. 7.

In a recent correspondence to the CHRONICLE "Omega" informs its readers that the recent prayer meeting held at a drinking saloon in Kittery, originated with the members of Rev. Mr. Hutchinson's Society, but we are informed on good authority that an invitation was given by the proprietor of the establishment referred to, and accepted by Rev. Mr. Hutchinson and his associates to hold said meeting, hence the circumstance is not wholly devoid of imitation of the doings of the "wickedest man of New York."

Rev. Alfred Day of Canton, N. Y., officiated at the Universalist church in Kittery, Sunday afternoon and evening. Mr. Day uses phonographic notes, a novel and itheresting feature in ministerial labors. S.

—That great and mighty warrior of the Chronicle, down at Portsmouth, is completely demoralized by the application of our whalebone to his back last week. He jumped up, whirled round eleven or eight times, threw up the sponge, stared askance, then turned up his toes and—sat down in his pastepot. Let him sit. He looks better there than anywhere else.—Manchester Public Forum.

So! How easy it is to misconstrue the acts of great men! That's what Joshua was doing—"applying the corrective whalebone," when all the time we imagined he was only cleaning out a pig-pen or other unsavory place, or had blown himself and his entire stock in trade—adjectives, howls, brag a la Foster, long-legged figures of speech and all—into the air with nitro glycerine; but then we judged only by the quality of the mass of stuff which was flying around in his neighborhood. He apparently feels hurt that we did not more fully notice the fact that he gave a column of adjectives in acknowledgement of the striking correctness of the pen-portrait we drew of him, a week or two ago, and as we shudder at the mere thought of incurring so terrible a creature's disapprobation, we hasten to apologise for our neglect, and acknowledge that we don't believe there is another old lady of the fish-dealing persuasion this side of Billingsgate market who could equal Joshua's last great effort. There is no need for him to tell the people of this vicinity what a fearful being he is, what fearful things he says he has done and what fearful things he says he will do, they having heard him tell all that daily for years, and knowing exactly how much it is all worth; but it is new and very interesting reading to the Manchester people, particularly to the new departure Democrats. By and bye, when he has got them all as much afraid of his "corrective whalebone" (alias muck-shovel) as we are, we understand that he intends to give us a few essays on abstruse subjects, as for instance,—"The flavor of tomatoes when purchased, compared with their flavor when 'borrowed' from store doors;" "The only true method of escorting your furniture out of town at night in a wheelbarrow, when the sheriff is after you, without getting caught;" and "Economy in publishing, i. e. borrow ink and never return it." Treated in his peculiar style these essays will doubtless make the great comic paper still more amusing than it has yet been.

—Dr. King of the United States navy, accused of the murder of Chief-Engineer Kellogg at Key West, last winter, was tried in Manatee country, Fla., and acquitted, recently.

—Mrs. S. Gould of Cape Elizabeth, Me., last week, accidentally ran the point of her scissors into the palm of her hand. In a few days lockjaw occurred, causing her death.

A NOVEL LAW SUIT.—Mr. Sayler of Vermont has brought suit against Mr. Page, his neighbor, for giving his family the small-pox. The Louisville Courier-Journal is of the opinion that Page might make as good a thing of it by bringing suit against Sayler's family for taking the small-pox from him without his permission.

NEW SUBSCRIBERS who now pay in advance for the DAILY CHRONICLE or N. H. GAZETTE for the year 1872, will receive either paper gratis until January. We will furnish the GAZETTE and the Concord Independent Statesman from this date to July 1, 1872, for $2 in advance to new subscribers.

We will furnish the DAILY CHRONICLE and Harper's Weekly, Harper's Bazar, or Harper's Magazine, for $9 per annum; and the NEW HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE and Harper's Weekly, Harper's Bazar, or Harper's Magazine, for $5—in advance.

WRECKED.

CHAPTER III.

The days went by. There was revelry and gayety at Seaview, but for all that a skeleton was there too.

Olive shuddered when she was alone at the thought of it. Slowly, surely she saw her influence over her husband growing less, and that of Miss Dorn growing stronger. He laughed at her, and jested at her about her jealousy, and called her his "wild rose," as he used to do, and for a time she was quieted. But by-and-by she saw him smiling into Gertrude Dorn's face, and the fear came up stronger than before.

What could she do?

Nothing — absolutely nothing. She loved him, but her love was not strong enough to keep him at her side. Miss Dorn's will drew him from her, and kept him away. She was like a queen, and he was like her slave; a willing slave, Olive thought sometimes with a bitter feeling at her heart.

There was no friendship between the women, and no semblance of it. Olive had never liked her from the first. There was something repulsive about her—something that kept her at a distance, and would not admit of friendship in the most remote degree if either had wished it. Olive did not, and Miss Dorn seemed wholly indifferent on the subject. Knowing how great her influence was over John Gresham, she cared nothing for his wife. She saw that it tortured her to see her husband so completely won away from her, and the thought gave Miss Dorn a peculiar kind of satisfaction. Beyond that she thought but little of John Gresham's wife.

One day there was a picnic some miles inland. Olive pleaded a headache, and begged to stay at home. John volunteered to stay with her. She smiled when he did so, and kissed him, hoping that he was coming back to his true allegiance.

After the company had gone and the house grown still, she lay down and tried to sleep, for her head ached terribly. John fanned her, and was quite like the husband he had been before Gertrude Dorn came to Seaview. By-and-by she fell asleep.

When she woke up, she was alone. She got up and combed out her yellow hair, feeling much better. She put off her wrapper and donned a cool, airy white muslin, with green ribbons at the waist and shoulders. She put a knot of white flowers in her hair, and some at her throat and went down to find her husband, looking as beautiful as Undine.

The library door was open. She heard voices in the room, and wondered who was inside. She stepped softly to the door and looked in. She started back as if struck. John Gresham sat there by the side of the woman who had won him from her, and he twisted scarlet fuschias in her purple-black hair, while she looked up into his face with a subtle mesmerism in her eyes.

Olive turned away and went down to the garden. She had supposed that Miss Dorn had gone to the picnic. Now she saw why her husband had been so willing to stay at home. The thought stabbed her like a knife.

She wandered about the garden for a long time, utterly wretched. It was late in the afternoon. The sun sank lower and lower, and after a while the visitors came flocking home. She avoided them and wandered off to the sea; she wanted to be alone.

Up and down, up and down. Her walk was a dreary one. She saw the ghostly glimmer of sails out at sea, and heard the song of the fishermen down the bay. It all came to her afterwards like a dream.

It was late before she went to the house. She avoided the main entrance, and gained her room unseen. She lay down and tried to sleep, but sleep was banished from her eyelids. She got up and threw wide open the window, and sat down by it in the moonlight.

Some one was talking in the shade of some great shrubs in the garden below. Her heart gave a great throb, for she saw that it was her husband and Gertrude Dorn.

"I ought not to have married her," he was saying. "I see that now. But you know you never gave me any real encouragement. If I had known you had cared for me!"

"But I did not know it myself, then," she answered. "I found it out when it was too late."

"My darling! you are mine, in spite of all!" he cried, and kissed her scarlet lips.

Olive Gresham slipped down in an unconscious heap on the floor. It was morning before she came to herself.

CHAPTER IV.

When she opened her eyes to a realization of life, the morning sunlight lay in radiant bars upon the floor.

She got up and wondered vaguely if she was really awake, or was it all a wretched dream.

A folded paper, lying just inside the door met her view. She picked it up. It had her name on it. She opened it, and read:

"Olive: I am going away, and with Miss Dorn. It is useless to try to keep the truth from you. You would find it out if I did not tell you. I find that I was mistaken when I thought I loved you well enough to marry you. I loved Miss Dorn before I met with you, and since she came to Seaview I have found out that love was returned by her, though she gave me no encouragement at that time. I cannot be happy without I am with her. I know I am wronging you cruelly but my love is stronger than my sense of right and honor, and I am going away. Forgive me, Olive; you have always been a good wife to me, and had I never seen Miss Dorn again, I should always have been a faithful husband to you. God bless you, Olive, and now good-bye."

She read the letter through with dry eyes; her sorrow was tearless, but all the more terrible on that account.

Gone away! the husband she had loved so well had deserted her for another, and left her to disgrace and loneliness, and a bitter consciousness of loss. All the light had gone out of life for her in the utter blackness of desolation.

There was a roll of carriage wheels on the avenue. She went to the window and looked out. The carriage stopped at the door. Some men lifted something long and narrow, covered with a black cloth. Beneath it she saw the outlines of a human form.

She started with a sudden terror, and ran down stairs, and met the men with their burden in the hall.

"What is it?" she cried. Tell me—is it my husband?"

"It is," some one of the men said pityingly. "There was a collision. He lived only an hour. He wrote you this before he died."

He gave her a folded paper. She motioned them to bear the body into the parlor, and followed them. When they had put the body down they left her, awed into silence by her white, set teeth, full of a dumb, tearless, sorrow still.

When she was alone she opened the letter and read it over by the dead.

"OLIVE—MY WIFE:

Lying here, with the shadow of death falling over me. I can see things as they are—and I know now, that I have been blind, and that I have been mistaken in myself. I do love you, Olive, better that I ever loved any one else. The love—or rather the fascination I felt for Gertrude Dorn is gone. Death is so near that I can look into my own heart, and understand it. She bewildered me, and threw a strange influence over me, and lured me from you and my feet from the path of right and true manhood. I thought I loved her, and that I could not be happy without she shared my life with me. But God has been merciful and shown me my error. He has put out his hand and stopped me on the brink of utter ruin. I am dying, but I am not sorry that it is so. If I could live, you could never trust me again. But at the last I can tell you truly, that I love you. It was not love that I felt for Gertrude Dorn. She lies in the next room dead—but I think of her with a sense of shame and pain for her, and for myself. I think of you with love, and long to see your face again, and hear you say that you forgive me. But that cannot be. Perhaps when I am dead, you will say what I would be glad to hear before I say goodnight to life. If you do I shall hear you, Olive, my dear wronged faithful wife—I shall hear you. I can hardly hold the pen. I am growing blind—but I love you—I love you to the very last."

And then there was a great blot where the pen dropped from John Gresham's nerveless fingers as the blot of death fell on his life.

She lifted the cloth that covered the dead face, and knelt beside her husband. She dropped great tears among his hair, and kissed him over and over again, calling him sweet and tender names.

"I forgive you, John," she said softly. "You hear me, don't you? I forgive you wholly. You are mine now, all mine. I love you, John."

Was it fancy, or did the dead face take on a more peaceful look than it had worn before? She thought that it did.

"You heard me," she whispered. "It is sweet to know that you were mine at the last—all mine now, John—all mine now."

And then Olive kissed the white lips that would never answer her again, and put away the soft hair from his brow, and his hand in hers. In death they had come together as they might never again have come united in life.

And it was better so—better so.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioner with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents.

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents.

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unanimous proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges. A GREAT MEDICAL DISCOVERY!

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA

VINEGAR BITTERS,

Hundreds of Thousands Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.

WHAT ARE THEY!

THEY ARE NOT A VILE FANCY DRINK, Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Root and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and a LIFE-GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to direction and remain long unwell, provided the bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been so successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the stomach and stimulate the torpid liver and bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effect.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins, cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

PIN, TAPE and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. For full directions, read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French and Spanish.

FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal. ☞ Send for a circular.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs. 1yrdawfb16

ST. CLOUD HOTEL, NEW YORK, By RAND BROTHERS, Broadway, Cor. of 42nd Street.

The Cause and Cure of Consumption.

The primary cause of Consumption is derangement of the digestive organs. The derangement produces deficient nutrition and assimilation. By assimilation I mean that process by which the nutriment of the food is converted into blood, and thence into the solids of the body. Persons with digestion thus impaired, having the slightest predisposition to pulmonary disease, or if they take cold, will be very liable to have Consumption of the Lungs in some of its forms; and I hold that it will be impossible to cure any case of Consumption without first restoring a good digestion and healthy assimilation. The very first thing to be done is to cleanse the stomach and bowels from all diseased mucous and slime which is clogging these organs so that they cannot perform their functions, and then rouse up and restore the liver to a healthy action. For this purpose, the surest and best remedy is SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS. These Pills cleanse the stomach and bowels of all the dead and morbid slime that is causing disease and decay in the whole system. They will clear out the liver of all diseased bile that has accumulated there, and arouse it up to a new and healthy action, by which natural and healthy bile is secreted.

The stomach, bowels and liver are thus cleansed by the use of Schenck's Mandrake Pills; but there remains in the stomach an excess of acid, the organ is torpid, and the appetite is poor. In the bowels, the lacteals are weak, and requiring strength and support. It is in a condition like this that Schenck's Seaweed Tonic proves to be the most valuable remedy ever discovered. It is alkaline, and its use will neutralize all excess of acid, making the stomach sweet and fresh; it will give permanent tone to this important organ, and create a good, hearty appetite, and prepare the system for the first process of a good digestion, and ultimately make good, healthy, living blood. After this preparatory treatment, what remains to cure most cases of consumption is the free use of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup. The Pulmonic Syrup nourishes the system, purifies the blood, and is readily absorbed into the circulation, and thence distributed to the diseased lungs. There it ripens all morbid matters, whether in the form of abscesses or ulcerated tubercles, then assists Nature to expel all the diseased matter in the form of free expectoration, when once it ripens. It is then, by the great healing and purifying properties of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, that all ulcers and cavities are healed up sound, and my patient is cured.

The essential thing to be done in curing Consumption is to get up a good appetite and a good digestion, so that the body will grow in flesh and blood. If a person has diseased lungs, a cavity or abscess there, he cannot help but feel, the matter cannot ripen, so long as the system is below par. What is necessary to cure is a new order of things, a good appetite, a good digestion, the body to grow in flesh and get fat; then Nature is helped, the cavities will heal, the matter will ripen and be thrown off in large quantities, and the person regains health and strength. This is the true and only plan to cure Consumption, when the system is very bad, if the lungs are not entirely destroyed, or even if one lung is entirely gone, if there is enough vitality left in the other to build up, there is hope.

I have seen many persons cured with only one sound lung, live and enjoy life to a good old age. This is what Schenck' medicines will do to cure Consumption. They will clean out the stomach, sweeten and strengthen it, get up a good digestion, and give Nature the assistance she needs to clear the system of all the disease that is in the lungs, whatever the form may be.

It is important that, while using Schenck's medicines, care should be taken not to take cold; keep in-doors in cold and damp weather; avoid night air, and take out-door exercise only in a good, dry, warm atmosphere.

I wish it distinctly understood that when I recommend a patient to be careful in regard to exposure while using my medicines, I do so for a special reason, as it is precious little regard to consumption. So long as the lungs are not perfectly healed, just so long is there imminent danger of a full return of the disease. Hence it is that I so strenuously caution pulmonary patients against exposing themselves to an atmosphere that is not warm and pleasant. Confirmed consumptives' lungs are a mass of sores, which the least change of atmosphere will inflame. The ground rule of my success with my medicines consists in my ability to subdue inflammation instead of provoking it, as many of the faculty do. An inflamed lung cannot with safety to the patient be exposed to the biting blasts of winter or the chilling winds of spring or autumn. It should be carefully shielded from all irritating influence. The utmost caution should be observed in this particular, as without it a cure under almost any circumstances is an impossibility.

The person should be kept on a wholesome and nutritious diet, and all the medicines continued until the body has restored to it the natural quantity of flesh and strength.

I was myself cured by this treatment of the worst kind of Consumption, and have lived to get fat and hearty these many years, with out any mostly gone. I have cured thousands since, and very many have been cured by this treatment whom I have never seen.

About the first of October I expect to take possession of my new building at the northeast corner of Sixth and Arch Streets, where I shall be pleased to give advice to all who may require it.

Full directions accompany all my remedies, so that a person in any part of the world may be readily cured by a strict observance of the same.

FARMER GRANT.

My summer rambles take me through
Some quaint and some neglected places,
Amongst the men with brawny arms
And ruddy faces.

And such a one I met last night,
At county fairs the constant winner;
His face was brown, his hands were hard,
His name was Skinner.

Thus spake the agricultural man,
While sweat upon his forehead glistened,
And I sat calmly on the fence
And smoked and listened:

"Some say that Grant ain't jest the man
To plow the corn and turn the stubble.
But, mly, I can't suckly see
What makes the trouble.

He don't go lecturin', to be sure,
About the care to wheat when ripening;
But, gosh! the way his crope come in,
Beats thunder'n lightning.

He hain't writ books to tell ye how
To pick out pumkin seeds that holler,
But, mind you, when his corn's 'laid by,
He ploughs his foller.

We're ca'rus critter, aliers quick
To praise or blame a man in station;
We'd prob'ly show a heap more sense
By moderation.

Now Grant don't know 'bout ploughing deep,
Or drainin', either, that I know on;
But you jest bet the patch he drags
Will do to sow on.

And look, too, at his garden truck!
It seems to me, by thunderation,
That he has raised the biggest beats
In all creation.

And when he takes his little scythe,
And round about his person swings it,
As sure's you're born, he strikes for grain,
And aliers brings it.

'Its luck!' well, mebbe 'tis, you know;
I won't say 'tis, nor won't deny it,
But you let some of your great men
Jest try it.

It may be luck; it may be fate;
Some times I ask myself 'what wuz it?'
The only thing I know is, that
The critter dux it.

The Britishers are paying up;
The robs have well nigh quit conniving;
Our debt is growing less and less,
And things are thriving.

The Injin smokes his pipe in peace;
The nigger sings his loud hosanner,
And, as the boys say down in town,
'That's what ails Hanner.'

And so, I've 'bout made up my mind
That things can't easily be mended;
That, taken all in all, the farm
Is darn well 'tended.'"

BUCHU

[From Dispensatory of the United States.]

DIOSMA CRENATA — BUCHU LEAVES.

PROPERTIES.—Their odor is strong, diffusive and somewhat aromatic; their taste bitterish and analogous to mint.

MEDICAL PROPERTIES AND USES.—Buchu leaves are gently stimulant, with a peculiar tendency to the Urinary Organs.

They are given in complaints of the Urinary Organs, such as Gravel, Chronic Catarrh of the Bladder, Morbid Irritation of the Bladder and Urethra, Disease of the Prostrate Gland, and Retention or Incontinence of Urine, from a loss of tone in the parts concerned in its evacuation. The remedy has also been recommended in Dyspepsia, Chronic Rheumatism, Cutaneous Affections and Dropsy.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is used by persons from the ages of 18 to 25, and from 35 to 55, or in the decline or change of life; after Confinement or Labor Pains; Bed-Wetting in children.

In affections peculiar to Females, the Extract Buchu is unequalled by any other remedy, as in Chlorosis or Retention, Irregularity, Painfulness or Suppression of Customary Evacuations, Ulcerated or Schirrous State of the Uterus.

DISEASES OF THE BLADDER, KIDNEYS, GRAVEL AND DROPSICAL SWELLINGS.—This medicine increases the power of Digestion, and excites the Absorbents into healthy action, by which the Watery or Calcareous depositions and all Unnatural Enlargements are reduced, as well as Pains and Inflammation.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU has cured every case of Diabetes in which it has been given. Irritation of the Neck of the Bladder and Inflammation of the Kidneys, Ulceration of the Kidneys and Bladder, Retention of Urine, Diseases of the Prostrate Gland, Stone in the Bladder, Calculus, Gravel, Brick-Dust Deposit and Mucous or Milky Discharges, and for enfeebled and delicate constitutions of both sexes, attended with the following symptoms: Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Horror of Diseases, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Pain in the Back, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Eruption on the Face, Pallid Countenance, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, etc.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is Diuretic and Blood-Purifying, and cures all diseases arising from habits of dissipation, excesses and improprieties in life, impurities of the Blood, etc., superceding Copaiba and other Nauseous Compounds.

Beware of counterfeits. Ask for Helmbold's. Take no other.

Price $1.25 per Bottle, or 6 Bottles for $6.50.

Describe symptoms in all communications.]

MANHOOD
IN THE
Young and Rising Generation.

The vegetable powers of life are strong, but in a few years how often the pallid hue, the lack-lustre eye and emaciated form, and the impossibility of application to mental effort, show their baneful influence. It soon becomes evident to the observer that some depressing influence is checking the development of the body. Consumption is talked of, and perhaps the youth is removed from school and sent into the country. This is one of the worst movements. Removed from ordinary diversions of the ever-changing scenes of the city, the powers of the body, too much enfeebled to give zest to healthful and rural exercise, thoughts are turned inwardly upon themselves.

If the patient be a female the approach of the menses is looked for with anxiety as the first symptom in which nature is to show her saving power in diffusing the circulation and visiting the cheek with the bloom of health. Alas! increase of appetite has grown by what it is fed on. The energies of the system are prostrated, and the whole economy is deranged. The beautiful and wonderful period in which body and mind undergo so fascinating a change from child to woman, is looked for in vain. The parent's heart bleeds in anxiety, and fancies the grave but waiting for its victim.

TRY HELMBOLD'S
EXTRACT BUCHU

For Weakness Arising from Excesses or Early Indiscretion,

attended with the following symptoms: Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, General Weakness, Horror of Disease, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Dreadful Horror of Death, Night Sweats, Cold Feet, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Languor, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, Often Enormous Appetite with Dyspeptic Symptoms, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Pallid Countenance and Eruptions on the Face, Pain in the Back, Heaviness of the Eyelids, Frequently Black Spots Flying before the Eyes, with Temporary Suffusion and Loss of Sight, Want of Attention, Great Mobility, Restlessness, with Horror of Society. Nothing is more desirable to such Patients than Solitude, and nothing they more dread, for fear of themselves; no repose of matter, no earnestness, no speculation, but a hurried transition from one question to another.

THESE SYMPTOMS, IF ALLOWED TO GO ON—WHICH THIS MEDICINE INVARIABLY REMOVES — SOON FOLLOW LOSS OF POWER, FATUITY AND EPILEPTIC FITS, IN ONE OF WHICH THE PATIENT MAY EXPIRE.

During the Superintendence of Dr. Wilson at the Bloomingdale Asylum, this sad result occurred to two patients. Reason has for a time left them, and both died of epilepsy. They were of both sexes, and about twenty years of age.

Who can say that these excesses are not frequently followed by those direful diseases, Insanity and Consumption? The records of the Insane Asylums, and the melancholy deaths of Consumption, bear ample witness to the truth of these assertions. In Lunatic Asylums the most melancholy exhibitions appear. The countenance is actually sodden and quite destitute; neither mirth nor grief ever visits it. Should a sound of the voice occur it is rarely articulate.

"With woful measures wan despair
Low sullen sounds their grief beguile."

While we regret the existence of the above diseases and symptoms, we are prepared to offer an invaluable gift of chemistry for the removal of the consequences.

HELMBOLD'S
Fluid Extract of Buchu.

There is no tonic like it. It is an anchor of hope to the physician and patient. This is the testimony of all who have used or prescribed it.

Beware of counterfeits and those cheap decoctions called Buchu, most of which are prepared by self-styled doctors, from deleterious ingredients, and offered for sale at "less price" and "larger bottles," etc. They are unreliable and frequently injurious. Ask for Helmbold's. Take no other.

ARE YOU GOING TO PAINT?
—IF SO, USE THE—
AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINT.

It is Cheaper, Handsomer and more durable than the best of other Paints. One Thousand Gallons of it were sold in this City, in the year 1870, and not one complaint has come from those who have used it; but all speak in its favor; it is mixed ready for application, and is much easier put on than any other Paint, making a smooth, glossy surface for years, that can be cleaned with hot suds without injuring it. It is excellent for walls inside, in the place of paper.

I shall keep this season a large stock of Chemical Paints of all shades on hand, to accommodate customers with any amount, without delay in ordering it. Those who want to use the Chemical Paints and have had them misrepresented by those who deal in Lead and Oil, are invited to call and examine my Paints that have been on Building two years, and you will find them as fresh as if laid but one month.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 8, 1871.

THE ELECTIONS.

Again we are indebted to Mr. Charles E. Shedd for his indefatigable efforts in obtaining for us the news from the State Elections, which we publish below as received at the office of the International Line, Tuesday night: Republicans and honest Democrats can rejoice over the victory in New York city.

New York.

The election commenced about 6 o'clock, A. M., the Tammany repeaters of New York City going about from precinct to precinct, voting on the names of citizens who did not appear for several hours after. In the 8th election district of the 1st Ward, Inspector Michael J. Cullen was discovered early in the morning in the act of stuffing ballots into the ballot box. A citizen saw the proceeding and called the attention of the police, but the latter turned their backs purposely, thus endeavoring to shield the Inspector from public view. The citizen immediately made a complaint to Judge Hogan, who promptly issued a warrant for the arrest of Cullen. Judge Hogan shortly after ordered the arrest of Election Inspector James Burns of the 7th district of the same ward, charged with throwing ballots on the floor instead of putting them in the boxes.

The New York Herald publishes a "list of regular, irregular, honest, dishonest, deformed, reformed, soreheaded and no-headed candidates for election."

A number of repeaters were early detected—57 in one district and 12 in one [illegible]

A man who boasted of having voted for Rossa in the 6th ward was shockingly beaten on Centre Street under the eyes of the police, by Tweed roughs. No arrests.

NEW YORK, 10 P. M., 7TH.

The indications are that the majority for the democratic ticket in the city will reach 30,000. The entire Tammany ticket, except Ledwith is elected. In the 9th ward the friends of Benedict, the Reform candidate for Senator, have strong hopes of success over Norton, the Ring candidate. Bradley is surely defeated according to present appearances. Peter B. Sweeney, in a letter to Mayor Hall, has resigned his office and declares his purpose of keeping aloof from politics, hereafter, except in the single act of voting.

NEW YORK, 10.50 P. M.

The votes for the smallest city offices must be counted before the vote for the State ticket. The Times claims the election of Gen. Sigel, Register, O'Brien, Senator, Barrett, Judge, over Ledwith, and Benedict, Senator, over Norton. It is still hoped the entire Republican State ticket is chosen.

11 P. M.

The latest reports received at one of the leading newspaper offices are to the effect that TAMMANY HAS BEEN OVERTHROWN AND THE STATE HAS GONE REPUBLICAN BY 25,000 TO 30,000 majority! The Republicans have majorities in about all the prominent cities outside of this city.

Massachusetts.

BOSTON, Nov. 7, 9 P. M.

Returns from 83 towns foot up Washburn 24,928, Adams 15,833, Pitman 9375, Chamberlain 1584.

BOSTON, 10:30, P. M.

Returns from all towns up to this hour give Washburn 17,736 plurality. The Legislature is overwhelmingly Republican. Republican Councillors are all elected. Gen. Patrick R. Guiney, Dem., is elected Register of Probate over Gen. Wm. S. King, Republican, by about 100 majority.

John W. May, Republican, is elected District Attorney, over Oliver Stevens, Democrat, by 100 majority.

BOSTON, 11 P. M.

Returns from 127 towns give Washburn 51,000, Adams 31,000, Pitman and Chamberlain 5000 each. Washburn, Republican, is elected Governor by 30,000 majority. Boston gives Washburn 700 plurality.

Maryland.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 7th.

The election here is quiet. The vote will be heavy and the colored vote will be large.

BALTIMORE, MD., 10.45 P. M.

Returns come in slowly. This city gives 8,000 to 10,000 Democratic majority — a Republican gain of nearly 10,000.

Illinois.

CHICAGO, Nov. 7th.

The indications are that the Union ticket will be elected in this city.

Virginia.

RICHMOND, 10:35 P. M.

Despatches received here indicate the success of the conservatives.

THE SOUTH CAROLINA KU-KLUX evidence is piling in so fast that time fails to do more than file it away until there is an opportunity to examine it. The evidence is overwhelmingly confirmatory of the facts relative to the parties concerned in a large number of whippings and in the hanging of Williams, in which Bratton was the leader and Avery an accessory before the fact, of the murder of Anderson Brown (in which Tomlinson was concerned), the murder of Leet and the murder of Rountree, and the facts and details of five other murders. A correspondent says, "We have in jail some thirty men who have been concerned in various murders, most of them having made a clean breast of it, and showed that they were all committed by order of the grand chief, Avery."

THE SIX O'CLOCK EXPRESS TRAIN between Portland and Boston will be discontinued on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays after this week. These are the days when the trains go over the Boston and Maine Railroad. It is understood that on the close of the Penobscot River and the withdrawal of the steamers on that line, these trains will be entirely discontinued for the winter.

ON DIT, that Secretary Robeson will marry Mrs. Aulick on the 1st of December proximo; and that, as soon thereafter as possible, he will be appointed Minister to Austria. Also, that Senator Cragin of N. H. is to succeed Mr. Robeson as Secretary of the Navy.

A NATIONAL REPUBLICAN CONVENTION will be held December 5 to prepare a platform, issue an address to the people, and nominate candidates for the Forty-third Congress, President and Vice-President.

New Publications.

The New York Observer enters upon its fiftieth year on the 1st of January next in a new dress. Every department is conducted with ability. Its Foreign Correspondence is unrivalled, and its independence in commenting upon political corruptions is in the highest degree praiseworthy. It announces that the success of its Year Book for 1871 will result in Volume No. 2 for 1872, which will be still more complete in its statistical and other tables of information, and in its general arrangement. New subscribers will receive the paper free until January 1st.

—At a Republican gathering in Montgomery, Ala., the anvil used as a cannon exploded, killing two men and mortally wounding two or three. Several others were badly injured.

Orders received by mail, express, or at the CHRONICLE OFFICE will be promptly filled.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

THE DOMESTIC SEWING MACHINE.—Since the Domestic Sewing Machine was awarded the "First Premium" at the late State Fair at Dover, the rush for them has been even greater than ever; Mr. E. A. Joy, the fortunate Agent, whose rooms are adjoining our office, is unable to set them up as fast as they are called for, notwithstanding he has lately employed an able assistant. Everybody who buys a "Domestic" seems happy. At the State Fair it was found to be the only Machine in the world having self adjusting tensions. It was in operation four days, using all kinds of thread on all sorts of goods, without any change of tensions. If you don't examine it before purchasing any other, you will wish you had.

IT IS SAID that if a puff of air were to be blown into a vein of an animal, death would instantaneously follow, because circulation would be stopped. The blood makes the entire circuit of the human body every seven minutes, and whenever this circulation is impeded or any of its channels are clogged by impurities which ought to be carried off, disease follows—fever or a disorder of liver or kidneys, or scrofula, or dyspepsia. To get at and remove the source of the difficulty use the old and infallible blood purifier, DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA VINEGAR BITTERS. o21 4w

FOR FAMILY USE.—Meats of all description are made much more palatable by the use of the famous Halford Leicestershire Table Sauce, which is not fiery like many foreign Sauces, but has more body of the choicest materials than they have. All grocers sell it.

Butter and cheese are almost indispensable articles of food. Properly used, they are nutrious and healthy; but an inordinate use of either causes indigestion and dyspepsia. Parson's Purgative Pills, judiciously used, will remove both of these troubles.

Have you ague in the face; and is it badly swollen? Have you severe pain in the chest back, or side? Have you cramp or pains in, the stomach or bowels? Have you bilious colic or severe griping pains? If so use Johnson's Anodyne Liniment.

AWFUL DEFEAT!!!

The rout complete! The last hope of the parties who have been getting up SCALP POISONS to compete with

Cristadoro's Excelsior Hair Dye

is lost, lost, lost! Still, it towers over all rivals, new and old. Still, it remains the STANDARD HAIR DYE OF THE COUNTRY. Still, tens of thousands of heads that once showed the white flag,

Carry Cristadoro's Colors,

and the course of the dye of dyes is ever upward and onward. So much for excellence, wholesomeness, and a true reproduction of Nature's tints. As a dressing after dyeing, use

CRISTADORO'S HAIR PRESERVATIVE.

The Martyrs of Neglect.

It is not too much to say that ten of thousands are now suffering from biliousness, indigestion, constipation, periodical fevers, general debility, and nervous affections, who might be restored to perfect health within a month or less by the use of HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS. The multitudes who have been cured of these and other ailments by the use of this well known specific are always ready to testify to its virtue as a preventive and a remedy. They are spread over the whole country: they are eager to praise and recommend it; and yet, notwithstanding its vast popularity, there are many invalids, and many who are continually exposed to the epidemical diseases, against which it is a sure protection, who, either through indifference or incredulity neglect to seize the opportunity to cure any means of prevention, which they have only to reach out their hands to obtain. This is strange; it is one of the anomalies of human nature which it is impossible to account for or explain. It is, however, quite certain that every day the number of these Martyrs of Neglect are diminishing. This is proved by the statistics of the sales of the great remedy. During the present fall the demand for it has increased beyond all precedent, and it seems as if in the end the entire community would realize the important fact, that when all other medicines prescribed for the above complaints fail, it can and does effect a cure. As a protection against the diseases most common at this season, there is nothing comparable with it.

A PARTY OF MEN living near Inwood, Ind., were out coon hunting, Saturday night, and while returning home three sat down on a railroad track to wait the arrival of the rest, and fell asleep. The express train came along and struck John Gress, killing him instantly. Bruce Robinson was badly injured, and the other man escaped.

Caucuses.

Messrs. Editors:—A few days ago you spoke favorably of holding the Caucus for Mayor, at least, in the afternoon; and I am among the quiet people who hope it will be so arranged. The old general Town Meetings were so great a nuisance, that if no other point were gained by a City organization, it were well to have it to get rid of the annual crush and jam; and I can see no better reason for holding the election in the daytime, and in separate Wards, than for holding the Mayor Caucus likewise. Come, why not fix it thus this year—and keep the polls open in the three Wards, say from two to eight o'clock?

It will be a great improvement too, when the election law of New Hampshire shall be made like that of Maine, and open and close the polls of towns of certain number of polls, at stated times. STRAIGHT OUT REPUBLICAN.

Water for Firrs.

The subject of procuring an abundant supply of water for extinguishing fires is an important one—the most important, perhaps, which can engage the attention of our city authorities and property owners. That the present supply is insufficient and that such a state of affairs seriously detracts from the efficiency of the Fire Department, we believe is admitted by all; and that any economical and effective remedy for the deficiency will be approved and supported by the persons most interested in the matter,—the tax-payers of the city. Various plans for securing an abundant water supply have been proposed and discussed, but none have as yet been adopted. Several reservoirs have been built, but they are too few and too far apart to secure our city from disaster so far as human precaution may do; and a large pipe from the aqueduct is objected to as being too costly in the first place, and possibly not all that we should require, when finished. The latest suggestion, and one which to us seems to promise an abundance of water for fires at a moderate cost, is to make use of what is known as Marston's ice-pond, as a main reservoir, bringing the water in pipes to other reservoirs in various parts of the city, as needed. This pond is situated on high land near the South road, not far from the new house owned by Mr. William Evans, and is said to be fed by numerous springs and to be always full of water, which is about nine feet deep in the middle of the pond; and if the representations made to us concerning it are correct, it can be made available for efficiently supplementing our present water supply, and with no very great outlay of money—certainly no greater than the importance of the subject will warrant. From this pond all the water used in the trial of engines during the firemen's muster was taken, and though it was just then a very dry time the pond was full, and the steady pumping all day of steamer Dearborn did not lower it more than a foot, though that engine throws five hundred gallons per minute; and a very short time sufficed to again bring the pond to its former level. There are no engineering difficulties and but a very short distance to overcome, to bring the water from this pond into the city, and we understand that the proprietor, though he declines to sell the pond, is willing to grant its use as a reservoir to the city on favorable terms. Its present capacity can be very much increased by widening and deepening, and its elevation is such (the surface of the pond is on a level with the roof of Hon. J. B. Adams' house on Middle Street) that in the low-lying parts of the city the pressure would render the water available for use with hose only, without the intervention of engines. As the conducting pipes were laid to various parts of the city, auxiliary reservoirs could be built to hold the surplus water from the head reservoir and to furnish an instant supply when required; they need be neither large nor costly, as they could be constantly replenished when being used, and once finished they would require no further outlay. Having reservoirs more numerous (and of course closer together) would considerably decrease the risk of hose being burst, as is so common an accident when long stretches of it are used, and such accidents could be more quickly remedied; and the actual saving in the quantity of hose necessary would amount to a considerable sum. One place which we would suggest as a good location for a big reservoir, the hole being already dug for it, is the old gravel-pit on Middle street. That now unsightly hole could be turned into a lake, holding more water than all the machines of the fire department (including the Hook and Ladder cart and Mr. T. S. Nowell's fire extinguisher) could pump in a week; and the cost would not be appalling. There may be some more efficient and less costly method of securing a water supply than this one, and if so we hope it will at once be made public; for that we now have not and that we immediately should have a plentiful supply of water for use in extinguishing fires, is admitted by every one. Locking the stable door after the horse is stolen has never been considered the act of a wise man, and postponing action in this matter of a supply of water will occasion a great deal of virtuous indignation and "I told you so" sympathy, should the city go up in smoke in consequence.

Philharmonic Society.

A business meeting of the Philharmonic Society will take place at Mr. E. A. Tilton's music room, No. 32 Market Street, this evening. See adv't.

Thanksgiving Ball.

Sagamore S. F. Engine Co., No. 2, will give their Twelfth Annual Ball on Thanksgiving Eve, Wednesday, Nov. 29. Gilbert's Band will furnish the music.

Greenland Academy.

The winter term of Brackett Academy, in Greenland, commences Dec. 6. This institution is under the charge of Miss Josephine Dutton, who will furnish any information desired concerning it; board is from $3.50 to $4.50 per week. The advertisement may be found in another column.

Not Bad.

The Festival at Greenland last week in aid of the sufferers at the West realized $125 for the fund—not bad for a little country village. The Universalist choir and other musical people from this city assisted, and there were no "grab-bags," or any of those other similar features, which, except at charity and church fairs, would be considered as swindles, the money being raised by the sale of admission tickets and refreshments.

A Live Chap

Edits a new advertising sheet circulated about town, called The Congress Gazette, said to be printed in the interest of the advertisers, an energetic corps of young men who know how to call attention to their wares and haven't the least respect for old fogyism. Portsmouth publishers never had reason to complain for want of advertisements and now that the business of the city is surely and not slowly dropping into younger hands, advertising increases rapidly. Who knows but that some Bonner or a Helmbold may arise from the ranks of young men about this city, whose sagacity may lead them to fortune through advertising extensively and well!

Seabrook and Salisbury.

Thomas Eaton of South Seabrook, an elderly man who had never before paid much attention to religious affairs, was not long ago taken sick and then manifested much interest concerning his future destiny. Finally he became impressed with the idea that food and drink were the "forbidden fruit" and that it was sinful to take nourishment, and accordingly refused to eat or drink, nothing having passed his lips for eight days up to Sunday last, by which time he was too much exhausted to offer any effectual resistence to those who attempted to convey gruel into his mouth or to eject it when it was once there, and was therefore obliged to swallow it. As may be imagined, his recovery is very doubtful.
